Democrats Worried by Effect of Grave Accusations.

Ship Frauds Laid To Roosevelt Aids

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Charges of "improper favoritism, graft and apparent evidence of corruption" in the Department of Commerce, especially in the administration of ship subsidies, made yesterday by Ewing Y. Mitchell, ousted Assistant Secretary of Commerce, brought demands on Capitol Hill for a thorough investigation.

The demands came from both Democrats and Republicans in the Senate, where Administration leaders were visibly nervous over the effect of the Mitchell charges, linking an alleged improper waiver of damages due the Treasury with persons close to President Roosevelt.

The Administration remained silent, except to say that the charges already had been referred to the Justice Department for investigation. Meanwhile the House Merchant Marine Committee, after seven weeks deliberation, approved a bill revising the ship-subsidy system, placing it on the basis of the difference between American and foreign costs. The Mitchell charges may affect all pending ship subsidy legislation.

Domination Charged.

Mitchell, who threw his bombshell by making public a sheaf of correspondence he has had with the President and others, prepared to return to the attack today. He sent out notice he would hold a press conference this morning to elaborate his charges that "racketeers," "money-changers" and "high-pressure lobbyists" dominated the Commerce Department.

He indicated he would have more to say regarding alleged "extravagance, waste and dry-rot" in some of that department's bureaus. Apparently the Administration was waiting to see what else there is to Mr. Mitchell's fire. But his first shot created a stir in the Senate, where the Black ocean and air mail committee today will present a report which is said to deal with aspects of subsidies to the United States Lines, which is under attack by Mr. Mitchell.

Vandenberg Urges Quiz.

Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, who on Saturday failed in an effort to rush to confirmation the nomination of John Monroe Johnson as Mitchell's successor, yesterday moved to have the nomination recommitted to the Commerce Committee "to avoid appearances of haste."

As a matter of fact, the Johnson nomination was never formally before the Commerce Committee until it was recommitted yesterday. In

Baseball Czar Grants Pitts Right to Play

Sing Sing Star Eligible at Albany, Landis Rules.

By the United Press.

Chicago, June 17.—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's high commissioner, ruled today that Alabama Pitts, recently released from Sing Sing Prison, may play organized baseball.

Landis' ruling was on an appeal by Johnny Evers, manager of the Albany Baseball Club, from a decision of the minor leagues' executive committee, which upheld the barring of Pitts by Judge W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Minor League Baseball Clubs.

Judge Bramham felt the Albany Club was "exploiting an ex-convict for publicity purposes." There was Nation-wide protest, with Evers threatening to quit baseball himself if the 24-year-old athlete, whose correct name is Edwin C. Pitts, was barred in final decisions.

The ruling carried the stipulation that Pitts would be given another contract which would bar him from exhibition contests and allow him to play only in regularly scheduled games. Landis explained that this was to avoid "notoriety."

Moral Disorder Blamed.

Judge Landis attributed the crime for which Pitts went to Sing Sing, a $10 holdup with an accomplice in which Pitts held a gun, to "the moral disorder affecting that portion of martyred youth whose desires for easy money, thrills and high life have brought about the pathetic and tragic fact that a great majority of crimes involving the use of weapons are committeed by youths of 17 to 25."

"There is no objection whatsoever," Landis said, "to baseball clubs assisting paroled convicts by employing them in any other capacity in the business of the club, but employment connected with the playing of the game as player, coach, manager or umpire presents a wholly different situation.

Although he said the appeal of the Albany club could not be ruled on by him as presented, Landis declared the case came within his jurisdiction because it is one in which a player has a financial claim amounting to $300 a month or more.

"In other affairs of life," he said, "wherein provision is made for dis-

Cooling Downpour Promised for Today

1935 Heat Record of 92 Equaled Yesterday.

A good, drenching rain was foreseen last night by the official foreeaster, with the promise that it would rescue Washington from the almost suffocating weather that gripped it yesterday.

The high temperature yesterday was 92, the same as on Friday, the hottest day of 1935.

Two cases of heat prostration were reported. The victims were William Robinson and Bennett Briscoe, both colored. They were picked up on the street and treated at Freedman's Hospital.

The rain predicted by the foreeaster last night was expected to continue through part of the day, causing the temperature to drop this afternoon and tonight.

British Probe Weighs Crisis Facing China

Chinese Craft Desert; Nippon Denies Army Moves Planned.

Sino-Japanese Situation

The British foreign secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, told the House of Commons Britain is investigating the Sino-Japanese situation.

Two Chinese cruisers deserted the Canton government. They escaped the fire of loyal forces in the run from Whampou to Hongkong harbor.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 17.—Sir Samuel Hoare, new foreign secretray, guardedly informed the House of Commons today Great Britain is making a thorough inquiry into the Sino-Japanese situation.

Choosing his words carefully, Hoare did not reveal details of the investigation, but it was learned that the government regards the outlook as so grave that developments in China may lead to representations under the nine-power treaty.

[Phases of the Sino-Japanese situation were talked over in Washington today by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, and William Phillips, Undersecretary of state, but officials refused to disclose details.]

Stanley Baldwin, new premier, dodged a request to give the House information on his rejection of Lloyd George's "new deal" program, saying he was not ready to make a statement.

Baldwin Cheered.

Baldwin got an exceptionally hearty cheer as he entered the House as prime minister for the third time.

Ramsay MacDonald, former premier, relaxed in Commons for the first time in six years. With the weight of the responsibility of the premiership lifted from his shoulders, he seemed to be a different man. He sat completely relaxed, with his eyes half-closed.

Labor members gave ironical cheers when minister after minister of the new cabinet arose in replay to questions.

The opposition questioned Baldwin about the creation of two ministers without portfolio. J. J. Rawson, Labor member asked, "Is it a fact that the real reason for the appointment of ministers without portfolio is to provide two Conservatives with posts?" Baldwin replied, "No, sir."

By the Associated Press.

Hongkong, June 17.—The Chinese cruisers Haichi and Haisen rode at anchor in Hongkong harbor tonight after deserting the Canton government and running the fire of loyal forces.

The ships' armor was unmarred, but three members of the Haichi's crew were wounded during the spectacular fight.

The two ships deserted from their post at Whampoa yesterday, steamed through the entrance of the Canton River, called Boca Tigris—"mouth of the Tiger"—jammed on a sandbar, underwent an aerial bombardment from airplanes and ran through machine gun fire from land forts.

The vessels completed their dash for Hongkong today, remaining in the harbor while the Hongkong government, it was reported, awaited developments.

Shortly after the arrival of the cruisers the lieutenant commander and three seamen of the Haichi were taken to a hospital. An officer of the cruiser said their injuries were the result of an explosion aboard the ship.

The deserting crews met with opposing fire during much of their perilous flight through Boca Tigris.

Desertion of the cruisers followed complaints from members over wages and other conditions. The Haichi and Haisen deserted the

JOHN MARTIN BOLAND.

Boland Guilty; Lyddane Case Off Until Fall

Alleged Conspirator Gets 3 Years, 9 Months; Woman on Bail.

By Karl Schriftgiesser.
A Staff Correspondent.

Rockville Courthouse, June 17.—The State of Maryland's effort to convict Anne Lyddane on a charge of conspiracy to murder her husband was continued today until the November sitting of the circuit court after the full bench of that court, headed by Judge Hammond Urner, sentenced John Martin Boland, alleged co-conspirator, to three years and nine months in the House of Correction.

The same court, which last week had cited two reporters and two editors of the Washington Herald for printing purported information about the verdict before it had been announced by the court, set Wednesday, June 26, as the date for hearing the contempt case.

Boland, who previously to his arrest, ran a crap game on Sixth street in Washington, received his sentence stoically, although his youthful wife, who was at his side, wept copiously. He pleaded with the judges to consider his war record and the fact that he had upon occasion offered his blood to help his fellowmen, but made no effort to deny his guilt before Judge Urner announced the sentence. Later, talking with newspaper men before being whisked to the jail on the top story of this magnificent courthouse, he said:

"I still think I'm innocent."

Only a Few in Courtroom.

The three judges met shortly after 3 o'clock, before only a few stragglers in the courtroom as compared with last week's eager crowds. Judge Urner announced the guilty verdict. The judges then retired for about 20 minutes to deliberate the sentence which they first announced as four years. Fred Maltby, counsel for Boland, called the court's attention to the fact that Boland has been in Rockville jail since about April 1, and after a whispered consultation with his confreres, Judges Woodward and Willard, Judge Urner announced the three-year-and-nine-month sentence.

The court then inquired as to the disposition of the other cases and District Attorney James Pugh asked that they be continued until November. Bail was continued at the same amounts, Mrs. Lyddane being freed on $5,000, the other defendants, Edward J. Davis, Harry E. Thomas, and John "Googy" Carnell, at $1,000 each.

Trolley Ban Set in Omaha By Governor

Company Ignores Order for Arbitration in Dispute.

The Labor Situation

Gov. Cochran exercised his power as dictator under martial law to order all street cars off the street when the railway company at Omaha ignored his demand for arbitration.

Workers at the Toledo Edison Co. voted acceptance of an arbitration plan. They will return to work today.

By the Associated Press.

Omaha, Nebr., June 17.—The full power of martial law was thrown into the seething street car strike situation here today as Gov. R. L. Cochran asserted his right as a dictator to take the cars off the streets, and a National Guard court sent two men to jail.

Gov. Cochran, determined that the bloody strike that brought death to two and injured more than 150 others, must end quickly, ordered street car service stopped after the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway Co. ignored his ultimatum that an arbitration committee be named by 10 a. m. today.

Tracks Are Cleared.

His usual smile gone, the Governor struck back within 15 minutes after the company had failed to announce selection of an arbitration choice at the designated hour. The strikers had complied with the demand of the Governor.

Within 20 minutes after the Governor ordered the cars into the barns, the tracks were clear. Although the guard was ready to do the job, their aid was not needed as the company obeyed instantly upon receiving Cochran's order through Adj. Gen. H. J. Paul, guard commander.

The company met this action with a decision to further postpone the time of their conference to decide on acceptance of rejection of the Governor's demand. The company meeting was set back from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m.

Closing Rule Lifted.

Meanwhile, a military court was sending George Bighia and Al Dolejz to jail for failure to obey the military order to close their beer establishments at 6 p. m. last night. Bighia drew a 15-day sentence and a $100 fine, Dolejz a 10-day sentence and $100 fine. In addition, the taverns of both men were ordered closed for the duration of the occupation of the city by the guard. Other cases were being reviewed by the court late today.

The court is confining its work to the review of cases directly connected with the strike or violations of the military rules. Ordinary civil cases, such as speeding and other traffic violations, are in the hands of the police and the civil courts.

As a result of the quietness of the city last night and the willingness with which tavern operators as a whole co-operated, Gen. Paul removed the closing rule late today, but warned that any disturbances would result in the closing of the offending tavern.

By the Associated Press.

Toledo, Ohio, June 17.—Members of the Toledo Edison Co. electrical workers' union accepted today, 311 to 48, a plan to arbitrate their demands for a 20 per cent wage increase.

The action terminated a four-day strike. They will return to work tomorrow.

Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, submitted the plan, under which he is to decide whether the workers will receive immediately a 5 per cent wage increase.

Administrators Advised How to Spend Fund at White House.

Roosevelt Warns Them on Politics

By Felix Bruner.

President Roosevelt yesterday turned over to the 48 works progress administrators under Harry L. Hopkins the job of administering virtually all of the $4,000,000,000 works program.

Addressing the administrators, one from each State, who gathered in his office, the President impressed upon them the necessity for putting 3,500,000 men to work, for making the projects "as useful as possible," and for avoiding politics.

The President told the works officials that a quota of the works money would be allotted to each State and that it would be up to the administrator of that State to see that all employable persons on relief are put to work at a cost not to exceed the quota.

Meeting Recalls Old CWA.

In a meeting resembling in most details the opening of the first CWA drive, the State administrators, all of whom are Government employes and who have no responsibility to the State governments, received their instructions, first from Hopkins and his various assistants and then from the President.

Hopkins was the only one of the original "big three" in the new works set-up present when the President talked to the administrators. He referred to "Harry and I," but made no reference at any time to Secretary Ickes, head of PWA, or to any other division of the works administration.

President Roosevelt opened his talk to the men who will spend the works money by explaining again that only about $1,100 can be spent for each man employed.

"This means," he said, "that there will be a great many heartaches for people with expensive programs. You will have to turn down many splendid projects all over the United States. Many people have plans that are very worthy, but they do not fall within the arithmetic situation."

The President urged his listeners to explain carefully to the people of their respective States "why we must say no to a lot of things."

President Talks Algebraically.

"Outside of a handful of strictly Federal projects, totaling a very small portion of the $4,000,000,000, practically all the rest of the money must be spent at an average of $1,100 to $1,200 per man, which must include everything, including materials."

The President then went from arithmetic into a kind of algebra. He said there were three factors: "X" representing the State, "Y" the number of employables on relief, and "Z," the amount of money available to that particular State. He stressed that these elements must balance.

"We are going to look to you," he said to the administrators, most of whom also are in charge of relief, "for advice in regard to spending this allotted money and to see that all people on relief rolls are put to work. We want to get away from the dole. We believe the dole is

16 Voluntary Codes for Trade Submitted as NRA Maps Path

Industries Offer Proposals on Fair Practice for Approval as New Agency's Board Plans for Handling of Tasks.

Sixteen voluntary codes were submitted for approval yesterday as a part of the newly organized and weakened NRA. Two of the codes, those proposed by the asphalt shingle roofing industry and by the asbestos industry, were submitted in Washington and the remainder in New York.

The newly formed NRA advisory board met during the afternoon to begin outlining a general policy for handling the proposed codes and for reorganizing the NRA, James L. O'Neil, new NRA administrator, said it probably would be some time before a policy is determined upon.

It is expected the codes will be examined much as were codes under the old NRA and that hearings will be held. They will be scrutinized particularly for evidences of violation of antitrust laws. Under the new set up, the Government can do nothing more than approve the codes. It has no power of enforcement.

"We are going to move slowly," O'Neil said. "Business is moving a little faster than we anticipated, but we are not going to be rushed. The proposed codes are going to be examined to see if they contain sufficient possibilities to justify encouraging industry generally to submit agreements."

O'Neill said that reduction of NRA personnel would be gradual. He said the amount of reduction would depend somewhat on whether NRA is expected to take over enforcement of the proposed law requiring Government contractors to agree to wage and hour limitations.

It was indicated from other sources that there will be considerable business opposition to this proposal. Some business men see in the proposed law an effort to force code provisions on a large section of industry. They point out that a large manufacturer, a maker of motor cars for instance, could not possibly work part of his plant

House Extends $501,991,000 Nuisance Tax

Nine Other Bills Sped as Speaker Urges Clearing Work by July 15.

By Robert C. Albright.

Exhorted to greater speed by Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, the House yesterday approved a $501,991,000 excise tax extension and geared up proceedings on nine other bills in an effort to adjourn Congress by July 15.

The Speaker, who rarely makes a floor speech, hammered home his adjournment appeal to the accompaniment of rebel yells and applause.

"This is not a lecture; it is not for the purpose of scolding the House," said the gangling Tennesseean.

"I come to report to the membership just what confronts us and what possibly may be necessary for us to do if we are to adjourn at anything like a reasonable date." He said it may be necessary for the House to meet early and adjourn late, to put through this program.

Earlier, under a 40-minute-debate limitation, the House had passed the nuisance tax extension bill, 247 to

Calles Quits Mexican Rule

Leaves Cardenas to Carry Out His Program Unhindered.

By the Associated Press.

Mexico, D. F., June 17.—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, "iron man" and political dictator of Mexico, bowed out of the government picture today, leaving President Lazaro Cardenas to continue his Leftist program unhindered.

Calles will depart tomorrow for the north, he said, leaving "all responsibility for public affairs to those who have it in their hands."

He and Cardenas had conflicted over the latter's economic program.

Thus the 40-year-old Cardenas, who is part Indian, rose to complete domination of the Mexican scene. A general and veteran of the revolution, Cardenas was governor of the State of Michoacan before he became president last year.

Cardenas was expected to name a new cabinet almost immediately, succeeding the one whose resignation he forced Friday when Calles criticized the government's program, especially as it affected labor.

Huey's 'Share Wealth' Plan Downed by Chorus of 'Noes'

One Other Senator Votes With Louisianan for His Social Security Program Offered as Substitute for Roosevelt Measure.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Long's "share-the-wealth" program was drowned under a chorus of "noes" in the Senate yesterday after the Louisianan—apparently seeking the foundation for a presidential bid—had offered it as a substitute for the Roosevelt social security plan.

Point by point, Long sought to match his proposal against that of the Administration. More than one of his colleagues asserted privately that the Southerner was looking toward 1936 in so doing.

It was the first time Long had been able to get it officially before the Senate. And it did not stay there long.

As soon as he had concluded his explanation of the plan the Senate voted. There was no record ballot, but apparently one other Senator, who could not be identified from the gallery, voted with Long.

The Senate also rejected without a record vote an amendment by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, to permit tariff increases to compensate for increased costs of production under the heavy taxes provided in the Administration bill.

The Louisiana Democrat's program in brief called for sizable pensions to all people over 60 years of age with an income of less than $500 a year and property valued at less than $3,000. He proposed to finance it with a capital levy that he estimated would raise $165,000,000,000 and whittle drivate fortunes down to a maximum of $2,500,000.

Long followed immediately after Senator Hastings (Republican), of Delaware, a conservative Easterner, who contended the Roosevelt program was beyond the Nation's economic capacity. The Louisiana Senator took the opposite view that it was nothing but a "pauper bill."

2 Lost Babes With Grandma; She Blames Dad's Marital Rift

Two modern, sandy-haired babes in the wood, Dorothy May and Frank Henry Nuttall, jr., who were left by their father in the Zoo Sunday, came home last night to their grandmother's farm between Edgewood and Bel Air, Md.

The little girl, 7, and the boy, 6, who spent Sunday night and most of yesterday at the Receiving Home here, were reunited joyfully with their grandmother, Mrs. Mary Purcell.

Mrs. Purcell, mother-in-law of Nuttall, who is a machinist employed by the Government at Edgewood Arsenal, said she believed he left the children at the elephant house of the Zoo in an effort to attract the attention of his wife, who separated from him several weeks ago.

"He may have reasoned the children would be taken in charge without any harm," said Mrs. Purcell last night.

"Then there would be the story in the newspapers, my daughter would read it, and go to her children."

Scouting a suggestion that her son-in-law might be suffering from amnesia, Mrs. Purcell asserted she thought he was in Washington, "watching to see what happens."

When Nuttall left for Washington Sunday, he said he was going to take the youngsters to the Zoo, Mrs. Purcell recalled. He said he planned to take his two other children on a similar trip next Sunday, she added.

Clipper Plane Takes 10 Hours From Midway Back to Hawaii

By the Associated Press.

Alameda, Calif., June 17.—The Pan American clipper plane landed at Honolulu at 9:58 p. m. (E. S. T.), today to complete its return flight from Midway Island, the airways' base was informed by radio.

The 1,323-mile trip from Midway required ten hours and four minutes, as against nine hours and 13 minutes made by the seaplane in its pioneer dash to the mid-Pacific base on Saturday. The craft took off from the Little Atoll at 4:54 a. m. Midway time (11:54 E. S. T.).

The clipper will fly from Hawaii to California soon to prepare for further test flights, which are expected to take them still farther West, to Wake Island, by way of Hawaii and Midway.

The flying boat had its first "stowaways" as the crew, shortly after the take-off, discovered two big Gooney birds, which inhabit the Midway Islands, had clambered aboard. The birds were tossed into the air.

In addition to the regular crew of six men, the plane carried the two passengers who flew here Saturday —C. W. Winter and Philip Berst, maintenance engineers.

Glass Demands A 'Square Deal' In College Talk

Senator Tells Tufts Seniors to Beware of Popular New Theories.

By the Associated Press.

Medford, Mass., June 17.—Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, in an outspoken, 2-minute, extemporaneous address at Tufts College commencement, today told graduating seniors that a "new deal" must also be a "square deal."

Tufts gave Glass the honorary degree of master of arts and he, in turn, gave the graduates a few hints about the theory of government with pointed reference to current problems.

Using the analogy of the New Deal to a card game, Glass was given vigorous applause as he declared:

"Whether it be a New Deal or an old deal, it should always be a square deal—not too many cards to one and too few to the others.

"You young men and women, who are going out into the world today, when you are asked to accept a new idea, should pause and inquire whether or not, just because it is new and popular, it must necessarily be right.

"Everything is not right whether it be a New Deal or anything else.

"Your president," said Glass referring to a previous address by Tuft's College president, John A. Cousens, "has made allusion to the value of representative government.

"That is what we should have.

"With the new theory that a United States Senator should consider only his own ideas and conclusions I utterly disagree.

"With that, that a Senator would represent his sovereign State in Congress, I agree.

"But he reserves to himself, also, his own belief and conviction in the integrity of the Constitution and a determination not to be swayed by the clamor of the multitude."

Man Who Wired Order To Stop Warfare Dies

Between You and Me

Precedent Raises Query as to Mitchell's Blast; Politics Trap Hopkins

By Raymond Clapper

THE Administration won a questionable victory when it smothered the charges of contract fixing involving Postmaster General Farley a few weeks ago.

A young woman secretary in a New York contracting company telephoned a United States Senator one night about midnight. He boarded the next train for New York and returned bearing affidavits which alleged that Farley was throwing business to that company, operating through its contact man in Washington. Newspaper reporters who have written columns of testimony during Senate lobby investigations scanned the affidavits and noted such a familiar realistic ring to them that they assumed of course Farley would insist on full investigation to disprove the charges.

As the Senator who obtained the affidavits happened to be Huey Long, the Administration laughed them off. They said it was just Huey.

But the skeleton still is in the closet.

Far away in the Mississippi backwoods a woman was talking with Eastern visitors last week.

"When Huey Long produces a paper on those folks up in Washington he has something, you can bet on that," she said. "I hope he keeps on doing it."

Such charges are more effective when suppressed, often, than when exposed.

* * *

The point in recalling that episode is that the Administration appears inclined similarly to smother the charges of Ewing Y. Mitchell, who has just been ousted as Assistant Secretary of Commerce. First, the Administration several times offered him sinecures at good pay in the RFC. He refused to be hushed. Then he was thrown out.

Now he is making his charges that there was something peculiar in the way Mr. Roosevelt directed that his old yachting host, Vincent Astor, and his distant cousin, Kermit Roosevelt, and their associates in the shipping business be let out of their contractural obligations involving maintenance of the Leviathan.

Mitchell is not a world shaker as an executive. He is not even a very smart politician, and when he went against the buzz saw of Tom Pendergast, the boss of Missouri, in the 1934 primaries, he was chopped up. Still he was among the first to work for Roosevelt's nomination in Missouri, and he was urged to become Assistant Secretary of Commerce when all he wanted was a quiet diplomatic job somewhere.

* * *

When such a man makes the charges he is making, you would think the Administration would insist upon thoroughly airing them. The Department of Justice supposedly has been investigating them, but won't talk. Secretary of Commerce Roper, against whom the accusations also fall, refuses to comment.

The Administration tried to steamroller confirmation of Mitchell's successor. Republicans began to protest, and Administration leaders hastily sent the nomination back to committee "to avoid the appearance of haste."

Perhaps, on second thought, the Administration will remember the unfortunate skeleton which has been hidden in the Farley case and will this time permit the Senate to drag the facts out and see what they really are like.

* * *

A week of cruising about the country on the other side of the Chinese wall that isolates Washington, offers evidence that matters of this kind bite into the minds of the average voters. They do not become so much excited over the furious shadow-boxing among higher politicians, keynoters and political and editorial writers over whether Mr. Roosevelt is out to scrap the Constitution. So far as the ordinary person is concerned, those discussions are far up in the stratosphere.

People outside of Washington ask about the more ordinary matters. They want to know why Mr. Roosevelt takes his vacations on Vincent Astor's yatcht. That question was asked by one old fellow whose nearest neighbor was a mile away. They want to know what Mrs. Roosevelt is like. Her public activities figure quite prominently whenever women begin talking politics.

The political activities of the Roosevelt boys—James and Elliott—also provoke comment. At the recent Texas meeting of Young Democrats, Elliott tangled with Gov. Allred, the scrappy young Texas executive, causing Texas newspapers to refer to him as the Duke of York. One Democratic newspaper remarked acidly that "the Young Democrats of Texas managed to get their meeting over without including Sistie and Buzzie on the program."

All of this reflects a marked decline in the popularity of Mr. Roosevelt, which brings to the surface criticism about minor matters that had passed unmarked during the earlier days of enthusiasm.

Few would attempt to predict what will happen next year as a result of this drift. So much depends upon how successful Mr. Roosevelt is in the meantime in reselling his leadership to the country.

* * *

Another contrast between sentiment as it was observed a year ago and now is that interest has subsided in the Glory Hallelujah, evangelical aspect of the New Deal.

The politics being played is much more conspicuous now. The works program is seething with it. Harry Hopkins, who despises having to play politics, is finding his hand forced time and again. He has to deny it, but he knows that the Mississippi works relief set-up has been turned over to a Bilbo Baptist preacher because Senator Pat Harrison is facing a hard fight for re-election and needed Bilbo's help. To make it hurt more, Hopkins had to do this in face of the fact that the present Mississippi relief administrator, who normally would have taken over the new works administration, was a man he had recommended for the job.

He knows that in Missouri, the new works program has been turned over to a puppet of Tom Pendergast, the Missouri Democratic boss who makes a fortune out of political contracts and whose support is needed next year.

While pious speeches are being made about there being no politics in the works program, candidates for public office next year are putting the heat on the Administration and forcing it to give ground. High and noble words are heard in Washington, but out in the country, on the receiving end, politics is saturating the task of sustaining the unemployed and you sniff a scent in the air that certainly didn't come from a flower garden.

* * *

Sir Wilmott Lewis, the astute London Times observer, who knows more about American politics than most Americans, says that in addition to finding it difficult to see the wood for the trees, he can hardly see the party now for the Democrats.

New G.O.P. Rally Urged to Offset Grass Rooters

Progressive Republicans were urged yesterday to call a regional or national conference to offset the conservative utterances of the Springfield grass roots convention.

The suggestion was put forward by W. Kingsland Macy, former Republican State chairman of New York, and William Zeigler, jr., former treasurer of the New York Republican State committee. They talked with a number of Progressive Republicans in Washington yesterday and said later it would be fatal for the "conservative, or Hoover" wing of the party to continue to assert itself as the spokesman for the Republican Party.

"It is necessary that the Progressive Republicans should express themselves if we are to have an amalgamated and successful party," said Macy.

"There is a widespread belief that the 'grass roots' gathering expressed only the feeling of the conservatives, or Hoover wing of the party. Many of us do not believe that the party can be successful if dominated by these ideas and we propose to have a gathering, large or small, as yet undetermined, to which the Progressive Republicans can express what they consider to be the true issues and the proper line of conduct.

"As yet we have reached no determination as to the exact date, but my idea and hope is that it will take place some time in August. Nothing could be more fatal than for the conservative or Hoover wing of the party to continue to assert itself as if it were the only factor in the party, and certainly nothing could be more tragic than for it to ignore or eliminate the Progressive Republican element."

Macy and Zeigler were luncheon guests of Senator Hiram Johnson and discussed the situation with Senators Borah, Norris and Nye.

One Prisoner Wounded As Six Attempt Break

Canandaigua, N. Y., June 17 (AP).—One man was shot and seriously wounded today when six persons, en route from Attica Prison to Auburn Prison in a chartered bus, rushed their four guards in a desperate attempt to disarm them and escape.

The other five were subdued and the bus driven to the Ontario County Jail at Canandaigua. Eugene Buehler, of Rochester, was shot in the stomach and taken to Memorial Hospital here. His condition was reported serious.

Relieve Periodic Pain and Discomfort

"Next time" try Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets.
These women tell you how good they are.

MRS. CAROLINE NEWMAN
Rt. #1, Barboursville, West Virginia

The modern woman can't be bothered with cramps and menstrual discomforts. Periodic upsets are not going to interfere with her normal activities if she can help it. And she can.

Next month try Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They relieve periodic pain and discomfort such as backache and headache. It's silly to suffer when the trial size is only 25 cents. At your drug store.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets for painful periods. I used to suffer severe pains in my back and had to stay in bed most of the day. Your Tablets were recommended by a friend. Since taking them I am greatly relieved of the pains."—Mrs. Caroline Newman.

Was In Bed Two Days

Mrs. Sara Stearns, 676 West Willis Ave., Detroit, Michigan says: "All during the month I felt fine until those terrible pains came. I used to stay in bed two days. Your Tablets stopped the pain and I recommend them highly."

"They Stopped the Pain"

"Every month I was in bed a day or two. These Tablets stopped the pain. I am not bothered any more."—Mrs. Grace L. Botonis, 1761 East 105th Street, Los Angeles, California.

Mrs. Bob Mobley, 3105 Belmont Ave., Tampa, Florida says, "My back used to bother me periodically. Your medicine is wonderful. I have no more trouble."

Move Reported To Rank Navies On British Base

By the Associated Press.

London, June 17.—A move to make the British navy the permanent "measuring rod" for all the principal navies of the world was seen in diplomatic quarters today as a result of the disclosure Germany has agreed to permit the regulation of the size of her navy by Great Britain.

(A Paris dispatch said France has told England she cannot agree to Germany's naval rearmament program. In Berlin, German officials said they would proceed to build up the navy as fast as is possible. Italy has taken the position that Berlin's plans should be discussed at a conference of signatories of the Washington Naval Treaty.)

From reliable sources it was learned that Britain alone will set the pace for Anglo-German naval construction on a 100-35 ratio agreement.

Details Veiled.

Details of the agreement were not divulged by the Anglo-German naval delegates who met at the Admiralty during the forenoon to continue drafting a pact, but members of the delegations confirmed reports of a prearranged agreement under which the Germn navy will be maintained at a ratio of 35 per cent of the British tonnage.

Well-informed French quarters said they understood that Great Britain will act as dictator of the German navy, and stated the agreement has raised the question of basing all naval ratios on a constant relationship with British effectives.

In deference to Japan, it was learned, the British government would prefer to put the question of ratios into the background while hopeful other nations will be willing to make public their long-term building programs.

Would Stress Programs.

Great Britain, authoritative sources said, is still standing by the United States on general naval limitation, taking the view that ratios are a "necessary evil," but preferring that stress be laid upon building programs.

Commenting on the reported Anglo-German naval agreement, diplomats expressed the belief that Germany's acceptance of British guidance in raising or lowering their tonnages on a 100 to 35 ratio would tend to break down any French and Italian suspicions of such a pact.

The French and Italian governments have delayed comments on the proposed naval pact between England and Germany.

on one basis and another on a different basis.

John C. Gall, associate counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, told the Senate Labor Committee he believed the measure to be unconstitutional.

"There is no legal distinction between a delegation of authority in the field of Government contract and a delegation generally as was done in the recovery act," he said.

O'Neill, tall, genial, bald, was receiving congratulations on his appointment yesterday and not a little sympathy from some NRA persons who have "been through the mill."

Family Job Man.

O'Neill was perfectly willing to answer personal questions. He described himself as a Republican and said he was a "dollar-a-year man who isn't even getting the dollar." He said he never joined "movements" and had no interests outside his job and his family, which consists of Mrs. O'Neill and three children, all living in New York.

O'Neill is vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. He came to Washington on a leave of absence last December to take charge of NRA personnel work. His leave from the bank will expire September 1, but may be renewed.

The new NRA boss was born in Pittsburgh in 1881. At a very early age—there were no child labor codes then—he went to work as office boy for the Bradstreet Co. For 22 years he was with the Carnegie Steel Co. and he has been with the New York bank for 17 years.

FHA Forecast to Give 3 Million Jobs in Year

Kansas City, June 17 (AP).—A. O. Eberhart, of Chicago, special representative of the Federal Housing Administration, predicted today the FHA program will put 3,000,000 men to work within a year.

"Already more than 1,000,000 homes have been modernized and renovated through FHA loans, and more than 600,000 men have received employment from this work," said Eberhart, former Governor of Minnesota.

"We expect a great impetus in repair and modernization work from a modification of title one, which makes provisions for loans up to $50,000 for such work in factories, business houses, apartments and similar buildings."

Carpenter Confesses To Slaying of Three

San Diego, Calif., June 17 (AP).—Karl G. Richey, 50-year-old carpenter, confessed today he had slain Mrs. Pearl Margaret Eguina, 37, and her two small sons, Karl and Patrick, by shoving their car over an embankment near Barrett Dam, last March, Undersheriff George Brereton announced.

Richey was arrested at Phoenix, Ariz., Saturday. He had been sought since last October, when the skeletons of Mrs. Eguina and her two sons were found near the wreckage of an an auto at the foot of the embankment.

Mitchell's Letter on Ouster

Excerpts from the letter written to President Roosevelt on May 30 by Ewing Y. Mitchell, ousted Saturday as Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and made public by him yesterday are as follows:

"Whether I continue in my position as Assistant Secretary of Commerce is of small moment to me. I was reluctant to accept the position and was drafted for the place. I undertook the duties of the office in the hope and expectation that I might be able to accomplish some real constructive work for the New Deal and for honest and efficient government. Almost from the beginning of my term of office, however, I was met with the active hostility of the entrenched special interests, who fattened at the public crib during past administrations and who have marked me for slaughter because I have consistently opposed their efforts to continue their predatory tactics under your Administration. * * *

"In your inaugural address you told the Nation that the money - changes were to be driven from the temple. When I reluctantly agreed to take a position in your little cabinet, I resolved to do all in my power to aid you in carrying out the policy you had announced.

"But instead of there being a New Deal in the Department of Commerce, Secretary Roper has supinely surrendered to the special interests that have dominated this department, and the old shipping board under the Hoover and previous Administrations. Instead of driving out the money-changers, he has invited them in. They are entrenched here now and every effort on my part to oppose their raids upon the Treasury, to compel restriction of public funds unlawfully disbursed and to reorganize and reform the inefficient bureaus assigned to me for supervision has been met with indifference or active opposition upon the part of the Secretary. The whole atmosphere of his department has been to white-wash and cover-up the delinquencies of the past and to accede to every demand made by the high-pressure lobbyists and representatives of selfish interests, irrespective of the merits of the case. Common honesty and the vital interests of the Government have been repeatedly subordinated to expediency and currying favor with such interests . . .

Urged Reforms.

I soon learned that the Steamboat Inspection Service, the Bureau of Lighthouses and the Coast and Geodetic Survey were suffering from extravagance, waste and dry-rot. I have repeatedly urged Secretary Roper, orally and by written memorandum, to appoint some New Dealers to key positions in those bureaus so that the needed reforms could be carried out, but up to date and after more than two years of your administration, in the Bureau of Lighthouses and the Coast and Geodetic Survey, with a personnel of approximately 10,000 and annual expenditure of $50,000,000, not one single member of our party has been appointed to a key position. The Bureau of Air Commerce and the Steamboat Inspection Service have been partially reorganized, but much remains to be done, particularly in the latter service, where inefficient inspection probably contributd to the Morro Castle disaster.

It may well be that the lives of Senator Cutting and those who died with him in the recent airplane crash might have been spared if one with knowledge, experience and stability suited to the position had been in charge, for the last two years, of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

It is in the administration of the Shipping Board Bureau, however, that the greatest abuses and the possibility of scandal seriously reflecting upon your administration have been allowed to continue and develop. In the beginning, Secretary Roper set up an advisory committee of three members to handle the functions of the old Shipping Board under my supervision. A good start was made toward honest and efficient administration. Two of the members of the committee were in thorough sympathy with and gave loyal support to the policy of driving out the money-changers. We soon ran into opposition from the racketeers, however. Gen. Saltzman was allowed to resign in disgust and I was superseded by Director Heimann, who was acceptable to the same group of shipping men who have been exposed in the investigations conducted by Senator Black's committee and by the Postmaster General. This marked the complete surrender made by Secretary Roper to the predatory interests that had fattened in the past on the extravagant mail contracts, construction loans and other subsidies, so severely condemned in your recent message to Congress. * * *

There is one outstanding transaction that recently has been consummated by Secretary Roper which I feel in duty bound to bring to your notice. I refer to the execution on March 19, 1935, of the contract with United States Lines Co. (Nevada) providing for the permanent lay-up of the Leviathan.

Cites Leviathan Contract.

It is stated here in the Department, and the official files tend to corroborate the statement, that this contract was made at your direction (see memorandum from Director Peacock to Solicitor Trimble, attached.) If this is true, I am satisfied that this action on your part was taken without full knowledge of all the fact and without full damage to the best interests of the Government such action entailed. Moreover, I do not believe you were advised before the contract was executed, of the letter written by the Acting Comptroller General of the United States to Secretary Roper under date of March 12, 1935, seven days before the contract was executed, on the laying-up of the Leviathan, in which he pointed out that the United States Lines Co. had received a subsidy of over $3,000,000 from the Government less than four years ago to insure the continued operation of the vessel for a period of five years. The Acting Comptroller said: "Now it is proposed to subsidize the non-operation of the vessel for the remaining two years by waiving liquidated damages that would accure for failure to operate the vessel in the years 1935-1936 to the extent of $1,300,000 in addition to $920,000 accrued for the years 1933-1934." This would make total liquidated damages of $2,220,000 due the United States (see copy of Acting Comptroller General's letter attached, page 8.)

Under terms of the contract executed by Secretary Roper the Government is to receive payment of $500,000 scattered over 12 years, without interest, in return for waiving the amount of liquidated damages above stated.

It may be asserted that a consideration for the waiving of this $1,720,000 is the promise to construct a vessel, but as the Acting Comptroller General pointed out, this would not constitute a valid consideration for the following reasons: First, if the vessel is not built, the company would lose a lucrative mail contract with the Postoffice Department, and as the Acting Comptroller General states in his letter (page 22), "such being the case there would be a total lack of consideration moving to the United States in the proposed agreement;" secondly, the vessel does not have to be constructed unless the company can obtain a loan of $7,000,000.

This is a plain attempt to make a gift of Government funds without any consideration whatever to those interested in the company, prominent among whom are P. A. S. Franklin, John M. Franklin, Voncent Astor and Kermit Roosevelt. I fear that your approval of this contract, if you did approve it, must have been obtained through misrepresentation or the withholding from you of vital facts in the case. * * *

"Interests" Back of Ouster.

I apprehend that one of the reasons why certain persons have urged my removal from office is because of my vehement opposition to transactions like the laying-up of the Leviathan, which are against the public interest, but which are desired by selfish interests. Because of that attitude on my part, I have become unpopular with the racketeers, including their representatives within the department itself, and I am persuaded that the moves to require my ouster have been inspired and fostered by such predatory interests.

I firmly believe that a congressional investigation of the Department of Commerce along the lines and with the vigor pursued by the late Senator Walsh in the Tea Pot Dome oil scandal would develop the existence of conditions that would amaze the country and disclose that the loss that has been sustained by the Government would far exceed in value the amount involved in the Tea Pot Dome oil scandal.

The conditions existing in this department to which I have referred are well known to Secretary Roper. I have brought them to his attention both orally and in writing. The issues involved are not mere differences of opinion—mere differences in viewpoint—as you may have been advised. Our differences go to the very essence of what is good government and what is common honesty.

Accordingly, as a matter of principle, I do not see my way clear to tender my resignation and thus make it easy for the chiselers and racketeers to rob the Government. I have resisted the removal of certain loyal public servants who, as pointed out in my letter of yesterday, will, in all probability, be dismissed as soon as I am out of the way.

Divorce Suit Filed By Colleen Moore

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, June 17.—Colleen Moore, film actress, filed suit late today for divorce against Alfred P. Scott, charging that he had shown a harsh attitude toward her, and had systematically avoided her.

Scott, a New York broker, married the actress in 1932 in Florida. It was her second marriage.

Miss Moore filed the divorce action under her legal name of Mrs. Kathleen Morrison Scott.

Miss Moore charged that Scott twice left New York and went to Bermuda to avoid her, and that when they were together he was offensive to her friends.

Woman Fined $45.

Accused of resisting arrest and attacking two policemen, Helen Sanderson, 40, of the 1400 block of Girard street northwest, was fined $45 in Police Court yesterday when arraigned on charges of assault and intoxication.

Mitchell Charge Of Graft Faces Probe in Senate

Vandenberg and McCarran Ask Investigation of Ship Contracts.

an unusual procedure Saturday the committee was polled an hour or two after the President submitted Johnson's name, and a majority agreed to approve the nomination. But that was before the Mitchell charges were made public.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the Commerce Committee, called that group to meet today to consider the Johnson nomination and decide whether to inquire into the Mitchell charges. Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, a member of the committee, however, will insist that the committee call Mitchell to hear his charges and any evidence he may have.

In the event the Commerce Committee fails to take cognizance of the Mitchell charges, Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, revealed he is prepared to demand that the accusations concerning favoritism in ship subsidies be investigated by the Black ocean and air-mail subsidy committee. He believes that this committee should undertake an inquiry at once, since it has developed an understanding of the problem, but out of Senatorial courtesy he is willing to let the Commerce Committee handle the matter if it will.

Leviathan Case Cited.

Foremost in the charges hurled by Mitchell is that Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, over the protest of the comptroller general, signed a contract in March permitting the United States Lines to lay up permanently the giant liner Leviathan and waiving $1,720,000, which otherwise would be due the Treasury as liquidated damages for such failure to observe a previous contract.

Mitchell, in a letter to President Roosevelt on May 30, made public yesterday, contended this was "a plain attempt to make a gift of Government funds without any consideration whatever, to those interested in the company, prominent among whom are P. A. S. Franklin, John M. Franklin, Vincent Astor and Kermit Roosevelt."

Kermit Roosevelt, son of "Teddy," is a fifth-cousin of President Roosevelt and the only member of the Oyster Bay or Republican Roosevelt clan to take a friendly attitude toward the present White House incumbent. He congratulated the President at the time of his election, is reported to have deprecated the hostile attitude of other members of his family and has been on fishing trips with the President aboard the Vincent Astor yacht Nourmahal.

Vincent Astor, now head in this country of the famed and wealthy Astor family, has been a staunch supporter of President Roosevelt. He is one of the few wealthy neighbors of the President in the Hudson River Valley who has supported him.

On several occasions the President has gone on lengthy fishing trips aboard the luxurious Astor yacht, Nourmahal. In addition Mr. Astor in 1933 founded the weekly magazine Today, which at the time was dedicated to giving the country an understanding of the New Deal. Raymond Moley, then Assistant Secretary of State and regarded as the number one man in the Roosevelt brain trust, was named editor of the magazine and has since continued in that capacity.

Several weeks ago Today published an article by Secretary of Commerce Roper citing the necessity for a strong, efficient American Merchant Marine subsidized by the Government. Editor Moley in the same edition indorsed the Roper articles.

Statement Issued.

The only notice the Roosevelt Administration took yesterday of the Mitchell charges was the following statement by the Commerce Department:

"The Secretary of Commerce, referring to allegations appearing in the afternoon papers made by former Assistant Secretary Mitchell against administration of the Department of Commerce, said that these allegations are similar to those which had been previously submitted to him by Mr. Mitchell and which were promptly brought to the attention of the Department of Justice with the request that they be promptly and thoroughly investigated by that department."

Attaches of the Justice Department said the charges made on various occasions by Mr. Mitchell in the past were being investigated. The White House was silent, informally pointing out that it was a matter to be handled by Secretary Roper or the Justice Department.

Along with the correspondence which Mitchell made public yesterday was a statement in which he said that "it is unfortunate, but none the less true, that the Department of Commerce is not the only department in Washington where the ideals of the New Deal have been strangled, improper favoritism and graft abound, where there is apparent evidence of corruption, and the progress of the old steal proceeds unabated."

Mitchell's charges were contained chiefly in the letter he sent the President on May 30, refusing to resign his post, as requested the day previously. The President requested Mitchell to resign in order to give him a free hand to reorganize and make more effective the transportation service of the Federal Government by naming as an Assistant Secretary of Commerce "a man of large executive and administrative training."

Correspondence between the President and Mitchell revealed the latter first asked for a personal interview with Mr. Roosevelt. In that letter he said he had given Postmaster General James A. Farley on May 14 certain memoranda concerning the Commerce Department which "are full of dynamite and may explode at any time."

Finally, he enumerated his charges in a five-page closely-typed letter to the President, pointing out he was being harassed by the Pendergast machine in Missouri and that he had refused an offer of a legal post with the RFC at his same salary, but with less onerous duties.

But he contended he had never been a job-seeker, had been "drafted" for assistant Secretary of Commerce and ever since taking the position had "met with the active hostility of the entrenched special interests, who fattened at the public crib during past administrations and who have marked me for slaughter because I have consistently opposed their efforts to continue their predatory tactics under your administration."

He then swung into his charges that Secretary Roper had "supinely surrendered" to special interests and that his every effort to stop "raids upon the Treasury" and to compel "restitution of public funds unlawfully disbursed" had met with "indifference or active opposition upon the part of the Secretary."

Made Over Protest.

In emphasizing the contract permitting the laying-up of the Leviathan, Mitchell pointed out that this agreement was made over the protest of the Comptroller General. He cited a letter to Secretary Roper from R. N. Elliott, deputy comptroller general as of March 12, last.

This letter, made available for public inspection yesterday by the Comptroller General's office, contains a detailed story covering 22 pages of the Government's disastrous financial experiences with the Leviathan. Under a contract with the Shipping Board the United States Lines, when they were controlled by the Chapman interests in 1929, agreed to make 13 voyages annually for 10 years with the Leviathan.

Penalties for default on this provision consisted of $150,000 for each voyage missed and if the Leviathan made less than three voyages annually the Chapmans agreed to pay the Government in addition liquidated damages ranging from $2,500,000 for the first year down to $250,000 for the tenth year.

The Chapman interests were unable to meet their obligations under this contract and in 1931 the United States Lines were taken over by the Dollar-Dawson-International Mercantile Marine interests under a modified contract, which in May, 1932, the Comptroller General asserted "does not appear properly to protect the interests of the Government."

This contract wrote off $5,278,500 of the United States Lines' indebtedness, waived all interest for three years and required only seven voyages annually for five years by the Leviathan, with the penalty for default set at $10,000 for each voyage missed, with additional damages for failing to make as many as five voyages a year of sums ranging from $1,000,000 the first year to $800,000 in the fifth year.

$5,600,000 Paid.

The letter pointed out, incidentally, that the Chapman interests in two years paid the Government interest and principal amounting to $5,600,000 while the Dollar-Dawson-International Mercantile interests from October 31, 1931, to December 31, 1934, had paid "less than $300,000."

The contract signed in March, which is now under fire, relieved the operating company of paying liquidated damages totaling $2,220,000 for failure to operate the Leviathan.

The Comptroller General's office held the contract would not be binding on the Government because "officers of the United States are not authorized to modify the terms of a contract which has been entered into, if such modification will be prejudicial to the interests of the United States" and because the contract was without any actual consideration.

The letter pointed out that the new operators of the United States Lines were relieved of interest for three years, "which in effect amounted to a subsidy of over $600,000 per annum for the continued operation of the vessel for a period of five years"—and added that "now it is proposed to subsidize the non-operation of the vessel for the remaining years by waiving liquidated damages that would accrue for failure to operate the vessel during the years of 1935-36 to the extent of $1,300,000 in addition to $920,000 accrued for the years 1933-34."

Although it was Mitchell's charges regarding the Leviathan contract which stood out in his letter to President Roosevelt, he said yesterday he will give specific details of some of the other charges made in that letter, such as the "extravagance, waste and dry-rot" in the Steamboat Inspection Service, the Bureau of Lighthouses and the Coast and Geodetic Survey."

He is expected to reveal details of the case of two steamboat inspectors who were found to have taken gratuities from a steamship line. Mitchell will allege that the only discipline administered to them were transfers from their post at San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Portland, Oreg., and Albany, N. Y.

A more serious incident included in his charges is one that steamboat inspectors at Galveston permitted a passenger vessel to leave that port with two blades of her propeller missing. He is expected to have more to say, also, regarding the Morro Castle disaster and the airplane crash which cost the life of Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico.

Cardenas Tells Aims of Mexico To Rotarians

Nation's President, Opening Convention There, Asks Understanding.

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, June 17.—President Lazaro Cardenas opened the twenty-sixth convention of Rotary International today with a brief speech in which he asked the delegates to understand Mexico.

Three thousand visitors heard the president discuss the economic and political conditions of the country.

Flanked by generals and prominent political figures, Cardenas entered the palace through lines of soldiers in dress uniform and with bayonets fixed.

Delegates enthusiastically applauded the president's speech, which was translated into English. The reply was made by Robert Hill, of Columbia, Mo., president of Rotary International.

President Cardenas, fresh from a political triumph, told the visitors he was "glad you are here" because Mexico has nothing to hide or "to make her ashamed in the face of other nations of the world."

Taking cognizance of criticism abroad of Mexico's social and economic program, Cardenas declared the country was proud of its laws, "which are looking for the salvation of the oppressed and the exploited," and is "proud of the educational system, which is designed for the benefits of most."

The new laws, he said, are designed to "impede conflicts between capital and labor."

Cardenas said that the principal aim of his government is to eliminate social inequality and especially to aid the Indian classes.

Paul P. Harris, of Chicago, president emeritus of the convention, made a plea for international understanding.

During the evening the Rotarians —5,000 of them—attended a show in Chapultepec Park, where 700 Indians danced and sang.

Smallpox Mounts In Flooded Area

7 Cases Listed in Southwest Nebraska.

By the Associated Press.

McCook, Nebr., June 17.—Smallpox rode into southwestern Nebraska today on the heels of the latest Republican River flood, which caused at least one death.

Seven cases of the disease were reported in the Benkelman vicinity. Physicians also continued making inoculations against typhoid fever.

Near Benkelman the body of Mrs. Harold Mosier, 34, Kansas farm woman who was drowned in last night's flood after a cloudburst, was washed ashore. Hope was abandoned that her 5-year-old daughter, Betty Jane, who also was swept away by the torrent of water which rushed down a canyon, would be found.

Meanwhile, the latest flood swept east, inundating sections of Cambridge, Holbrook, Arapahoe and Edison as the wtaer receded at McCook and points west of here. It was less severe than the flood which swept this area two weeks ago and caused more than 100 deaths and property damage of more than $13,000,000. Only minor losses were caused at McCook, but new highways and railroads were damaged badly by the new torrents.

Test of Guffey Bill Awaiting Passage

Attorneys Doubt Legality of Coal Control Plan.

By the Associated Press.

Lawyers for a group of Southern soft coal producers, gathered here for a Ways and Means sub-committee's hearings on the Guffey bill to create a "little NRA" for the bituminous industry, said yesterday they intended to test the bill's constitutionality immediately, should it be enacted.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, expressed confidence its constitutionality would be upheld.

The sub-committee, meantime, heard Judge Henry Warrum, counsel for the mine union, defend the bill's constitutionality and Representative Snyder (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, urge its speedy enactment.

At President Roosevelt's request, to give Congress time to consider the bill, the United Mine Workers called off a strike set for yesterday.

Courteous Prisoner Held for Grand Jury

Testimony of Detective Watson Salkeld, of the Fifth Precinct, yesterday held Tonie L. Blankney, colored, suspected pickpocket, for grand jury action when he was arraigned in Police Court on charges of attempted robbery.

Salkeld said that Blankney was the "most polite" prisoner he ever arrested. The detective, assigned to crowds during the Shrine convention, was standing near Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, last Thursday.

He felt something in his trouser pocket, turned and grabbed Blankney's hand, he reported.

"Excuse me, boss," the suspect was quoted as saying.

Boy's Model Airplane Flies for 9 Minutes

Ufa, U.S.S.R., (U.P.).—With a new fuselage model airplane of his own construction, Volodia Boikov, a 14-year-old Soviet boy-designer, established a new world record for distance flight for this type of model aircraft. Young Boikov's miniature plane remained in the air 9 minutes and 48 seconds and traveled 2,010 yards.

At the same time, 15-year-old Lena Boikov, sister of Volodia, set a similar record for women. Her model flew 88 yards in 55 seconds.

President's Talk on Relief

Following is a stenographic report of the talk made by President Roosevelt yesterday to the State works progress administrators:

We are all engaged in a common task and I think we can be quite informal in talking about it. There are only one or two points I want to mention. The first, of course, relates to the broad objective, what might be called the main objective of this program we are engaged in. And it does not require very difficult arithmetic for the average layman to understand it.

We have to divide 3,500,000 men into $4,000,000,000. Almost anybody can understand that. In other words, Congress has given us $4,000,000,000. The objective is to put 3,500,000 men to work during the coming fiscal year.

That means a great many heartaches for people who have very expensive projects. They might just as well recognize that. You are going to have a great many difficulties and heartburnings because you will have to turn down a lot of splendid projects all over the United States. I assure you, however, that you are not going to have any more difficult time than I am having already from people all over the country who have projects that are very worthy—projects that just do not fall within the arithmetic of the situation.

Problem in Arithmetic.

Therefore, I feel it is incumbent on us not only to explain this problem of arithmetic to the people who have these projects, but also to explain to the people as a whole, in every State of the country, so that they will understand why it is necessary, in attaining this objective of ours, to say "no" to requests that do not fall within the arithmetic.

In other words, outside of a handful of what might be called strictly Federal projects such as the Bonneville and the Fort Peck dams; the deepening of the Mississippi and the channel in the upper Missouri, and a few others of that kind which total only a very small portion of the $4,000,000,000, practically all the rest of the money must be spent, on the average, at the rate of somewhere between $1,100 and $1,200 per man, which must of necessity include everything—not only the amount we pay the men themselves, but also the amount that the materials cost, as well as the overhead costs. Translated in another way that means that given "X" State we find out the number of people on the relief rolls and we call that "Y." Then we make a quota allocation. That quota we call "Z" and there are your three factors: "X" the name of the State, "Y" the number of people on the relief rolls, and "Z" the amount of money we can spend on them.

That is your job and ours. I should say probably it was even more your job than ours because each one of you knows the possibilities within your own State better than we can know it here in Washington. We must look to you and we are going to look to you for advice. The chances are we will take it. In regard to the spending of this allotted money, the responsibility is going to be very, very largely on you to see that the money goes around and accomplishes the objective given us as a mandate by the Congress of the United States. That is to put all the people on the relief rolls to work within the coming year.

Wants Dole Abolished.

We want to get rid of the dole. We believe that the dole is destructive of all that is best in our citizenship and we want to make people feel that they are no longer in the bread line—no longer getting things for nothing. We want them to feel that they are getting work, even though the amount they get in pay for their work is somewhat below, in most cases, what they would be able to earn in private jobs.

That brings up the second point. We want, in so far as possible, to have every relief administrator make every effort to get the unemployed into private industry, even if it means slowing down or stopping some of the jobs we have undertaken. We should not hesitate for one single moment to stop a certain number of projects if people are taken back into private industry. There will be a certain number of our works that can be closed down temporarily or stopped just where they are without very much loss. This whole thing very largely will depend upon the close cooperation with local authorities everywhere—Governors, mayors, county officials, and various State agencies. It is a Federal administrative program and, of course, the Federal Government is ultimately responsible. You are responsible because you represent the Federal Government and yet at the same time we can not conduct it successfully unless we get co-operation and joint effort on the part of all the localities.

The second point I make is that we have to be extremely careful not to make any kind of discrimination. We can not discriminate in any of the work we are conducting either because of race or religion or politics. Politics, so far as we are concerned, is out. If anybody asks you to discriminate because of politics you can tell them that the President of the United States gave direct orders that there is not to be any such discrimination.

Order Has Two Sides.

That applies both ways. It means, we can not hurt our enemies nor help our friends. We have to and will treat them all exactly alike. In carrying out this work, consider it purely and solely from a human point of view. Do everything you can to prevent the use of political considerations, one way or the other.

Finally, in regard to the projects themselves, we want them to be as useful as we can make them. We have all seen the work that was done in a very great hurry in the late fall and winter of 1933-34. Of course, a lot of that was thrown together. It was made work. It was invented work. A great many municipalities and counties had only a week or two weeks to decide what they had to do. They did the best they could. The extraordinary thing is that in view of the shortness of time so much of that work was actually useful.

Today we have all that experience behind us. Of course, there will be a great many large projects, but we must keep to that mathematical figure of 3,500,000 people and $4,000,000,000. We must always keep that mathematical figure in mind.

This morning I saw a delegation from a certain State—Senators and Congressmen—who were most anxious to have a dam built. They said this dam had the approval of the congressional committees from six States. I said, "Fine; what will be the cost per man employed?" There wasn't one of them who could answer that question. The were for the dam and it is a grand project. But actually the first year's work on the dam would cost, if done in the regular engineering way, about $3,000 to $3,500 per man employed.

Obviously, if we go ahead with that particular dam, a brand-new project, it means we have to offset and reduce other projects to somewhere around $500 or $600. Therefore, it probably is not a practical thing for us to do if we keep our arithmetic in mind. I think we can get across to the country the very simple proposition that we have a mandate from Congress to put 3,500,000 people in this country to work for $4,000,000,000. I said to this delegation:

Proponents Back Down.

"I am all for this dam; I think it is a very important project on a very important river in the United States. It is going to prevent floods and so forth, but, in order to do it, I would have to increase the allotment to your particular State by $10,000,000 or $15,000,000. Are you willing to ask me to take $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 away from the other 47 States of the Union and give it to your State?" They said: "No, we can't ask that."

That is a very imple answer to people who would ask you in your several States to exceed the allotment. We have only so much money, and if anybody gets an excess allotment it means that the other fellow of necessity will have to pay the bill. That is why I stress the need of making clear to the people in your own States the common objective—the congressional intent, your intent and mine to put these unemployed to work during the coming year for a given sum of money. This sum is not elastic but definite; a fixed appropriation of the Congress.

We naturally want to decentralize and give you people authority, just as much as we possibly can. The responsibility really is yours in the first instance; it is only ours in the very ultimate instance.

Harry Hopkins and I are considering offering a medal—a medal to the State administrator who causes us the fewest headaches.

Help Willingly Offered.

We are ready to answer questions and to help you out with any problem you have on your hands. Except, probably for a few days' holiday occasionally, between now and the first of July, 1936, you will find Harry and me on the job practically all the time. So, if any problems arise, do please, if we can help you, let us know about them.

We will give you 100 per cent cooperation and on your shoulders rests not only a great responsibility, but also, I think, a very splendid opportunity to do a fine service for this country.

We all hope there is going to be a very definite and distinct pick-up all over the United States. We are working slowly but very surely toward the elimination of the major unemployment problem we have had during these past few years. Of course, we always will have a certain number of unemployed with us, but nothing like the present scale, we hope. And this year, I believe, is going to be the beginning of the picking up of the greater part of this unemployment slack from which we have been suffering.

It is very fine to see you. Bless you all. I hope you go to it with your coats off and that the dirt will begin to fly very soon.

Works Billions Parcelled Out At White House

President Gives Control of Fund to 48 State Aids of Hopkins.

obstructive to all that is best in our citizenship."

The President added that every administrator should encourage workers to go into private industry and that projects should be abandoned, if necessary, rather than that workers on these projects should be kept from private employment. He was emphatic in urging that administrators should cooperate with local and State officials.

"This is a Federal administrative program," he said, "but we can't conduct it successfully without cooperation."

Cautious About Politics.

"We must be careful about discrimination in regard to politics," the President said emphatically. "That is out. If anyone asks you to play politics, you tell them that the President of the United States gave direct orders that there is not to be any such dissemination."

The President said that the whole program must be considered "solely from a human point of view."

President Roosevelt then went into a brief discussion of the old CWA under which 4,000,000 were put to work for a brief period on "made" work.

"We want these projects to be as useful as we can get them," the President said. He pointed out that CWA had been organized in a hurry and that work had been "invented" for the purpose.

"The extraordinary thing about it," he added, "is that so much of this work was useful."

The President declared that while there will be some large projects, there must be many "elastic" local projects.

"Try to make them as useful as possible," he repeated.

In turning the major part of the program over to the Hopkins organization, the President said:

"We want to decentralize. We want to give you people as much authority as we can."

Laughingly, he said "Harry and I" are offering a medal for the State administrator "who gives us the fewest headaches."

"Harry and myself will be on the job all the time from now until the end of the works program on July 1, 1936," he said.

In conclusion, the President said: "We all know that there is going to be a very definite pick-up all over the United States. We are working slowly toward elimination of the major employment problem. This year is going to be the beginning of a pick-up of the greater part of the unemployment slack."

Observers of the employment program felt that the President had left no doubt that the plan will be nearly identical with the CWA and that it is now widely separated from the original program. It has become apparent that the Public Works Administration will play a very minor part from now on. Work obviously will be "made" to fit the requirements of each locality and this will be work on which there will be a minimum of material cost. It appears doubtful whether housing, rural electrification, grade-crossing elimination, reclamation and other expensive projects outlined at the beginning will be undertaken in any great numbers.

President's Leeway Great.

The works law specifies these and other types of work, but it gives the President great leeway in transferring money from one quota to another. Under the original plan all projects were to come through the allotment board and to receive the personal approval of the President. Although there has been no announcement of a change in program, the question has arisen as to whether all the small "elastic" local projects to which the President referred, will have to go through this channel or whether their approval will be left generally to the State administrators.

One of the first jobs of the State administrators, it is believed, will be to turn over to the works program most of the 2,500,000 now working on work relief projects under the FERA. Much of this work is expected to come under the head of "elastic" local projects. Many more will be absorbed by the CCC, which has begun recruiting its strength up to 600,000, double its present number.

Thus probably not more than 1,000,000 employable persons will remain actually to be put to work on new projects. Under the plan of transferring workers and projects together from one administration to another it will be possible to make a tremendous showing within the next few weeks.

President Roosevelt has referred repeatedly to the Alabama plan as being one of the best. Thad Holt, both relief administrator and works progress administrator for Alabama, explained the plan yesterday.

He said that 52,000 men in his State already are working on FERA projects, leaving only 6,111 employables on the relief rolls without work. He said most of the 52,000 would be transferred to work relief and that the only difference would be that they would be paid straight monthly salaries under the new setup instead of amounts based on their needs.

Holt described work already being done and which will be continued as building small bridges and culverts, repairs to school houses, work on rural unpaved highways, street paving, work on community buildings, and drainage for malaria elimination.

Holt said that in connection with schoolhouse repairs, community buildings and similar work, most of the materials are "donated" by communities. He said he was "shooting at" a cost of $700 per year per man, including material costs.

Hopkins, in addressing the administrators and their aids behind closed doors, warned against politics but added that the administrators probably would be accused of "buying the election." He warned them to make as few mistakes as possible.

Other FERA officials, most of whom had experience with the first CWA program, talked to the workers. Today and tomorrow they will be divided into small groups, according to sections of the country, to discuss local problems.

The FERA reported that urban relief rolls dropped 1.7 per cent between April and May. The reduction, it was said, was due mainly to improved business conditions.

Film Actress Divorced.

Los Angeles, June 17 (U.P.).—Mrs. Darleen Flesher, film actress, who testified Charles Flesher called her "a lousy wife" and "one time kicked me clear out of bed," was granted an interlocutory divorce decree by default today. Flesher is a radio musical director. Mrs. Flesher is known on the screen as Darleen Verjean.

"Dodge Is the 4-Star Economy Hit," say BLOCK and SULLY.

"We'll say Dodge gets our applause for giving 20 miles or more per gallon of gas," assert Eve Sully and Jesse Block, famous radio comedy team, pictured above. And owners everywhere are reporting remarkable economy from the new Dodge.

Thomas S. Baldassare, Yonkers, N.Y., says: "I heard about the remarkable economy of the new Dodge before I put in my order. But the actual performance of the Dodge is more convincing than any report. I'm getting more than 19 miles per gallon in regular driving."

And Mrs. R. G. Eyerly, Chappaqua, N. Y., says: "I can't understand how I get so much mileage per gallon in a car as big as a Dodge. I'm getting 4 more miles per gallon and saving 20¢ on every dollar I spend on oil."

Don't deny yourself the satisfaction you can have with a big, New-Value Dodge, now that it's priced just a few dollars above the lowest-priced cars.

Farm Youths, Here for Rally, Feign Boredom

'Not So Much,' Says One 4-H Club Sightseer of the Monument.

Farm boys and girls aren't what they used to be. As urbane and sophisticated as young people living in the heart of the Capital were the 160 rural youngsters, members of 4-H Clubs from 40 States, who climbed to the peak of Washington Monument yesterday noon. A good many of them were frankly bored with the proceedings. Most of them were indifferent. One actually said the monument wasn't so much.

"The Chrysler Building in New York is a lot more thrilling," declared Floyd F. Crosby, of Rock County, Wis., one of the best young calf and pig raisers in his community. "This elevator is slow. Now the one in the Chrysler Building zips to the top in a couple of seconds."

The boys and girls, all of them sturdy looking from their active participation in farm life, seemed not only sophisticated, but showed a pronounced taste for esthetics. Panoramic views of the city from the monument's small, high windows failed to hold their attention long. They clustered before the grilled opening which looked down on the Lincoln Memorial.

"That's the most beautiful thing in Washington," said Dorothy Koehler, of Franklin County, Mass., proficient in canning and baking. Dorothy went up the monument again yesterday afternoon to gaze down once more on the memorial.

Looks Like Black Onyx.

"The water in the reflecting pool looks from here like black onyx," Winfred Barton, of Walker County, Ala., said in a lazy voice.

The girls in their cool green uniforms and the boys, dressed for the most part in white, had a full program before they reached the monument at 11:30 in buses.

Yesterday, the fifth day of their seven-day national camp, started off at 6 when reveille was sounded at their tents on the Mall near the Department of Agriculture. After such details as flag raising, tent inspection, and breakfast, the young people dashed over to the Department of Agriculture's auditorium to hear an address on "Rural Health," by Dr. Mark V. Ziegler, of the United States Public Health Service.

Then came a delegates' conference, educational tour No. 7, otherwise known as the trip to Washington Monument; a State leaders' conference, a broadcast from the United States Marine barracks, and luncheon.

Lincoln Memorial Visited.

The main event of the afternoon was educational tour No. 8, which consisted of a visit to the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Pan American Union and Lincoln Memorial.

Preceding dinner another State leaders' conference was held. In the evening dramatic night was celebrated at the camp.

Leaders said they had no difficulty in getting the boys and girls to leave the camp promptly yesterday morning for the day's heavy schedule of activities. The tents were so hot the young people were glad to get away.

"They're not so bad at night," said tall, blond Arthur Roehringer, of Middlesex County, New Jersey. "They're really rather pleasant then," added Arthur, who has built up a prosperous retail trade for eggs and dressed poultry.

Today the 4-H Club members attending camp will hear an address by Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau; will visit the cathedral and the natural history building of Smithsonian Institution; will have a party tonight at the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Lyddane Case Put Off to Fall; Boland Guilty

Alleged Conspirator Gets 3 Years, 9 Months From Judges.

Lee, Washington Herald reporters, cited for contempt, filed an answer to the citation today. In it they announced they would fight the case on the grounds that the citation is unconstitutional and a violation of their rights. Declaring that the lack of a sworn affidavit and complaint setting forth the charges against them is a violation of their rights under article 5 of the United States Constitution, the fourteenth amendment, and the Maryland declaration of rights, counsel for the reporters asked that the contempt citation be dismissed.

American Newspapers, Inc., publishers of the Herald, also filed answer to the contempt citation through Elisha Hanson, Washington attorney. Declaring that the citation was vague as to the parties referred to, the report referred to, the "particular cause" which "alleges that the court has been embarrassed" and the administration of justice obstructed, the answer says:

"American Newspapers, Inc., respectfully states . . . that it neither has the desire nor the intention, to obstruct the administration of justice in this honorable court or in any cause whatever pending before this honorable court and that if, by any publication, it has embarrassed this honorable court and thereby obstructed the administration of justice by the honorable court, it is ready and willing to make apology therefor both to this honorable court and by publication.

City Editor Fails to Answer.

Ray Helgeson, city editor of the Herald, had filed no answer at the close of the court day. He was also cited for contempt. Michael Flynn, managing editor, is mentioned in the return made on behalf of the Herald.

The Herald, on last Wednesday morning, printed a story saying that the court, sitting in private, had found Boland guilty. At that time no verdict had been announced.

State's Attorney James Pugh today refrained from comment on the cases and Stedman Prescott, counsel for Mrs. Lyddane, also refused to comment. Anne Lyddane was tried on charges of conspiracy to murder her husband. After nine hours the jury was discharged, having failed to reach an agreement.

Japan Denies Plans For Chahar Action

By the Associated Press.

Tientsin, China, June 17.—Japanese army officers united in a statement tonight, declaring false reports that "the Japanese army is planning drastic steps" in China's Chahar Province.

Tokyo's leaders in this section of north China denied reports they had rejected China's proposals for peaceful settlement of a recent incident at Changpei, Chahar Province.

Lieut. Col. Y. Ishii, chief of staff of the Japanese garrison in Tientsin, said, "Sung Cheh-Yuan, governor of Chahar Province, appears sincerely anxious to settle the incident through conciliation. The matter will be treated locally."

Lieut. Col. Ishii refused to state the status of Chahar affairs, but said "we expect to be able to announce something in a few days." He asserted Japan does not demand that Sung Cheh-Yuan's army evacuate Chahar. Other Japanese officers here maintained a tight-lipped silence.

House in Drive To Clear Tasks Before July 15

Tax Bill Passed, 9 Others Sped as Speaker Calls for Action.

117. Immediately after the Speaker's appeal, the House knuckled down on the AAA amendments, under a rule that should see them carried to passage today.

Bending to the will of their leader, House members continued in session until 7 o'clock last night, then agreed to meet at 11 this morning, an hour earlier than usual.

Several breaks in the badly congested congressional legislative situation brought predictions of a mid-July adjournment from both sides of the Capitol. Some members were skeptical, however, especially in view of White House intimations that further NRA legislation may be sent to the Capitol.

Developments that may make for early adjournment were:

The impasse in the House Military Affairs Committee over the TVA bill extending the scope of the Tennessee Valley Authority and fortifying it against constitutional tests, was loosened by a "compromise" that will be offered to the full committee today. A substitute bill may be introduced bringing TVA spending more closely in line with General Accounting Office standards.

The House Interstate Commerce Committee, its preliminary work on the utility holding company bill virtually completed, prepared to meet tomorrow for action on a measure reputedly providing a modified form of the drastic holding company elimination proposed in the Senate bill.

The Senate moved under a liberal debate limitation toward early action on the President's social security bill, providing old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and public health aids, already passed by the House.

Senate leaders said frankly that the only bar to the mid-July adjournment date set by Speaker Byrns is the Eccles bank bill, which has passed the House, but is still seriously contested in a Senate banking sub-committee.

Lists Vital Measures.

Speaker Byrns enumerated ten measures on which the House should act before adjournment, but would not say they were "must." They are:

The nuisance tax extension, approved yesterday.

The AAA amendments, now the unfinished business of the House.

Wagner labor disputes bill, to be considered later this week, under rule.

TVA extension.

A bill extending the Federal Alcohol Control Administration in some form and enacting liquor code features into law.

Approval of the $501,991,000 nuisance tax extension came under a suspension of House rules, permitting only 40 minutes debate on both sides of the aisle, and no amendments.

Outstanding among the two-year extensions were continuance of the 1-cent-a-gallon Federal levy on gasoline; 3 cents instead of 2 for out-of-town postage, and a 10 per cent tax on movie and theater admissions.

"In spite of this recommendation, your committee believes that these taxes and the higher postage rate should be removed as soon as the condition of the Treasury permits," said Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee. "That time has obviously not arrived as yet."

Off the floor, members of the committee made clear there will be no other general tax legislation this year, unless it is urgently requested by the President. Chairman Samuel B. Hill, of the special tax sub-committee, said his group has no intention at present of considering special inheritance and gift taxes proposed by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to meet possible bonus payment.

Hill said existing revenues, fortified by proposed extensions, would take care of the "ordinary" expenses of government, with a small balance left over. No attempt will be made this session to finance approximately $3,500,000,000 in emergency expenditures, he intimated, insisting, however, that any substantial business pick-up would go a long way toward meeting this debt under current schedules.

Total Treasury receipts exceeded the "regular" Government expenditures by $100,000,000 for the first 10 months of this fiscal year, the committee pointed out.

Speaker Byrns took the floor in the interval between passage of the tax bill and consideration of the AAA amendments. He had intended to make only a brief appeal, but held the floor against a crossfire of questioning by members.

"I will say to the gentleman that I think other considerations ought to be kept in mind than speed," interrupted Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), Michigan.

"Undoubtedly," replied Byrns. "I do not want anybody to understand that I am advocating passage of these bills without giving them the fullest consideration."

Mapes sardonically suggested "that all of these bills be put into one omnibus bill and that we vote upon them as we did this afternoon on the tax bill."

Clash on Lobbying.

An assertion by Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, that "Washington is full of power lobbyists" who are trying to block action on the utilities holding company bill and the TVA measure, brought a quick retort from Chairman Sam Rayburn, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee. He said his group had spent five months on the utility holding company bill because the measure is one that requires the fullest consideration.

Speaker Byrns said he was making no effort to hurry committees now working out the details of legislation.

"If we expect to adjourn at anything like a reasonable time, I submit to members on both sides of the aisle that we have to make a few more sacrifices in time," he said. "We have to come here perhaps a little earlier and we certainly have to sit a little later and perhaps have night sessions."

The Military Affairs Committee will meet this morning in an effort to reach a compromise on the deadlocked TVA bill. Concessions leaders are said to be willing to include provision for strict TVA accounting, under standards laid down by Comptroller General McCarl, a requirement that TVA comply with private company standards in prescribing power rates, and extension of the present $50,000,000 bond issuance capacity, instead of raising it to $100,000,000.

Member units meantime have been called on by the United States Chamber of Commerce to urge substantial modification in the Wheeler-Rayburn bill now before the House Interstate Commerce Committee. The chamber seeks regulation rather than elimination of holding companies.

remaining 15 per cent rests with an arbitration board of three members, one to be chosen by the union, another by the company and the third by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

During the strike the company maintained its normal power supply.

A United Rubber Workers Union strike went into effect in the Wilson Rubber Co.'s plant at Canton at midnight last night.

Karl P. Herbruck, assistant plant manager, said the factory would not be reopened until union pickets are withdrawn. He said the concern, which employs between 100 and 150 persons, had been negotiating with a union committee and reached an agreement when the union lodged a new demnad to reinstate a discharged employe.

Coleman C. Claherty, president of the United Rubber Workers Union at Akron, asked the Federal Government to assign a conciliator to Akron to avert a threatened strike at the General Tire & Rubber Co., where 1,200 are employed.

The general local of the union voted yesterday in favor of a strike, Rex Murphy, its president said. The union claims the concern laid off workers contrary to a promise made in settlement of a strike last year and that the company broke off negotiations on a new seniority clause asked by the union.

Professor at Amherst To Talk on Kloeb Bill

Dr. Phillips Bradley, professor of political science at Amherst College, will be one of the chief witnesses when the House Foreign Affairs Committee this morning takes up the Kloeb bill to outlaw loans and extension of credit to nations not allies of the United States.

Representative Frank L. Kloeb (Democrat), of Ohio, author of the bill, also will testify.

The committee will consider a similar neutrality bill filed by Representative Maverick (Democrat), of Texas.

"To Create Attitudes."

A brochure describing the Institute of International Relations now in session at Duke University announces that a principal aim is "to create attitudes of international good-will and understanding." With this balanced objective it is not surprising to find that the sponsor of the institute is the Society of Friends. For all the dignity and restraint of the Quaker philosophy is implicit in those quiet words; to create attitudes of international good-will and understanding.

Promotion and publicity are essential parts of many of the "institutes" which blossom forth in summertime to cater to the insatiable curiosity of the American public. Those organized with the help of the American Friends Service Committee pursue a less spectacular but perhaps more purposeful course, in keeping with the even-tempered spirit of the denomination. The idea behind them is that many people interested in world peace might serve as effective promoters of the cause if they were better informed on the magnitude of the problems involved. To this end, teachers, ministers, students and community leaders are invited to attend meetings at which competent authorities discuss matters of politics, economics, history and sociology. Added to this, there is a presentation of the spiritual basis of the struggle for peace.

Six years ago the first of these institutes was opened at Haverford College. Besides this charter institute and that now in session in Durham, N. C., seven others are under way this year; one at Wellesley College in Massachusetts; one at Atlanta, Ga.; others at Northwestern University in Illinois, at Grinnell College in Iowa, at Reed College in Oregon and at Mills and Whittier Colleges in California.

In all, less than 2,000 persons are attending these Quaker meetings. That is not a great number. But just as the influence of the Society of Friends can not be measured by its relatively small membership, so the effect of these institutes is likely to be more far-reaching than the attendance implies. In them a carefully developed technique operates on a foundation of unselfish sincerity. With this combination man has often moved mountains.

True Reverence.

It is a simple enough matter to work up enthusiasm for a celebration when the calendar marks a centennial anniversary. Last year Maryland staged elaborate pageants to signalize the tercentenary of the founding of the State. This was to have been expected. Three hundred years is a long time in the history of any Commonwealth and one to be marked with all ceremony.

What is not so usual was seen at St. Mary's City on Sunday, when the 301st anniversary of the founding of Maryland was observed. There, where the Ark and the Dove first put in, Gov. Nice and a company of citizens paid tribute to the original Marylanders, founders of the illustrious Free State. Where first the principles of freedom of speech and freedom of worship were laid down and where freedom of conscience is now memorialized by a thought-provoking statue, full honor was paid where all honor is due, with little regard for ordinary pageant routine or formula.

The Treasury And The Franc.

The mystery enshrouding the operations of the Treasury's stabilization fund has been slightly dissipated by the Governor of the Bank of France, M. Tannery.

In an exuberant speech delivered at the meeting of the directors of the Bank for International Settlements at Basel, he asserted that Secretary Morgenthau's willingness to supply dollars to the exchange market during the recent currency crisis enabled the Bank of France to release gold and kept dollar exchange rates from soaring to disastrous heights. There was imminent danger that the exchange rate might get out of hand, he said, and thus lead to sudden devaluation of the franc or an embargo upon gold shipments. According to M. Tannery, our opportune assistance broke the backbone of the crisis.

What is chiefly important in this technical and fairly detailed account of the embarrassments confronting the Bank of France is the evidence afforded of our Government's desire to save the currencies of the gold bloc nations. Those present at Basel are said to have been much encouraged by our active intervention to prevent further demoralization of world exchanges. It is regarded as a long step toward the goal of an international stabilization agreement.

While hopes of such a consummation may be somewhat premature, the hints recently thrown out by Treasury officials show an increasing willingness to consider stabilization proposals. The Governor of the Bank of France at any rate seized the opportunity afforded him by the French crisis to make a strong plea at Basel for "restoration of world economic equilibrium by a stabilization of moneys and a resumption of normal commercial relations among various nations."

The Social Security Bill.

Former President Hoover doubtless had the pending social security bill in mind when he told the graduating class at Stanford University, on Sunday, that "there are no short cuts" to the goal which that legislation seeks to forward. A more complete argument, however, would have considered the disadvantages inherent in making no progress whatsoever in the field of scientific unemployment relief. And it is the failure to move at all, rather than over-rapid movement, which has for many years been the outstanding American characteristic in this field.

In this connection a brief survey of the British effort to provide social security is most instructive. It is now almost half a century since the British government tried, and found wanting, a policy very similar to that which Mr. Harry Hopkins inaugurated for this country in the CWA. In 1886 Great Britain started the provision of local relief works for the "respectable unemployed." It was the complete breakdown of this early effort to disentangle the problem of unemployment from the problem of pauperism which led to the careful legislative program since introduced by stages in the British Parliament.

Between 1905, when the first public employment exchanges were established in Great Britain, and 1920, when unemployment insurance was extended to cover some 12,000,000 manual workers, progress was steady and almost independent of political changes. The Employment Exchange system was made Nation-wide and efficient as a basis for the operation of unemployment insurance. Health insurance and old-age pensions were considered on their separate merits and separately organized. When the depression came Great Britain had a well-rounded and flexible social security system which, whatever its shortcomings, has proved of infinite value in bringing that nation through the depression without any real danger of serious social disorders.

What Great Britain took a generation to accomplish, we are now trying to do within the span of a single Administration. The blunders in the bill now before the Senate are obvious and glaring. It introduces in one lump a complicated and heterogeneous program which tries to bring us up to date in this field almost overnight. In England every intelligent citizen knew the implications of every separate step in the social security program before it was undertaken. It is safe to say that not 10,000 people in the entire United States could today give any intelligent summation or appraisal of the omnibus bill which the Senate is due to pass this week.

That is the situation, and it unquestionably justifies Mr. Hoover's remark that "universal social security can not be had by sudden inspiration of panaceas." But the blame for the ostrich-like attitude of America toward social security is not to be pinned on the Roosevelt Administration. And it is scarcely effective for those who made no progress in this direction to condemn their successors for indorsing dubious short cuts.

Moreover, some of the defects in the pending bill have been overdrawn. It will be six years, for instance, before the old-age insurance system gets into full operation and before then, if the scheme is to prove at all workable, it will receive the very considerable amendment it needs. The rate of progress in unemployment insurance depends on State action, and as they come to see clearly what is involved unduly rapid action by many State Legislatures need not be anticipated.

None can argue that this omnibus bill in its present form is legislation to be proud of. But a large part of the blame for its complicated character rests on those who delayed action in this field when preliminary steps could have been so reasonably and easily accomplished. And to view the present endeavor from a narrowly partisan viewpoint would at this stage be deplorable.

Skillful opposition can still achieve highly desirable revisions, such as insistence that workers contribute to the costs of their own unemployment insurance. But opposition should be directed to making the legislation more practical. The problem of scientific unemployment relief is too fundamentally important to be made a football of politics.

Taxing To Destroy.

Representative Pettengill, a member of the House sub-committee in charge of the utility holding-company bill, favors an intercorporation tax of 2 per cent on the dividends of holding company units. This is viewed as an alternative to the "death sentence" imposed by the Wheeler bill which recently passed the Senate. Such a substitute measure would be as indefensible in principle as direct forced dissolution of holding companies, without attempt to distinguish between the good companies and the bad.

Under the Pettengill plan the 2 per cent tax on dividends would be applied at all stages from operating company to the topmost parent company. While such a tax would bear less heavily upon the simple type of holding company, and might not lead to immediate dissolution of more intricate forms of organization, it would be imposed with the intention of hastening disintegration of the holding company structure.

Although many instances could be cited in which the right to tax has been used to destroy, such abuses of the taxing power can not be condoned. In this case Congress is confronted with a clear cut issue: namely, whether the holding companies are to be regulated or eliminated. If the holding company bill should pass the House at the insistence of the Administration, in substantially the form approved by the Senate, Congress will at least have revealed its destructive intentions. In that case owners of holding company securities will be forewarned and will take steps to protect themselves insofar as they can.

A certain doom of this sort would be more desirable than a lingering and uncertain existence made increasingly difficult by invidious, undiscriminating and confiscatory forms of taxation.

The Blue Eaglet.

The new organization will probably not have much to do except mark time until it is known what, if any, legislative action the next session of Congress will take to extend or expand the functions of the recovery administration. That was intimated by President Roosevelt when he said that, "so long as there is a possibility of further legislation, it will be desirable to maintain the general structure of the recovery administration in Washington and in field offices and to retain those essential members of a trained personnel who can be usefully employed."

Under the new set-up two divisions are to be established, one to study the effect of the codes upon industrial and labor conditions, and the other to supervise voluntary agreements conforming to the requirements of the new recovery law. The former, the Board of Review, will inevitably fall under suspicion of being on the lookout for evidence that abolition of the codes has encouraged social retrogression. No matter how well trained or conscientious the division's personnel may be, employes taken from the defunct NRA are apt to be biased unfavorably in their interpretation of current business developments.

Since the resolution extending the life of the NRA until next April provided for restoration of the anti-trust laws, industry will have no selfish incentive to maintain NRA codes dealing chiefly with matters relating to hours and wages. The Division of Business Co-operation will doubtless find plenty to occupy its time. But it will act in a purely advisory or admonitory capacity.

The appointment of a special assistant to the recovery administrator, representing labor, and the presence on the newly established advisory council of three well-known labor leaders (one of them President Green of the A. F. of L.) provide absolute assurance that any widespread efforts to lower wages or raise hours in disregard of the standards set by the vanished codes, will be given widespread publicity. Thus, the new skeleton organization may indirectly have considerable influence upon the conduct of business during the coming months, and bring pressure to bear upon Congress for extending the scope of its activities to the limit permitted under the Constitution.

Potential G-Men.

Twenty-four boys from the East Side inspected the Bureau of Investigation here Sunday as a finishing touch to their course of study in law enforcement at the University Settlement in New York City. This inspection tour of Government facilities and methods of tracking down criminals climaxed a series of practical demonstrations at Tombs Prison, as well as attendance in police headquarters and various courts of law. These boys, all under 16, presented a heartening contrast to yesterday's news story of the three New York youngsters who killed a man after stealing a policeman's revolver. The Boys Anti-Crime Council, founded primarily for the purpose of instilling in its members respect and a broader conception of the law, hopes thereby to prevent such acts of violence as this, as well as those of a more petty nature.

Departing from his habitual taciturnity regarding the activities of the Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover made a speech and posed for news reels with the youthful enthusiasts of law and order. Up to now, this nemesis of public enemies has foregone any ballyhoo tending to direct attention or admiration to his men except insofar as their success in line of duty made it inevitable. It has been his custom to outline the bureau's policy by deed rather than by word.

However, the wisdom of turning the arm of the law into a glad hand is beside the point. What was more apparent was Mr. Hoover's unusual absence of logic when he told the boys that if they "studied hard, played hard and lived clean," he'd be proud to have them as his helpers. At the rate his bureau has been cleaning up public enemies it would seem that there shouldn't be any need for G-men by the time these lads reach maturity.

Einstein refused to address a Philadelphia audience that had just listened to several speeches. He probably felt that they had already gained a better impression of infinity than he could give them.

It seems that no matter what the weather does in Kansas, it does it with entirely too much enthusiasm.

The law of supply and demand doesn't operate in all cases. The demand for living doesn't decrease with the rising cost of it.

Clarence Darrow says there's no such thing as hell. And we'd been thinking that the depression had hit everybody.

On Rented Horses.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to call your attention to the deplorable condition and treatment of many of the rented riding horses in the District. Curb-bits are often used with the snaffle, and a curb-bit and spurs used by an inexperienced rider cause unnecessary pain. The owners of the riding stables in some instances send horses out several times in the same day. Riders wait in front of the stables for horses to come in. It must be their unthinking ignorance that permits them to take out a tired horse.

Isn't it possible for riders to ask for fresh horses, to be sure there are no sores under the saddle or girth, to refuse the curb bit if unnecessary, and to use it moderately when necessary? Can't they realize a horse is not a machine with an iron mouth and unlimited strength and willingness? And that many are unused to jumping, and perhaps too old and too stiff?

It is a pleasure to watch a good horse ridden by a careful rider. Some of the rented horses are good and put in good hands only. This is a plea for the unfortunate ones—unfortunate both in owners and riders. But isn't it possible to have a better standard both of care of the horses by the riding stables and by the riding public?

Friend of Uncle Elby.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Replying to G. R. Cooley in The Post of June 15 I will say that I have known Uncle Elby (H. Elba Eastman) intimately for many years and up to three years ago, when I moved here, I was with him practically every day. Uncle Elby is a lumber merchant at Platteville, Wis. He is a good citizen, interested in civic affairs; he likes children, dogs and most people.

The photograph did not do justice—he had been ill the night before, and with sightseeing and the hot weather he was very tired when we arrived at The Post studio for the interview and photograph.

He has a rare sense of good humor. Everyone who met him while here was delighted. He enjoyed his visit, and on leaving he said to me, "Washington is the finest place I ever saw."

Missed Opportunity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I saw in The Post several months ago that Jim Farley said he was going to take time off during the Shriners' convention to get acquainted with Washington, and, therefore, expected to see him riding the NRA Pelican in some of the parades. What was the trouble? Was his fez too tight, the bird too hungry or the sands too hot?

I think he missed a glorious opportunity.

District Divorce Law Amendments.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Representative Palmisano's objections to the none-too-liberal amendments to the District divorce law calls for observations on two important matters. These are the anomalous position of a voteless, unrepresented District and the unscientific, if not often inhuman, method by which divorces must be obtained. Politically, residents of the District must accept laws passed by legislators whose views may range from moral indignation over teaching Darwin's theory to provincial state chauvinism which is concerned primarily with conditions and votes back home and only incidentally or secondarily with the welfare of the District.

Does not Representative Palmisano realize that, as member of a District committee of the House, he should be obligated in considering social legislation designed exclusively for the people of the District, to put their welfare before all other considerations? His injection of chauvinistic Marylandism into the discussion of improving the District divorce law is not only no credit to himself but an indictment of the unimproved, if not antiquated, divorce laws of Maryland. Shall the District have to wait until Maryland divorce laws are, if ever, improved before it will have improvement in this respect? Under given conditions, why should Maryland standards prevail any more than those of Virginia or, for that matter, of Nevada? The District is certainly entitled to have its own will in legislation dealing with such an important part of its social relations as divorce.

Experience shows that the theological theory that marriages are made in heaven and that it takes only a clergyman's ceremony or a notary's fee to seal marital happiness for life and to set society's approval thereon is not realistic, psychologically sound, or scientific. It is the old question: Is man made for marriage or is marriage made for man? There are generally only three prime factors in considering granting a divorce, namely, a fair property settlement for all concerned; guardianship of children for the welfare of the children themselves; inability or unsuitability of either one or both of the parties to make a success of the marriage from their own natural and sincere qualities and reactions affecting and affected by the mutuality and happiness of the marital status. Certain causes, like commission of a felony, continual drunkenness, insanity, venereal diseases, should allow the aggrieved party, and in some cases the wrongdoer, to obtain an outright divorce with a minimum of court procedure and with no waiting period.

May Representative Palmisano reconsider his opposition and help raise the District divorce law up a peg or two on the scale of decency, if not enlightened treatment of a difficult problem. The happiness of many individuals depends upon the reasonable and economical facilities the law provides for obtaining a divorce; that is, of correcting a mistake that is so human it often causes the greatest individual unhappiness. What possible interest has a civilized society in keeping an unhappy couple together? To argue that it is for the welfare of the children is debatable and open to the merits of each particular case. The economic conditions today work counter to the accepted tradition of family life and they have to be taken into consideration. If they are not, the result is that the tradition will be ignored and definitely weakened.

"Possible" Weakness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Perhaps, the one good that was accomplished by the verdict on the constitutionality of the NRA was to center attention on a possible weakness in the law by which members of the Supreme Court receive, first, their office and, second, their length of tenure.

Is it always safe for a group that is not elected by the people to have the power to kill any law that is passed by Congress and signed by the President—all of whom are elected by the people for limited terms? Is it not sometimes possible for all of the Supreme Court justices, being appointees of Presidents, belonging to one political party and, as their tenure is for life, could such a condition be best for the country, as a whole?

Members of the legislative and the executive branches of the Government are elected by the people for limited terms, and—if this is to be "a Government of the people, for the people, by the people," in a true sense—should the judicial branch, that has clearly shown its authority to dominate the other two, be an exception to the rule?

Mount Vernon Thoughts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As it has been a good many years since I was in Washington, I routed myself via Mount Vernon in order to get a thrill at Washington's tomb. When I arrived there I found everything changed.

Only a synthetic flavor of the original remains. A notice said: "Open at 1 p. m. on Sunday." A high wall excludes any possible view from the outside and outside the wall is the usual quota of antique and curio shops.

The space not occupied by these is taken up with "don't" signs: "Don't Park," "Don't Walk," "Don't Stop," "Don't Sit," etc. The only thing that I saw that could be done legally was to drive on, which I did, feeling that if I waited to get in I would only get a "synthetic thrill" at the tomb—if any.

Whoever is responsible for this Mount Vernon tragedy should have been drowned when he was a pup.

An Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial entitled, "A Job Well Done," which appeared in The Washington Post on the date of June 11, 1935, was read by me with appreciative interest.

The forceful way in which attention is called in the editorial to the fact that "all communities work together in the fight to beat down those who attempt to live by violence and extortion" will undoubtedly have a salutary effect.

Has Congress Forgotten?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several months ago I noticed a news item in your valuable paper that District, National, and Federal American Banks were going to pay dividends to their depositors. Have we been forgotten?

Have the receivers lost interest in us? Is all our money to be used in maintaining a wasteful receivership? What has become of the McLeod bill, has Congress also forgotten the equitable rights of patient, long-suffering depositors?

The Post Impressionist

A Forgotten Pioneer.

Post Office, Tuesday.

MOST moderns are agreed that the boy who stood on the burning deck deserved what he got for remaining there. Most clever moderns call him dumb.

The woman who made him famous died 100 years ago this year—and British centennial celebrators have just failed in an attempt to get up any general "observance" of her demise. As for America, there are indeed few left who remember one of her poems that, once, every New Englander knew.

Yet in her time she was the most popular poet of England. Only 50 years ago, there was scarcely one public school pupil between Eastport, Me., and Greenwich, Conn., who couldn't recite her verses on the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers.

* * *

Thus, in a single century, the reputation of Felicia Dorothea Hemans—plain "Mrs. Hemans" to all her dead adorers—has passed from extreme to extreme.

* * *

It is highly likely that she doesn't care.

For, in spite of what her contemporaries made of her, she had an unhappy existence: the name Felicia was one of life's little ironies. And she had her own opinion of her fame.

* * *

She wasn't an American—Burton Stevenson's "Home Book of Quotations" to the contrary notwithstanding. She was "English-born"—of a Liverpool-Irish father (one George Browne) and a mother apparently Austrian. But on the subject of her sorrows her "mealy-mouthed" biographers are almost completely silent. Those sentimental and specious chroniclers admit merely:

That at the age of 18 she married a Capt. Alfred Hemans, "adjutant of the Northamptonshire Militia"—that he lived with his wife for six years—and that they then separated, the husband announcing an intention of journeying to Rome—whence he never returned.

* * *

Mrs. Hemans (a woman of "great beauty" . . . with vivid chestnut hair and hazel eyes) had to work for a living—and worked to the day of her death, 17 years later. She kept her mouth shut and used her pen—concerning other affairs than her own.

"Her gladness," wrote Rossetti, who contributed prefaces to several of her books, "was like a burst of sunshine, her depression was night bearing stars."

She had, however, been turning out verse since she was 14. Now, though her looks soon faded, her song didn't fail.

Fail? Why, "she was the darling of England, almost revered"—and not alone by the undiscriminating. Scott had admired her. A volume of her poems was "a literary event" compelling respectful reviews in the Edinburgh and the Quarterly. Even Byron praised her. She was treated as an intellectual equal by Shelley, by Wordsworth—later, by Browning.

* * *

Yet she never got over the evanescent Adjutant . . .

* * *

The fact is that Mrs. Hemans is now out of fashion because she wrote on themes which have ceased to be fashionable. With what she would have called "sentiment," she wrote on what she would have called "the affections," "the higher emotions"—resignation, piety, the family-life.

* * *

Well, she did appeal to the ruling predilections of her period; but she made this appeal deliberately—for good or ill, a conscious artist.

She had to be popular, yet she was a woman: to her bread-and-butter audience (and don't suppose that she didn't approve of it!) a woman was "a female," and a female must never be ever so little "indelicate."

So Mrs. Hemans was content to be touching and tender. She left the rougher passions to those writers—such as Mrs. Browning—who were less likely to suffer from depicting them.

* * *

Really, if in no way a great poet, Mrs. Hemans was in certain technical ways a good one. The fantastic rhymes and strange inversions of Elizabeth Barrett were impossible for Felicia Dorothea. An accomplished metrist, she had clarity of diction. She had an excellent taste in imagery.

* * *

Above all, she was a pioneer.

"She struck a new vein and founded," justly says an anonymous critic in one of the English newspapers, "a school. She is the first of a line of women poets, many of higher gifts than herself, who all took from her . . . for their subjects, their coloring, their tone. Her disciples excelled her, yet were much in her debt."

* * *

Nevertheless, while all England was at her feet, she said to one who echoed its praises: "Except for half-a-dozen poems, you can consign my works to oblivion."

Few modern verse writers would be so modest. Few poets of any period have been such clear-eyed critics of their own poems.

* * *

The Check-Off.

ONE of the first problems which will have to be gone into after Mr. Roosevelt sets aside the $50,000,000 to provide some 400,000 youngsters with $12 a month spending money is whether the check-off system should not be applied for the National Students Federation. Several social workers' organizations have been after this $50,000,000 hut the federation, headed by Dr. John A. Lang, will undoubtedly take and very probably is entitled to the credit for getting it.

This being the case it would seem that the federation's dues paying membership must needs be kept up. The 400,000 beneficiaries would not be federation members but, of course, they should immediately join an organization that can bring about such a windfall as this. There can be no valid objection to each one of the youngsters paying $1 of his $12 a month to the federation. Otherwise, how can the federation continue to function and subsequently get the spending money allowance raised to $15?

• • • •

If we were living in the Utopia of which Dr. Lang and others dream, there wouldn't be the slightest question about all of these youngsters immediately joining the NSF. They would show their appreciation for what it has done by immediately sending a dollar to Dr. Lang and in return getting the literature which he has about the problems of youth. But we aren't living in that Utopia. Some of the youngsters therefore, will join up and others will say the NSF can go hang. This lack of appreciation on the part of beneficiaries is the bane of organizers everywhere.

Willie Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and other labor leaders will tell you of the ingratitude of labor. Many a time they have gotten a plant sufficiently organized to get a 10 per cent increase for all the fellows and then when they go around to the nonmembers and say: "You see what we did for you. Now you ought to come in to the union with the rest come in to the union with the members will show no interest in the union at all. That's the reason the union fights for the closed shop by which an employer agrees not to employ anyone who does not belong to the union.

• • • •

John L. Lewis, of the miners, has such an ungrateful lot of constituents, however, that he insists that the employing miners agree not only not to employ anybody who does not belong to his union but also that the employer hold the union dues out of the employe's pay envelope. There is the very plain admission here that after all Mr. Lewis does for the uplift of the miners they won't pay their dues unless the employers deduct it from their wages. Bloody mine wars have been fought over this one point. In fact, in 1933, when it looked as though the miners' union and the employers would not be able to get together, this was the troublesome issue. The employers agreed to the pay and hour schedules and granted union recognition but several of them said they'd be damned if they would agree to collect the miners' dues for Mr. Lewis. This is known as the check-off system. And for several days the brutality of the employers who wouldn't agree to the check-off system was heralded in the press and countless people said why are those employers so cruel that they won't let the miners have the check-off system when, of course, it wasn't the miners who wanted it, but Mr. Lewis.

• • • •

It will be argued that the check-off system for the youngsters is not necessary, because they are educated and will fully appreciate the good work Dr. Lang is doing for them. Educated people have finer sensibilities than the uneducated. Nevertheless, it is a safe bet that unless the check-off is applied some of the youngsters will be found to have greater sensibilities than others and they will join Dr. Lang's union, while the others will spend their whole $12 a month without any thought to the doctor.

The efficient thing to do in this one phase of our national plan is for Mr. Roosevelt to take a dollar a month out of the youngsters' $12 and only send them $11.

China's 'Good Neighbor'

How The Administration Silver-Purchase Policy Has Played Into The Hands Of Japan And Made The United States Unpopular Where Once It Enjoyed The Respect Of China.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai.

THAT delightful piece of legislation known as the Silver-Purchase act, together with the decrease in international purchasing power, are listed as the two chief external forces responsible for China's financial crisis in the 1932-34 budgetary report of the Nanking government released here last week. The act was passed on June 19, 1934. In the following four months nearly Ch. $215,000,000 worth of silver was exported out of China by profit-seekers. The silver stocks of Shanghai, the financial heart of the Republic, declined from $544,000,000 at the end of June, 1934, to $317,000,000 on December 27, 1934. The largest silver exodus previously recorded in this country's history was in 1907, when Ch. $45,000,000 worth of metal was exported.

After continued representations of the Nanking government failed to bring any assurance from Washington that no action would be taken to accentuate the silver drain from this country, Nanking was forced to resort to drastic steps. An export duty and equalization charge were imposed on the exports of the metal, and the Foreign Exchange Stabilization committee was formed to fix the charge and to prevent undue exchange fluctuations.

The economic effects of the Silver Purchase act, avowedly passed to encourage trade with China and to put a chicken into every Chinese pot, were disastrous. An extreme contraction of currency and credit was the first and major result. In the second half of 1934 the interest rates charged by native banks rose from 6 per cent to 26 per cent per annum. Although lower rates have been nominally charged this year, in reality it has been practically impossible to borrow money at any rate regardless of security. According to the finance ministry's report, "the tightness of money has led to sales of foreign exchange for cash at a premium over forward delivery which at times has worked but at nearly 30 per cent per annum for a month's loan."

• • • •

THE silver difficulties have also laid their heavy hand on China's trade, which continued to deteriorate in the last six months of 1934 despite the world-wide recovery tendency. Total foreign trade during the period was 13 per cent below the figure for the preceding six months, and 18 per cent below the corresponding period of 1933. At the same time the value of governmental and industrial securities and real estate has shrunk by 10 to 15 per cent. Bank and business failures and unemployment have become widespread.

Heroic measures have been proposed and many of them adopted to save the Chinese Red Riding Hood from the Silver Wolf of Capitol Hill. These ranged from the fantastic, although widely supported plan for the issuance of $500,000,000 worth of real estate bonds to the adopted increase in the capitalization of three major Chinese banks, simultaneously with the passing of their control into governmental hands.

When the Washington Treasury Department again raised the price of silver at the end of last month, financial Shanghai, to use a homely phrase, "had the jitters." Fortunately, however, the danger of renewed exports of silver was so apparent to everyone, including the all-powerful speculators, that the ministry of finance had no difficulty in securing the tacit consent of foreign banks to abstain from sending the metal out of China.

• • • •

ALL these precautions, however, fail to give China a feeling of security. Everyone here realizes that this country's economic structure is at the mercy of the silver lobbyists, who either do not understand or simply ignore the effects of their playfulness upon China. Disbelief that America could have taken any step definitely harmful to China gave place here to perplexity; the latter is gradually being replaced by indignation.

For the first time in many years Uncle Sam is replacing Nippon and John Bull as the subject of bitter editorials and nasty caricatures. Not many days ago a leading local daily came out with a cartoon of a Yankee in an automobile, whose wheels, inscribed "American silver policy," were grinding Prostrated China into the earth. The American Economic Mission, now touring this country, was also shown in the car, with an expression of complete indifference.

The mission's tour, incidentally, has belied all cheerful expectations. While Chinese officials and business men are providing the usual quota of multi-coursed banquets and receptions, these are accompanied by bitter pills of criticism of the silver policy and threats, often untempered by politeness.

The unfavorable effects of the Silver Purchase Act on Sino-American relations are further accentuated by the extremely clever diplomatic game played here by Japan and England. The "water fowl diplomacy" of Mr. K. Hirota, Japan's brilliant foreign minister, and Mr. A. Ariyoshi, the new ambassador to China, coupled with the economic crisis and the nearness of the Kwantung Army, has brought the two countries nearer together than appears from surface indications.

• • • •

A DIPLOMATIC coup of the first magnitude was also scored by Japan in being the first of the three great powers to elevate its legation here to the status of an embassy, and simultaneously invite the others to join in the recognition of China's "national unification." Great Britain and the United States had no alternative but to follow Japan's suit, thus unwittingly proving to the world—to Tokyo's deep delight—that Japan was the real friend of China.

The Sino-Japanese reapprochement is no longer mere journalistic gossip. It is a very real element in Oriental politics, and forebodes serious developments with which the United States will have eventually to cope one way or another.

British policy has been less sparkling than that of Japan, but it has benefited John Bull in this country. Great Britain's seeming willingness, at a very critical moment, to grant a £20,000,000 loan to China, and her initiative in approaching Washington and Tokyo with a proposal for joint financial aid, have rubbed much of the point from—to put it mildly—"the lack of sympathy" for England entertained here since 1926. Nothing has apparently come out of the loan idea, but a perceptible change in Chinese attitude remains.

• • • •

IN contrast to Japan and Great Britain, Uncle Sam appears to China in the role of a Shylock. The Chinese do not believe that the harm already done, either economic or psychological, can be corrected. They point out, however, that if the Ministry of Finance had some intimation of the level at which silver is going to be stabilized, China could adjust her currency to meet the new conditions. As long as this intimation is lacking China's finances will remain at the tender mercy of Capitol Hill.

Another development, pointed out to your correspondent by a very high official of the Finance Ministry, is that China's difficulties are accentuated by the severe deflation, which shows no signs of abatement. The continued rise in the price of silver is held largely responsible for this situation.

The solution of China's economic riddle lies in silver, and only the Treasury officials in Washington seem to know the answer. The Nanking Government could undoubtedly relieve itself of financial worries by curtailing military expenditures, amounting to 50 per cent of the budget, or by following Europe's example and defaulting on its debt service, which consumes 30 per cent of the revenues. Such steps, however, would not lead China's economy out of the vicious silver circle.

No End of Books

High Jinks.

YOU know there are fashions even in commenting upon books. The one at present in high flower among my brethren of the weary eyes and strained typewriter fingers is to this effect: That it's a bit silly of the publishers to announce each summer a list of light and diaphanous fiction, when in reality—say the commentators—summer is the time to spend a patient three weks over some such opus as Spengler's "Decline of the West" or Pareto's "Mind and Society." Winter is the time for sheer entertainment, as witness the show business.

And it is rather odd, these steamy, sultry days, to find on the shelf a row of books which would raise a perspiration on a snow-bound Eskimo. You read about a strong, grim hero riding hell-for-leather across the sun-baked desert, or you follow the detective as he creeps, gat in hand, into some dark and ominous room which has just been entered by three homicidal gunmen—and it doesn't take an M. D. degree to prophesy the corporeal results. One simply melts away.

But that is all for the best therapeutics. One word of advice, which alone is worth the price of today's column—when you do go in for catharsis via the epidermis, by means of fictional high jinks, see that you get extra salt in your diet. A health officer in Kansas City discovered last summer that a tall, cool drink of saltish water works wonders in reducing the sunstroke rate. Verbum sap.

• • • •

BUT back to literary matters. My two favorite authors of Western fiction are Tom Gill—who lives in town here, bases a rousing story on some such natural and credible conflict as forest rangers vs. rapacious lumbermen ("Starlight Pass," his last book), and who is planning a tale about mahogany lumbering in Mexico — and that grand old veteran, Dane Coolidge.

Mr. Coolidge, at 62, is still writing Westerns of the first water. They are on the traditional strong man, gun-toting pattern, but in them is some of the finest reporting on Western life and color that we have. His latest yarn—"Wolf's Candle" (Dutton, $2)—is set in Mexico in the days of the stormy revolution against Diaz. Down to the mining country there comes tall, red-headed Don Juan Fox — an American who ostensibly is in the business of selling sewing machines, eye-glasses, and a bit of medical counsel when needed, but who has his eyes open on the mines. To the beautiful Elodia Gallardo, he is the fulfillment of a gypsy prophecy that from the North would come a lover to save her from her rascally brothers. This is done in the end, after all the high jinks you could wish.

Mr. Coolidge, of the Massachusetts Coolidges, descendant of John Alden and Priscilla, seasoned animal collector for Bronx Park and our own zoo here, animal photographer, and inveterate traveler up and down the West—has made his sixteenth year a humdinger.

• • • •

MOST of us will read any tale about Washington with the persistent interest of looking for our own face in a group photograph. James Hay, jr., well known in these precincts, tells a lively little mystery yarn in "That Washington Affair" (Herbert Jenkins, London, $2). There is the background of an imminent revolution in a Central American country, the lovely Miss Domenza as Washington agent for the revolutionists, the effort to get the State Department to guarantee recognition to said party, and the brainy Carston Vail as hero through the machinations.

Good point: the sheer, amazing, turnabout intrigue. Not so good points: the violation of union rules in concealing till the end the true identity of the hero, and the fact that the tale has the most queasy curtain line I've seen in some time —"You wonderful man," she whispered, "you wonderful man!"

Kurt Steel's "Murder of a Dead Man" (Bobbs-Merrill, $2) is a swift and snappy tale of homicide, canicide, and kidnaping in New York and suburbs, with a cast of distinctive characters. The detective is cheerfully hard-boiled, the gangster collects fancy walking canes, the gossip columnist is not quite as bright as he ought to be, the retired actress is amusingly bibulous, and the tour de force of villainy is committed by one of the cleverest imposters in mystery fiction.

Swell scene: the detective and his helper, after capturing two gangster kidnapers, start to drive their prizes homeward in the kidnap car —only to be stopped by a dumb Long Island motorcycle cop who has just brains enough to recognize the license number, not brains enough to prevent the gangsters from persuading him that they are the detectives, that the detectives are the villains. It left me in stitches.

Automobile Accident Kills Danville Child

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., June 17.—Roy Henderson, jr., 8, was killed this afternoon when struck by an automobile driven by Dorsey Meade, operator of a golf course near the city. The boy had just emerged from a swim in Dan River and was crossing the river road when the car appeared. The boy dodged and Meade, seeking to avoid him, dodged with him and the child was pinned against a telephone pole. He was dead when he reached a hospital a few moments later.

Meade was arrested, charged with manslaughter and bonded for $1,000. Police said he did not have an operator's license.

Motorist Given 8-Year Term On Girl's Story

D. C. Man Sentenced at Towson for Throwing Her Off Bridge.

By the Associated Press.

Towson, Md., June 17.—William Clark, of Washington, was convicted here today of assaulting and attempting to murder Mrs. Mary Branch, also of Washington, by throwing her into the Patapsco River from a 35-foot bridge near Catonsville. He was sentenced to eight years in the Maryland Penitentiary by Judge Frank I. Duncan.

Clark, appearing in court without an attorney, pleaded not guilty and stoutly denied the charge, but the court, after hearing Mrs. Branch's testimony and questioning him, found him guilty.

The woman said she started with Clark in an automobile from Washington about 2 a. m., May 27. She testified that they turned off the main road and as they neared the bridge, "Clark struck me with some heavy piece of iron and I screamed."

"He said," she continued, "'Don't worry, it'll soon be all over,' and struck me again. Then he dragged me from the car and I clung to him, pleading and crying for him not to throw me over. He struck me twice on the back of the head.

"I became dazed and released my hold. The next thing I knew I was in the water over my head. I struggled till I found a rock and I began to scream again.

"I could hear Clark on the bridge and it was not until after I stopped screaming that he drove away.

"I got up on the bank and thought I was bleeding to death. I made a bandage of my glove and then went to the house from which I was taken to the police station."

Mrs. Branch said she hesitated to leave Washington with Clark at the early hour of the morning, but finally decided to make the trip with him.

"He told me," she said, "that he wanted to see a man who owned a still about making some whisky."

Europe's Movies

By

William Lyon Phelps

COMING over on the ship we were given the opportunity to enjoy a motion picture every day; it began at 5 and ended at 7. As it was a German ship, sometimes the dialogue was carried on in German, while the captions were English; and sometimes the other way around. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which has justly been one of the most popular pictures in America this year, was one of the best we saw on the ship; and it is now being given in Munich, with Gary Cooper, under the title "Bengali."

Another fine picture was "The Masquerade Ball," with a German cast; the title was "Maskerade." That has been immensely popular everywhere in Germany.

• • • •

The pictures on shipboard were also wisely used to explain the construction of the ship, the precautions taken against fire, the use of life preservers, the manner in which one could telephone from the middle of the ocean either to America or Europe, etc. The movies usually began with the graphic representation of information of this kind, and then after some 15 minutes or so the picture for the day was put on.

It is wonderful to think that by means of the voice records and the pictures combined, all those of us who heard Caruso, and those who never heard him can now enjoy his splendid voice. One of the pictures on board was the opera "Rigoletta," and there was Caruso, singing away in the plenitude of his powers.

• • • •

Looking in the theatrical advertisements of my Munich newspaper this morning, I see that Emil Jannings, who has been called the greatest of all tragedians of the film, is playing in a piece called "The Old and the Young King." Greta Garbo is appearing in "The Many-Colored Veil." She speaks German just as easily as English. I think I shall go and see "Men Without Nerves," as that is said to be one of the most sensational of the new pictures.

I advise all Americans who expect to be in Germany this summer to see the movie called "The Triumph of the Will" ("Triumph des Willens"). It helps to explain the success of Hitler in becoming the leader of the German people.

• • • •

Entirely apart from what any one's own convictions or opinions on this subject may be, it is interesting to attempt to understand how the present situation came to pass. This particular picture shows the tremendous crowd in Nuremberg in September, 1934; Hitler arriving in an airplane, his progress through the crowded streets in an open automobile, and his various speeches. It is really better than if one had been there in actuality, for in the picture we have a perfect view, can hear him plainly, and can see every detail of that historic day.

Man Accused As Killer Faces Liquor Penalty

Tom Quesenberry Confesses Moonshine Offense in Alexandria Court.

Alexandria, Va., June 17.—Eleven men appeared before Judge Luther B. Way in Federal Court here today charged with Internal Revenue law violations. Thomas Quesenberry, mountaineer, charged with the slaying of Clarence J. McClary, of the Alexandria police force, and the wounding of a Federal man last March, during a raid on a moonshine plant at Leesburg, Va., was one who pleaded guilty to violation of the revenue laws.

The remaining defendants, who are Clark Hoge, Posey F. Phillips, Raymond Jewell, Charles Clifton Jewell, Shelby Cole, Harry Adams, Robert W. Edmonson, Graham T. Legge, Abraham C. Phillips, James M. Gray pleaded not guilty. Trial was set for Thursday morning.

Police assert Quesenberry shot McClary March 17 from a distance of several hundred yards. Following his capture he told police he didn't want to hurt anybody, but that they were firing all around him and he had to do something to stop them.

The mountaineer boasts that he never misses what he shoots at. Loudoun County officials will try Quesenberry on the murder charge July 1.

Ex-Convict Arrested For Robbery, Assault

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 17.—Armie Carter, colored, recently freed from the Virginia Penitentiary, was under arrest here today on a charge of highway robbery. According to officers, Carter, who has a long criminal record, assaulted Harry Ford at 10 a. m. today at the intersection of Kent and Kern streets, and took $22 from him.

When the prisoner was searched, officers said they found $9.82 and a sack in which the money had been carried by Ford. Carter admitted the charges, according to police.

All-American Grid Star Wed to Virginia Girl

Pennington Gap, Va., June 17 (AP).—Beattie Feathers, all-American gridiron star when a student at the University of Tennessee, and backfield star for the Chicago Bears last season, was married to Miss Inez Williams, of Pennington Gap, daughter of a power company executive, at Tazewell, Tenn., on June 9, it was revealed here today. The marriage was performed by the Rev. Joseph Lambert, of Tazewell.

Feathers at present is enrolled in the summer school at Knoxville, but will come here after completion of the session to play baseball with the Pennington Gap Club in the Lonesome Pine League before going to Chicago to join the Bears August 15.

Towns Push Road Job On W. Va. Route No. 20

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 17.—Plans for completion of State route 20, between Clarksburg and New Martinsville, 60 miles, will be made this week by the Central West Virginia Automobile Club, of Clarksburg, and the Route 20 Boosters' Club, of New Martinsville.

Members of the two organizations will meet Friday at Hastings to complete arrangements for sending a delegation of citizens to Charleston to ask State Road Commissioner E. L. Bailey to see that the road is completed as soon as possible. After completion of 3.7 miles from Wallace to the Wetzel County line a week ago, only a small stretch will remain to be constructed to connect the two cities with a hard-surfaced road.

Watchman Fractures Skull.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 17.—J. R. Nicodemus, 70, a watchman at the J. W. Myers Warehouse here is in the Washington County Hospital with a fractured skull. He was found unconscious and is believed to have fallen down a flight of steps at the warehouse.

Venus stepped down from her pedestal at the Corcoran Art Gallery and sighed enviously. There was a wistful look in her eyes as she patted her hair back into place.

"You don't know what breaks these modern women get," she moaned. "Now, in my day, things were different."

We leaned against a glass case and listened to her plaintive tale.

"Why," she continued, "when I wanted vanishing cream or a new lipstick I had to send that flighty daughter-in-law of mine, Psyche, over to Proserpine's house across the River Styx to get it and, would you believe it, I tramped all the way from Olympus to the Parthenon without finding a single decent Beauty Shoppe! And you know how catty those Athenian newspapermen could be. That awful Aristophanes, who had that scurrilous column in the Daily Gazette, actually said that if I got another wrinkle my face would look like a prune skin.

"But these modern women have all their beauty and personality problems solved by Frances Mangum, of The Washington Post, and she knows ever so much more about beauty than I did." She smiled shyly. "But then, I had my moments. There was that dear boy, Praxiteles . . ."

Well, since Beauty is Truth, Venus was right: Miss Washington does get a break. All she has to do to keep her nose from being shiny or her chins from doubling is to follow Frances Mangum's advice in The Post. Frances knows her cosmetics, whether they're to be used to please a sweetheart, hold a husband, or make the blonde next door jealous. She tells you where to get 'em, how to apply 'em, and, when the date is over, how to peel 'em off. In short, Frances' column is the answer to a perplexed maiden's prayer.

And Handsome being what Handsome does, Frances also advises you on ways to develop your personality . . . how to acquire that charm which will make men want to shower you with attentions . . . and other women long to cut your throat. Even Madame de Stael could have profited from our Frances' column.

If you have wrinkles instead of dimples . . . circles instead of curves . . . girl-friends instead of boy-friends . . . let Miss Mangum tell you the reason why. Follow her advice and you'll have that movie-actress figure . . . that peaches-and-cream complexion . . . those come-hither eyes . . . and a lot more fun. Her column is found each Sunday on the Household Pages of

Jury Names 11 In Indictments At Clarendon

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 909. Clarendon, Va.

Eleven indictments were returned yesterday by the Arlington County grand jury at the opening of the June term of the Circuit Court with Judge Walter T. McCarthy on the bench.

Those indicted and the charges against them are Thomas DeLozier and Robert E. Davis charged with stealing iron from the Union Iron Works valued at $95, Alden Bolyard, charged with attempted felonious assault; LeRoy Grayson, charged with stealing an automobile, the property of L. D. Clay, valued at $300; Robert Johnson, charged with assault upon Nelson Jenkins with a dangerous weapon; Bernard McMahon, forgery; George Nowlin, charged with an assault upon Sandy McDaniel; Dan Brown, with an assault upon one Rachel Robinson, and Robert Cameron, George Taylor and Francis Caton, charged with housebreaking.

Pleading guilty to the charges, Cameron was sentenced to serve six months on the State roads, and Caton and Taylor were each given a sentence of one year and 10 days in the State Penitentiary at Richmond.

Bernard McMahon, pleading guilty to the charge of forgery, was given a suspended sentence of two years.

Grayson, who also pleaded guilty of the theft of an automobile, was sentenced to serve one year and ten days in the penitentiary by Judge McCarthy.

In the other cases the defendants entered a plea of not guilty and dates were set for trial.

Reports yesterday from the three banks in Arlington County revealed that a total of $55,802.34 in loans has been made possible through the provisions of the Federal housing act.

The loans are divided as follows: Old Dominion Bank of Cherrydale, $26,011.84; Arlington Trust Co., $21,790.50, and the Clarendon Trust Co., $8,200.

According to the bank officials, applications for loans are still coming to them.

All persons who are interested in obtaining loans for improvements are asked to communicate with George M. Yeatman, of Clarendon, county chairman of the Federal Housing Administration in Arlington County.

When Jackie Coogan, soon coming into a $1,000,000 fortune held in trust, visited Paul Wing, father of Toby, in Los Angeles, reporters asked him whether she would be Mrs. Coogan soon. Both smiled, but neither would confirm it. The elder Wing was injured recently in an air crash.

Public Invited By Legion Post

Fundamental Principles to Be Cited at Bowie.

An open meeting will be held tonight by the Bowie (Md.) American Legion Post, No. 66. The public session will begin at 8 p. m. at the Odd Fellows Hall, Bowie.

The purpose of the meeting will be to acquaint the public with the fundamental principles of the legion. There will be an attempt to show that the "bonus program" is of secondary importance.

Talks will be made by State Department Commander John F. McNulty, Vice Commander L. P. Smoot and John S. White, delegate to the Maryland Legislature. Massing of the colors will be held, and the southern Maryland initiation team will initiate several new Bowie members.

Teacher Married At Martinsburg

Mary V. Lloyd the Bride of Frank L. Dunn, Jr.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 17.—Miss Mary V. Lloyd, a teacher in the Martinsburg public schools, became the bride of Mr. Frank L. Dunn, jr., of Detroit, Mich., and this city, in a quiet ceremony this morning in the parsonage of St. John's Lutheran Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. F. R. Wagner, Lutheran pastor here. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Sellers, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were the only witnesses.

Immediately after the marriage the couple left for Detroit, where they will visit his father, Frank L. Dunn, president of Dunn Textile Co., for several days and then go to the latter's cabin at Baldwin, Mich., for a two weeks' vacation. They will be at home here after July 1.

Mrs. Dunn, a graduate of Martinsburg High School and Shepherd State Teachers' College, has been active socially here. Mr. Dunn is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Academy, Front Royal, Va., and Philadelphia College of Textile Engineering. He has been associated with the staff of the designer's office of a woolen mill here for several years.

'Only Duty' Says Boy Who Saved Pal's Life

Louis Fanaroff, 14, Wins Medal of A.A.A. for Traffic Rescue.

"I feel I only did my duty."

That's about all 14-year-old Louis Fanaroff, chunky seventh grader at the Ketcham School, Good Hope road and Fifteenth street southeast, had to say yesterday about the medal awarded him by the American Automobile Association for "distinguished service in protecting the lives of children."

The medal was presented to Louis yesterday morning for pulling 9-year-old Jack Lewis from in front of a speeding truck on January 14 last. Young Fanaroff is one of 32 school patrol boys to receive the A. A. A. merit award this year.

With considerable show of embarrassment the young hero yesterday afternoon recounted details of the rescue.

"The truck, a big, heavy one used for road repairing, was coming down the street while I was directing the noon traffic at Fourteenth street and Good Hope road," he said. "I motioned for the truck to come on but Jack thought I meant for him to cross the street. He walked right into the path of the truck and I grabbed him. That's all."

The presentation of the award yesterday morning came as a surprise to Louis. He had been told he would receive it at the school's graduation exercises tomorrow. The moment he got it he tucked it inside his belt so only the small pin at the top showed.

"What does it feel like to be a hero?" The 14-year-old pondered the question. His serious reply was: "I feel I only did my duty." He is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Fanaroff, 1601 Good Hope road. He wants to become a pharmacist.

The boy he rescued, a second-grade pupil at the Van Buren School, Ketcham, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis, 1912 Fourteenth street southeast.

Gen. Lochridge Dies; a Veteran Of Two Wars

Was in Philippines, Cuba, on Supreme Council in France.

Brig. Gen. P. D. Lochridge, U. S. A., retired, whose war service began in the Indian campaigns of the West and ended soon after the close of the World War, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital. He was 73 years old.

A wearer of the Distinguished Service Medal, the Spanish American War, Cuban Occupation and Puerto Rico Occupation Medals, the Victory Medal, a commander of the Legion of Honor and the Order of the Crown of Italy and Companion of the Military Order of the Bath, Gen. Lochridge was a member of the Supreme War Council in France during the World War.

Gen. Lochridge was born near Bexar, Ala., in 1863. He attended Mississippi College and later graduated from West Point in 1887, with a commission as a second lieutenant of cavalry. He was retired as a brigadier on November 10, 1919, for disability received in line of duty.

After his retirement Gen. Lochridge entered business, serving as treasurer and director of Marx & Rawolle, a New York and Montreal shellac firm. In 1921 he organized Calcutta Traders, Ltd., and established two shellac factories in India. He retired from business in 1926 and has made his home at 1316 New Hampshire avenue.

Gen. Lochridge saw military service in the West, Cuba, the Philippines, Puerto Rico, on the Mexican Border and in France. From 1899 until 1900 he was paymaster of the Cuban Census and in charge of engineering projects there.

Riverdale Library Opened to Public

With the completion of its cataloguing last week, the library of the Riverdale Presbyterian Church is now open to the public, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Keith Custis, pastor of the church.

The library, which contains both fiction and reference works, has been enlarged during the past month by the donations of the members of the church until it contains more than 1,000 volumes.

The reading room will be in the Sunday school room of the church and will be open to the public Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays from 7 p. m. until 9:30 p. m. Membership cards may be obtained from Allen Clark, librarian, who was largely instrumental in the founding and cataloguing of the library.

Trucking Decision Sets Up Precedent

'For Hire' Vehicles Barred From Regular Service.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 17.—When the supreme court of appeals held that a motor common carrier can move by injunction in the courts against a competing for-hire-truck operator it created a new and important phase in Virginia motor transportation, members of the State corporation commission said today. The case was that of W. L. Turner vs. W. R. Hicks.

The opinion, written by Justice E. W. Hudgins at Wytheville on June 13, held the circuit court of Pittsylvania was in error in denying an injunction in a dispute in which a certificated motor freight carrier, in this case Turner, complained that a for-hire operator, Hicks, had been carrying on a competing common carrier service on a for-hire license.

"The users of for-hire tags are not only prohibited from operating on a regular schedule, but they can not solicit or receive patronage along the route, or between cities, towns or localities served by a motor vehicle carrier operating under a certificate from the State corporation commission," the supreme court decision said in part.

Woman's Death In College Park Called Suicide

Aged Widow of Explorer Found Hanging by Apron.

A certificate of suicide was issued last night in the death of Mrs. Laura Paul Diller, 83, of 1460 Belmont road northwest, widow of Dr. Joseph Silas Diller, noted explorer and geologist.

Mrs. Diller was found yesterday morning hanging from a door at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Alice O. Paul, at College Park. The suicide certificate was issued by Acting Coroner Herbert J. Moffat, of Hyattsville.

Dr. Leonard Hayes, who pronounced the woman dead, said Mrs. Diller had been sent to the suburban community by a Washington physician who had been treating her for a nervous ailment.

She arrived at the home of Mrs. Paul yesterday morning, Dr. Hayes said. About 9:30 a. m., Mrs. Hazel Wooster, a neighbor, who was left to care for her while Mrs. Paul was at work at the Geological Survey, found Mrs. Diller hanging by her apron from a hallway door.

Mrs. Wooster called her husband, Paul B. Wooster, who summoned Headley Gasch and George O. Berg, of the Bladensburg rescue squad. Artificial respiration failed and Mrs. Diller was pronounced dead at 11 a. m.

Investigation for the State was made by Prince Georges County Policeman Howard Slater. Acting Coroner Moffat said an inquest will not be necessary.

Mrs. Martin, Boston Man Are Married

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

A marriage of wide interest to Capital society was that of Mrs. Helen Gatley Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Gatley, to Mr. Emory A. Wheeler, of Boston, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler, of Washington, yesterday.

The ceremony was performed yesterday at noon in the home of the bride's parents in Chevy Chase, Md., the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, of the First Congregational Church, officiating. The marriage took place in the presence of a small company of relatives before an improvised altar. Palms and ferns formed an effective setting for it, and the bride and bridegroom knelt on a white satin prie-dieu during the ceremony. Summer flowers adorned the rooms.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, president of the National Savings & Trust Co., and president of the Chevy Chase Club.

The bride wore a gown of suede lace of palest pink, fashioned on princess lines with a rippled hem which extended into a short, graceful train. The jacket, of like lace, had long, close-fitting sleeves and a collar which stood up across the back of the neckline and fell in soft revers in front. Her hat was a large model of pale pink lace and straw turned back from the face. A corsage of orchids completed the costume. Mr. Everett M. Studley, of Boston, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. H. Prescott Gatley, jr., and Mr. George Williams. The bride was unattended.

A reception followed the wedding. The couple was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Gatley, who wore a gown of navy blue lace, and by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wheeler, of Boston, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mr. Wheeler and his bride left later for their wedding trip, the latter wearing a gown of navy blue sheer crepe trimmed with fine tucks, and a small blue hat of the same shade. They will spend several months in Europe before they return to take up their residence October 1 at 2615 Thirty-first street.

Marie C. Keogh Becomes Bride Of Harry Loftus

Couple Wed at St. Paul's; Will Live in Scranton Following Trip.

Miss Marie Constance Keogh, daughter of the late Mrs. Adele Keogh Corcoran, became the bride of Mr. Harry Charles J. Loftus, of Scranton, Pa., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Loftus, at 9 o'clock yesterday morning in St. Paul's Church. The Rev. Charles J. Dacey performed the ceremony and the nuptial mass which followed. The church was attractively decorated with roses and early summer flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Michael F. Keogh, wore a gown of white chiffon made on princess lines with long tight sleeves puffed above the elbows, and a row of tiny buttons from the neckline to the waist. Her hat was of fine white straw, and she carried an arm bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley tied with white ribbon.

Miss Gertrude Rella Keogh, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and wore a gown of pink net made on princess lines, with blue accessories. Her hat was of pink and blue linen and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium, tied with pink ribbon.

Mr. Lawrence J. Keogh was the best man and the ushers were Mr. William George Dutton and Mr. Cornelius Collins.

A reception and wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride. The bridal table in the house had a centerpiece of white roses and maidenhair fern, silver candlesticks with white tapers were the other decorations. A three-tiered wedding cake was placed at one end of the table.

Later Mr. Loftus and his bride left Washington for a wedding trip. The latter wore for traveling a blue and gold crepe gown with blue accessories, and a corsage of gardenias. Upon their return they will reside in Scranton, Pa.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. George W. Dolan, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William Donahoe, of Troy, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. James Loftus, of Detroit, Mich., and the Rev. Thomas J. Healy, of Richmond, Va.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Wharton School of Finance and is chairman of the Nativity Glee Club, of Scranton.

"lets go to the Virginia Hot Springs"
Just a few hours driving and you are in the Hot Springs country, strangely different from even nearby places. You rest, play golf or tennis, ride or shoot skeet, swim and take "the Baths." You meet lovely people and spend no more than you would at any good hotel. Why not visit us for a few days, now? Represented in Washington by Mr. Stanley B. Campbell, The Mayflower.

On the left is a picture of Willie Jones, seated at the bridge table. Notice particularly the war club and the face protector. When this picture was made, six months ago, Willie needed that club to threaten his partner, and the catcher's mask was to protect him from his partner's threats.

Let us take a look at Willie today. His picture is below. Just look at him! He has just bid seven no-trump, and his partner is beaming because she knows that he will make it easily—and their opponents redoubled!

What wrought this marvelous change in Willie? What transformed him from just another dub into a master player, a man respected among men—and women? The answer is Ely Culbertson, and what he did for Willie Jones, he can do for you. Culbertson on Bridge is a regular feature of Simple Device Strings, Slices Garden Beans

By Ruth Anne Davis.

SUMMER is here and the signal is sounded for housewives to keep their weather eye open for new ways to make kitchen chores lighter. One local store is ready with a suggestion in the form of a Bean-X.

A Bean-X is a simple little gadget that does the difficult job of stemming, stringing and slicing beans all in one easy operation. And beans prepared with a Bean-X are more appetizing, and far easier to cook quickly. In fact, they cook in about half their usual time, because of the thinness and evenness of the slices.

It is easy to understand why "Bean-X-ed" beans are greatly to be preferred. Because of their quick, even cooking, the protein percentage and caloric fuel values are greatly increased. And due to the way they are sliced and neatly strung, they make a far better appearance for salads, garnishing, etc.

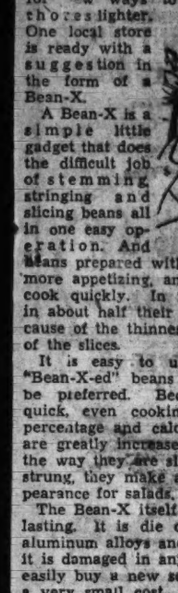
The Bean-X itself is durable and lasting. It is die cast of selected aluminum alloys and rust-proof. If it is damaged in any way, you can easily buy a new set of blades for a very small cost.

A Bargain in Perfume.

Would you believe it if someone were to tell you that if you drop by the toilet department of a downtown store you'll be able to buy a $13.50 bottle of a certain well-known French perfume for only $3.15? It's a positive fact! But don't put off shopping too long for the special is a "very special" and ends the day the last bottle is sold. You have a choice of four delightful fragrances, all put out by a famous perfume company and coming to you in lovely crystal bottles.

Inexpensive Bath Powder.

Just as a cool, refreshing dessert adds the finishing touch to a delightful dinner, so does bath powder complete the bath. When you step from the tub or the shower, you need the powder to give your skin that smooth, satiny feel.



During the warm weather you should choose your powder carefully. Buy one that is fine textured, one that has a dainty, light fragrance. If you do not put off your purchase, you may buy a grand box of powder now for exactly half its usual price. Ordinarily it sells for $1 a large box. Now it's 50 cents, or two for 95 cents. It comes in violet, verbena, rose, geranium and bouquet fragrances.

The box itself is a large, tin one that will add a decorative touch to your bathroom.

For Those Cool Days.

It's queer weather to be talking about coats, but don't forget Washington summers are polka dotted with cool days. It is then you'll need a little light wrap that's suitable for your warm weather wardrobe. For a wrap that you'll use only occasionally you want to watch that budget! You want your coat to be neat and smart looking, but inexpensive.

If you'll take time out in a certain downtown store you'll find some lovely summer coats made of white cotton waffle weave material. These come in several tailored styles, and cost only $2.95. They wash beautifully.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Address of "Mary Jones" Asked by Women Eager to Start Valet Service.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Will you send me the name and address of the woman who signed the name, "Mary Jones" to her letter printed a couple of weeks ago suggesting that somebody start a valet service for women. She said she lived in an apartment house tenanted almost entirely by employed women who would gladly pay for such a service.

• • • •

I have a sister who would like to do such work and is qualified to do it. She would like to investigate the possibilities of starting such a service in or near the apartment house the writer mentioned. Thanking you, I am, A. B. W.

• • • •

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I saw in your column the other day the idea of a valet service for women suggested. As I remember, it was suggested by one of your readers as suitable work for an older woman who said she was in search of employment. At first, I did not consider the idea in relation to myself, but now that school is almost over I am very anxious to earn some money, and it occurs to me I might turn her suggestion to account.

• • • •

"I am just 17 years old and I live at home, but I still think I could mend stockings and press clothes as well as the next fellow. Would it be possible for me to set up a business in that apartment building "Mary Jones" spoke of? How could I get in touch with her? I shall be ever so grateful for any help. Sincerely yours, J. A.

• • • •

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: May I have "Mary Jones'" address? I wish to know the location of the apartment building she referred to in her letter of May 28, for the purpose of trying my hand at that "valet service for women" she said was so much needed by the women Government employes who live there, and who don't have time to keep their clothing in order.

I am very much in earnest about getting some work to do in the sewing line. Sincerely, M. J.

Appeal to "Mary Jones."

DEAR A. B. W., J. A. and M. J.: I regret to say I don't have the address of the woman who (using the pseudonym of "Mary Jones") suggested in this column May 28 and again on June 10 that some enterprising woman start a valet service for business women, particularly specifying women Government employes' need of such a service.

• • • •

Inasmuch as she expressed disappointment in her second letter that no one had seen fit, apparently, to act on her suggestion, and indicated she was forced to the conclusion that the average unemployed person who laments his unemployment is looking for sympathy rather than work, I am hoping she may revise her opinion in the light of your letters and co-operate with you by giving the requested information, which may be the second step toward establishing the service she suggests.

• • • •

How about it, "Mary Jones?" Since you fired the opening gun in this campaign for more even distribution of labor, surely you will not leave these eager recruits without the information they need to achieve your objective. Such information as you may care to provide will be transmitted by personal letter to the writers of the foregoing appeals, each of whom has provided me with her name and address.

M. H.

Voters' League President Gets Smith Degree

Marguerite M. Wells Is Honored for Activity in Citizenship.

MISS MARGUERITE M. WELLS, president of the National League of Women Voters, yesterday was given an honorary degree of doctor of laws by Smith College, at its commencement exercises. Miss Wells is a graduate of Smith College and for 16 years served as its trustee.

Miss Wells will go directly from the Smith College commencement festivities to her home in Minneapolis, where she will spend the summer. During her absence, Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, first vice president, will direct activities at the National League headquarters in Washington.

Ex-Senator Dill to Speak.

Former Senator Dill of Washington, will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Soroptimist Club at 1 o'clock tomorrow in the Willard Hotel.

Following the luncheon, a musical program under the direction of Jewell Downs will be given.

D. A. R. Chapter to Dine.

The Abigail Harman Rice Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its annual spring dinner dance at 7 o'clock Saturday at the Columbia Country Club. Mrs. Marion S. Alley, 9408 Georgia avenue, Woodside, Md., will be in charge of the arrangements.

Assisting Mrs. Alley will be Mrs. Earl Richardson, Miss Marie Rice, Miss Frances Mixsell, Mrs. Charles Nash and Miss Josephine Davis.

Y. W. C. A. to Hear Miss Lowe.

Miss Marjorie Lowe, instructor of vocal music at Gunston Hall and a member of the Zonta Club, will give a group of songs at the luncheon meeting of the club Wednesday at the Young Women's Christian Association, Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

Literary Club Picnic.

The Excelsior Literary Club will hold its annual picnic at 3 o'clock today at the home of Mrs. Henry Feno Sawtelle, 6200 Connecticut avenue northwest.

What TODAY Means

"GEMINI."

IF JUNE 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. until noon, from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 8 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 4 to 6 p. m. and from 10 p. m. until midnight.

You may be in a position to defend the action of someone this day, and it probably will be the proper thing to do. An insignificant incident is likely to play an important part in making you happy. Owners of pets should be careful not to neglect them, as conditions may be conductive for unfavorable results to the animal or bird. New business ventures are likely to find the day favorable for intensive sales efforts. An optimistic note may be noticeable in most trade markets.

There possibly will be an unusual amount of activity among the buying public; perhaps a good deal of news of social nature in circulation, too. It might be wise to accept some of it with mental reservations, until confirmed. Married and engaged couples, and those entertaining matrimonial thoughts, should be careful not to become involved in acrimonious disputes, as the aftermath may be unfortunate.

If a woman, and June 18 is your birthday, you are probably very active, and should indulge in plenty of physical exercise. Open air sports will, more than likely, have the greatest appeal. You are essentially feminine, so never make the mistake of trying to assume a masculine poise. Do not let fear cause you to be reticent when important issues require plain speaking. Physical culture, educational work, dancing, music, journalism and selling, are good vocational lines for you. Your home life should be happy, especially, if you marry.

The child born on June 18, usually, when it reaches its teens, displays a marked degree of originality, and has an inventive mind.

If a man, and June 18 is your natal day, fishing, hunting, or boating will probably provide the best form of relaxation for you. A home and wife are advisable if you are not inclined to roam. Banking, stocks, bonds or insurance brokerage, sporting goods, short story writing, and engineering, are lines of activity that should give you the opportunity to use your conversational powers advantageously. You should gain recognition as a public speaker.

Chinese Alone Observe Golden Rule, Declares Student of Their Music

Harris & Ewing.

MISS IDA HOYT CHAMBERLAIN, concert singer, pianist and composer who has spent the past four years in China, where she did extensive research in Chinese music and history. The result of her work is a series of 15 tone pictures called "The Never Ending Wrong," based on episodes in the life of Tang Ming Huang, Chinese emperor during the golden age.

Lack of Guile Makes the Nation a Prey, Says Ida Chamberlain.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THE CHINESE are the only people in the world who, as a whole, practice the golden rule.

So thinks Miss Ida Hoyt Chamberlain, authority on Chinese music, who recently returned from a four-year sojourn in the Orient.

The sister of Mr. Culver B. Chamberlain, American consul to China, she traveled throughout the country from Harbin in the north to Canton in the south, spent a number of months in Peiping, and had much opportunity to observe the natives, their customs and their ways of dealing with each other and with strangers.

Talking of the Chinese yesterday, she explained she went to China not so much to study the people as their music. "But since music is such a direct interpretation and reflection of life, I learned almost as much about one as the other," she said. "And from all I found out about China's past as well as from what I have observed in the last four years, the Chinese truly treat everyone as they themselves would like to be treated. Anyone who lives in China knows the full meaning of the golden rule. The natives are as guileless, as trusting as children. Probably this accounts for the fact they are prey for more aggressive countries."

Studies Li Po's Times.

She further explained it was because of the disheartening conditions in modern China that she had spent so much time delving into the history of the country, studying China as it was during its golden age, when Tang Ming Huang sat on the throne, when beautiful Yung Kwei Fei was the emperor's favorite and when Li Po, famous Chinese poet, entertained the court with his metrical romances.

The result of her research and her study of Chinese history and music, ancient and modern, is now in a red silk portfolio, decorated with gold Chinese characters. Between its covers there is a musical drama, or rather a series of "15 tone pictures" entitled "The Never Ending Wrong," based on the Chinese classic by Po Chu-i and a poem by Li Po, from the English translations by L. Cranmer-Byng.

Unusual in many respects, this work is unique in that it contains the Taoist sacred ceremony, which has never before been written. Since "The Never Ending Wrong" is centered around the love affair between Tang Ming Huang and Yung Kwei Fei, who was a Taoist, the sacred ceremony adds atmosphere to the story involved. Miss Chamberlain recorded the ritual, note by note, as she heard it executed by Taoist priests in Peking.

Had to Create New Scale.

In order to reproduce Oriental musical effects with Occidental instruments and notations, Miss Chamberlain had to create an entirely new system, which she termed "the ori-occidental scale and interval system of music."

When she presented "The Never Ending Wrong" in Harbin, music critics hailed her as "the first person to succeed in presenting real Chinese music through the medium of Western instruments" and compared her new art form to some of Wagner's work, and to certain of Debussy's compositions.

Before she went to China, Miss Chamberlain was widely known in the United States as a concert singer, pianist and composer. Her operetta, "Enchanted Isle," presented in New York was widely acclaimed as a "highly successful musical drama by the youngest American ever to write both the words and music for an operetta."

After "Enchanted Isle" was so successful, she decided to turn her attention to Oriental music, because as she explained it, "We Western people must understand China better, and it seems music can do much to effect that understanding."

Composer Creates a New Scale for Oriental Tone Pictures.

Among the many lovely things Miss Chamberlain brought back from the Orient is a collection of scrolls—some more than 600 years old—depicting life during the golden age, a number of exquisitely embroidered "Ming dynasty," and some Chinese symbols, gongs, and drums.

Here's a Cake Sure to Please Fickle Taste

Strawberry Season Wanes and Blueberries Are Welcome Change.

By Dorothea Duncan.

THE popularity of the old-fashioned strawberry shortcake is on the wane for this season at least. We rush the strawberry season demanding hot house and Southern berries, feast on strawberry shortcake to our hearts' content, and then when we have the pick of the crop—our local berries—our fickle appetites clamor for something new to tickle the palate.

Right now blueberries, blackberries and red raspberries seem to be in the spotlight. Following is the recipe for blueberry cake which has been requested.

Blueberry Cake.

1 cup sugar
½ cup milk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 cups blueberries
1½ cups flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoon extra flour

Cream the butter and the sugar until light, add well beaten egg yolks, salt, and beat in alternately the flour sifted with baking powder and the milk. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites, flavor with lemon juice and mix in very carefully, to avoid crushing, the blueberries which have been dredged in 1 tablespoon extra flour. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) first half hour, then lower the temperature and finish baking in a moderate oven (350 degress F.). Serve warm with a sauce made of slightly mashed blueberries brought to a boil with enough sugar to sweeten, and a few slices of lemon; or slice like any cake.

For Children's Luncheons.

Q. Could you suggest some sandwich fillings that are appropriate for children's summer luncheons?

A. Here are several sandwich fillings that always prove popular with the youngsters.

1. Grated carrots mixed with enough cooked salad dressing to make the mixture spreadable.

2. Peanut butter to which enough mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing has been added to make it moist and mixed with chopped raisins or chopped pitted dates.

3. Cream cheese mixed to a spreading consistency with top milk and combined with chopped watercress, or the cheese mixed with pineapple and lemon juice and combined with crushed canned pineapple drained free from juice.

4. Chopped crisp bacon and peanut butter always win approval.

5. This banana and peanut butter sandwich is another favorite. Spread thin slices of white bread with cooked salad dressing. Spread one side with peanut butter and top the other with thin rounds of ripe bananas. Put the two slices together. Serve these sandwiches immediately after they have been made.

Easily Sewed Slacks Suitable For Wear at Beach or Camp

Pattern No. 956.

NOTHING fussy or frilly about this two-way design. It is planned for suitability and comfort. The sun-bather will make up the halter-neck pajama version. The garden enthusiast or camper may prefer the separate slacks and tailored shirt version. Both are cut to sew up quickly, fit smoothly and launder easily.

The separate slacks are finished on a belt. The halter-top style joins the slacks in a built-up waistline, with buttons or slide fastener at the side. Flannel, jersey, linen or cotton are suitable fabrics. Cut in sizes 12 to 20; 30 to 38. Size 16 (34) requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch material for the slacks, 1⅝ yards of 35-inch fabric for the blouse. The halter version requires 3⅛ yards of 35-inch material, ½ yard for the collar.

CULBERTSON on BRIDGE

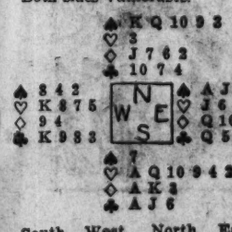
Singleton Bad for Notrump.

WITH only a singleton of the suit bid by partner, it is sometimes very difficult to play the hand at three notrump. Sometimes, however, it becomes necessary, especially when both players hold a singleton of the rebid suit of partner, as in the hand below:

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♡	Pass	3♠	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

The Play.

West did not like to lead away from either King. He selected the nine of diamonds, which turned out to be a happy choice for the defense. Dummy played low and South won with the Ace. Declarer, of course, was compelled to develop the hearts by straight leads away from his tenaces. The lead of the Ace brought out only small cards. The second lead was, of course, the Queen.

With only two adverse honors to contend with, declarer can lose only two heart tricks except against a 5-1 break. The only way in which he can avoid the loss of two tricks is to drop one of the missing honors unguarded. It would do him no good to drop a doubleton King, since the Jack would still make. Hence the only situation, after the lead of the Ace has felled nothing, in which he can clean up the suit with one loss is to find the Jack doubleton. For the sake of this possibility the Queen is the only correct second lead.

West won the Queen of hearts with the King. North discarding a small club. West led the four of diamonds, dummy again ducked, and East's eight-spot forced the King.

Declarer could count eight top tricks. The ninth would have to come by taking advantage of the adverse difficulties of exit. In order to be sure to deprive the opponents of heart exit South cashed two more hearts, dummy discarding two spades. Then declarer led the spade.

If East held off, the spade trick would give declarer contract at once. East counted out the hand and properly won the King with the Ace. As the only hope for exit was in clubs, East led the Queen of clubs.

As it was, South won the Queen of clubs with the Ace. He cashed another heart, dummy letting go the last of the small spades. Declarer saw that to cash the sixth heart might be fatal, as he might make the wrong discard from dummy. But, having seven tricks already in hand, he immediately led the club six toward the blank ten. If the King went up, the opponents could not avoid letting either North or South win two more tricks, and if the club ten were allowed to win, North could cash the top spade for the ninth trick at once.

Politicians Tussling For Right to Ladle Out Works Funds

Democrats Seek To Rebuild for '38

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 17.—Seven million dollars, Maryland's allotment for roads from the $4,000,000,000 Federal Works Relief appropriation, is the cause of some of the greatest political maneuvering by leaders of both parties that this State has witnessed in many years.

This political maneuvering may also have an important bearing upon the gubernatorial candidate of the Democratic party in 1938.

There would be little trouble if a Democratic governor were sitting in the Statehouse at Annapolis and the State roads commission were of the same political complexion, say those who see Senator Millard Tydings emerging as the Democrat who will succeed Albert C. Ritchie as the leader of the party in this State.

None denies that Senator Tydings will have much to say as to where and how this $7,000,000 will be spent. But how the Senator will keep the Republican State administration from building political fences on an appropriation originating with a Democratic National Administration remains to be seen.

Democrats Must Rebuild.

Democratic leaders admit that $7,000,000 judiciously spent on highways certainly will do no harm to their party which needs rehabilitation after the Ritchie defeat last November. But the Republican administration has not overlooked this fact either an dwould like to have something to say about how the money should be spent.

Democratic leaders, including several powerful Baltimore City leaders also are looking forward to 1938, when they expect Maryland to elect a Democratic governor. One man stands in their way, however. He is Mayor Howard Jackson, re-elected by a large majority a fe wmonths ago and a Demicrat who has sai dthat he wants to be governor and admittedly will be hard to stop in 1938. So the expenditure of these $7,000,000 may resolve itself in a "stop Jackson for governor" movement, with the possibility of finding Senator Tydings in the leading role and as a possible gubernatoral candidate.

See Move to Boost Tydings.

Certain Democrats see two obpectives—to build up Tydings' political fences so he can step into the role as leader, and to prevent the Republican administration in his State from directing the expenditure of the Federal appropriation.

One way, said to be under consideration by the Democrats, is the setting up of a Federal body within the State to direct the expenditure of the money. Republican leaders are said to be prepared to counter such a move.

Already John Mackall, former chairman of the State Roads Commission and a Democrat, has been slated for the post of approving or rejecting projects submitted by the Republican State Roads Commission. Mackall, a protege of Howard Bruce, Democratic national committeeman from Maryland is a friend of Senator Tydings.

G. O. P. Holds Trump Cards.

But the Republican administration holds several trump cards, one of which is the fact that in counties where Republican administrations are in power, the directing of the distribution of relief jobs will be more or less in their control. A bill enacted by the last General Assembly gives a board of State aids and charities the right to select county boards to direct the relief in their respective counties. These boards of 7 are picked from 12 names submitted by each board of county commissioners, with the seventh member being a county commissioner.

The Maryland Roads Commission already has submitted its program to the United States Bureau of Roads, which approves or rejects all highway projects. This program provides for 174 miles of new highway, and includes about $1,000,000 for Baltimore City, already approved, the Annapolis boulevard, Harford road, Eastern avenue, Philadelphia road, Conowingo road, Eastern Shore roads, Edmonson avenue, Montgomery County roads, Francis Scott Key highway, Severn River highway, Defense highway and National highway from Frederick to the Allegany County line. This project is located largely in Washington County, one of the several counties in western Maryland where Republicans are in control. This project alone would absorb much of the unemployment there, it is said. Democratic leaders know this, but they find themselves in a position, should they succeed in having it moved up on the priority list of roads projects, to see a board named by Republican commissioners, designating those who shall work. Because of the fact that the project also lies in the home county of the chairman of the State roads commission, Dr. Homer L. Tabler, it is said that a desire to have some of the Federal appropriation spent there may result in some understanding between the leaders of the two parties there.

Hagerstown Murder Charged to Turfman

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 17.—Don F. Burke, 33, Philadelphia race follower, was formally charged today with the murder of David L. Buchanan, 79, rooming house proprietor. He will be given a hearing Thursday morning.

Burke was arrested at the Charles Town race track two days after Buchanan's body was found in a bedroom, his head crushed. Burke was a roomer at the house. The police are still looking for another man in connection with the crime.

FERA Program May Continue At Virginia U.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., June 17.—During the past nine months, approximately 275 University of Virginia students benefited to the extent of $37,000 through the FERA student aid program which came to an end with the close of the regular session last week.

Set up in January, 1934, the Federal relief measure provided funds for part-time jobs for needy students during the latter part of the 1933-34 session and covered the entire 1934-35 school year.

The administration of the program was left in the hands of college authorities under the general supervision of the State relief director and the State Board of Education. Details of installing the program at the university here were handled by Charles H. Kauffmann, head of the bureau of school relations and director of student self-help activities.

Chosen on Basis of Need.

After a survey of the various academic departments revealed useful work that might be done, either special projects or assisting in routine matters, students were selected on a basis of need and scholastic standing for the designated jobs.

The special workers have been connected with nearly every phase of university activity. Those possessing particular qualifications acted as technical and research assistants in the scientific departments, while others performed secretarial duties.

The largest group was employed in the library, where 70 students helped in the restoration and cataloging of old volumes, including the few remaining ones of the original Jefferson purchase, and performed important work in compiling data and filing documents and library cards.

Departmental heads have welcomed the extra assistance which has been given them and have praised the manner in which the program has been administered.

Aid May Continue Next Year.

Of the 38 institutions of higher learning in the State which received FERA money for student aid, the University of Virginia headed the list on the basis of its larger enrollment. Under provisions of the grant, the number of jobs available at each school was determined on a basis of 12 per cent of the total student body. Salaries averaged $15 monthly, with a $20 limit, for not more than 40 hours' work.

While no official action has been taken by Federal relief authorities, it is believed that FERA aid to students will be continued through next year.

Doris I. Sabine Marries Man From Leesburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., June 17.—Miss Doris Isabel Sabine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Sabine, of this city, and Gray Walton Hume, jr., of Leesburg, were married here Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents by Dr. F. Campbell Symonds, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Gordon A. Sabine. Clay B. Carr, of Boyce, was best man and Miss Mary A. Gorman was maid of honor. The bride is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College and the bridegroom, of Washington and Lee. He is now associated with the Federal land bank in Baltimore, where they will make their home.

They are to be a part of the camp designated as Camp Herbert J. Jones, named in honor of the first officer of the sixth field artillery killed in the World War. The camp officially opens July 2, lasting until July 31.

Higher Wage For Ministers Is Suggested

State Methodist Body Sees Defeatism in Its Churches.

Exploitation of Sabbath Commercially is Deplored.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., June 17.—Featuring the afternoon session of the Maryland annual conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, a committee expressed hearty agreement with the report of the president, E. A. Sexsmith, that "the defeatism that has gripped the churches in many places must itself be defeated."

Recommendations made by the president, which gained the concurrence of the committee, were: Continuing the co-operative plan for supplementing a superannuate fund; undertaking as soon as possible erection of the proposed Lewis Memorial Church in Washington; increasing by at least 10 per cent all pastors' salaries less than $1,500; appointment of a special committee to conduct a Christian stewardship educational campaign; undertaking a systematic campaign of evangelism.

Summer Conference Set.

It was announced today that the annual summer conference of ministers will be held at the Westminster Theological Seminary from August 26 to 30. Marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization, speakers at the conference will include Dr. J. M. Gray, American University; Dr. John Patterson, Drew University, and Dr. James Black, Edinburgh, Scotland.

It was also stated that a two weeks summer school will begin at the seminary on August 19, and a leadership training school will be held at Western Maryland College from July 29 to August 4, under the auspices of the Maryland conference council of religious education.

Wives Elect Officers.

Mrs. F. G. Holloway, of Westminster, was elected president of the Ministers Wives Association at their annual meeting this afternoon. Other officers named were: Mrs. R. W. Sapp, Georgetown, Del., first vice president; Mrs. W. B. Judefind, Baltimore, second vice president; Mrs. J. E. Cummings, Westminster, secretary; Mrs. H. C. Burkins, treasurer.

Ministerial and special appointments were to be announced in the final session tonight. A statistical report revealed membership of the Maryland conference as 35,822, an increase of several hundred as compared with 1934.

The report of the committee on moral reform and social service, adopted this morning, denounced the exploitation of the Sabbath for commercial purposes, termed liquor traffic a "course to civilization," referred to the moving picture industry as having reached the point where it becomes a serious problem, expressed concern over the continuation of unemployment, and viewed with alarm the "threats of international conflict."

During the business meeting, the members of the deaconess board were re-elected as follows: The Rev. G. E. Brown, Washington; the Rev. G. W. Haddaway, E. J. Paige, Mrs. W. F. Chew and Mrs. S. H. Warehime, Baltimore.

Additional delegates to the general conference, elected today, were the Rev. R. W. White, the Rev. G. W. Haddaway, Baltimore; the Rev. P. W. Crosby, Pocomoke, Md.; laymen, C. N. Satterfield, T. D. Bowers, Chestertown, Md.; C. L. Horsey, Laurel, Del.; A. H. Mason, Lynchburg, Va.

Virginians Form Roosevelt Club

Albemarle, Charlottesville Democrats Band.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 17.—Democrats of Charlottesville and Albemarle County, at a mass meeting this afternoon near the birthplace of Thomas Jefferson, organized a 1936 Roosevelt-for-President Club and pledged themselves to uphold and sustain the President for the remainder of the current term and to seek his renomination and re-election.

In accepting the presidency of the club, Judge John W. Fishburne, former Representative from the old Seventh District, declared "that the Huey Longs may rave and the Grass Rooters may imagine vain things, but I stand for Roosevelt as head of the Democratic Party."

Twenty-six charter members were enlisted in the organization.

Power Plant Reports Big Gain in Customers

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., June 17.—A 71 per cent gain in customers of the city electric light plant during the first six months of 1935 compared with the same period a year ago is announced here by Clayton Brantly, manager of the utilities.

He ascribes the jump to the fact that families are "spreading out" into smaller housekeeping units after consolidating their resources during the depression years.

Town May Be Forced to Pay Heavy Damages to Home Owners.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., June 17.—Woodstock's anti-tree cutting war, started Saturday when Mrs. Loraine F. Brown, prominent local woman, climbed into a large maple tree in front of her home to prevent paving contractors from cutting it down, was resumed here this morning when G. H. Lewis, jr., and Wilfred Woodford were fined $10 and costs for damaging a tree on the property of S. B. Hepner.

The two men, employes of the construction company, were fined on the grounds that Virginia law requires that notice be given property owners of intention to take such property. Mayor Hugh Morrison, a witness, said that the town had given no notice of the intention. M. L. Walton, counsel for the contractors, was interrupted frequently during his argument by his son, Trial Justice M. L. Walton, jr., who heard the case.

The court observed that the proneness of officials to arbitrarily infringe on the rights of citizens without due process of law was not only reprehensible, but caused community bitterness. No blame was attached to the State or the contractors. Judge Walton holding that officials of the town were at fault.

The men fined, the court said, were victims of the negligence of the town officials. Hepner testified that he had warned the cutters not to disturb the trees, but that the damage was done over his protest.

Today's proceedings have accentuated the tenseness of the situation and although legal entanglements are not expected to materially delay the street work there is a possibility that the town may be called upon to pay heavy damages to property owners because of the improvement.

An appeal to the circut court from the trial justice's decision was noted.

Relief Burden Cut 30 Per Cent In Free State

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 17.—Testimony that $51,000,000 has been spent for relief in Maryland since November, 1931, and that the relief load is now about 30 per cent below the peak figure was given today in circuit court as hearings continued on the suit contesting the validity of the new State 1 per cent gross receipts tax.

The tax is Maryland's only means of providing funds for relief. It is being contested by merchants on grounds that it is discriminatory.

State Relief Administrator Harry Greenstein was called to the stand by the State to testify as to relief costs and the relief load. He said that expenditures from November, 1931, through May, 1935, totaled $51,021,095.38. The peak relief load in April, 1934, was 64,000 families, or aproximately 256,000 persons. The present load is about 45,000 families, or 180,000 persons.

Dr. Horace E. Flack, State legislative reference librarian, was called to testify as to the extent of study of tax problems by the 1935 General Assembly which enacted the gross receipts tax. He said that the Legislature had not studied or discussed any gross receipts tax measure other than the one finally adopted after other tax proposals had been discarded.

The complainants submitted their testimony last week and the State will resume its evidence tomorrow.

The case will be taken on appeal to the court of appeals no matter what decision is rendered in circuit court here.

21 Road Foremen To Assume Duties

Washington County System Is Reorganized.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 17.—Twenty-one new road foremen, one in each of the districts in Washington County, all of them Republicans, will assume their duties tomorrow.

In the reorganization of the roads force here, Charles H. Rinehart, county roads supervisor, said that those retained under the merit system were seven truck drivers, one mechanic and one stockroom man. James A. Resley, Hancock, has been named assistant supervisor of roads.

While commission officials declined to comment on reports that a number of road men had been discharged, it was stated that it was not the intention of the commission to attempt to discharge men under the merit system.

Trego Home Destroyed.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 17.—The six-room frame house of Lester Perkins at Trego, Washington County, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin early today. No one was at home.

Brother and Sister Sentenced in Theft

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 17.—Nellie Raines, 25, and her brother, Marion Raines, 18, were each sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary today by Judge H. W. Bertram in Rockingham Circuit Court, for the robbery of their cousin, Zach Raines, 62.

The robbery occurred in a field in an outlying section of Harrisonburg. Zach Raines said Marion Raines hit him with what he believed to be "knucks" while Nellie took $82.50 he had pinned in his sock.

Virginia Asks Funds to Fill 50,000 Jobs

Relief Needs Combined in One General Program.

$80,000,000 Allotment Hinges on Approval of Hopkins.

By the Associated Press.

Jobs for 50,000 people is the goal of an estimated $80,000,000 to $90,000,000 Virginia works program planned under the provisions of the new $4,880,000,000 Federal appropriation.

Details of the plan were brought to Washington yesterday by Virginia Emergency Relief Director William A. Smith and John Galleher, State director of the National Emergency Council, who are attending Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins' conference with works progress directors from all parts of the country.

"We have submitted the plan to proper authorities, and expect approval of its salient features," said Director Galleher.

He explained that the plan coordinated the work of all the Federal relief agencies operating in Virginia, and developed "a well-rounded program free of duplication, and affords work for the bulk of the known Virginia case load."

45,000 Employed.

Smith, who has been working with Galleher in mapping the State program, said Virginia now has 45,000 people at work on relief projects. This number, he said, is 90 per cent of the VERA's case load.

"We have under way or approved projects for 10,000 man years of work," said Smith.

These projects, he explained, would keep 10,000 people at work for a year, "or to put it another way the full case load at work for two months." The new plan would put to work all of the 50,000 for the entire year.

With Galleher heading up all of the Federal relief agencies in Virginia as co-ordinator in his capacity as NEC director, the agencies including the VERA, the PWA, and the State highway commission with its work relief road projects have pooled the programs and with them worked out a unified plan for the year.

Details Guarded.

Galleher said the details of the plan would not be made available until it has been given official approval.

Both Galleher and Smith are discussing the plan with Federal officials at Washington and with other State works progress officials here for the three-day conference.

Generally it is meeting with unofficial approval. Galleher said there would be further opportunity to discuss details tomorrow in the group conferences. Both of the Virginia officials were pleased today when Hopkins in his opening address to the conference emphasized the Administration's desire for a "liberal program." They said although they had been given no personal official assurance, they believed the Virginia plan was directly in line with the ideas of Administration authorities at Washington.

Miss Karle Bundy Ready For Home Agency Work

Leesburg, Va., June 17 (P).—Miss Karle Bundy, of Tazewell County, has arrived here to take over on July 1 the job of home demonstration agent of Loudoun County. It will be vacated on that date by Miss Matilda Garner. She met the Loudoun home demonstration advisory board today.

Miss Garner has resigned following announcement of her engagement and approaching marriage to Grafton Greenlaw, Stafford County farmer and manager of the Southern States Cooperative at Fredericksburg.

Colony of Beavers Deserts Old Home

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Ogleton, Pa., June 17.—Elmer B. Thompson, game protector, last fall predicted migration of a colony of beavers, which had been for several years on the Johnstown Rod and Gun Club property on Roger Mountain. The move, he said, would be due to exhaustion of food supply. He was right. The main colony recently moved to the Pennsylvania Electric Co.'s dam on Bakers Run, several miles away.

The game protector now is trapping the colony and transplanting its members, approximately a dozen, to clear Shade Creek in the vicinity of Ogleton.

Water Project At Winchester Given to PWA

Richmond Administrator Gets Proposals for Federal Grant.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 17.—An application for a public works grant of $532,000 for development of a new water supply has been submitted to Col. J. A. Anderson, Richmond, acting Virginia PWA administrator.

The application requests an outright grant of $239,400, or 45 per cent of the total. The balance of $292,600 it is proposed to secure by issuing bonds. City Manager Arthur M. Field, who supervised preparation of the application, said today the project would provide employment for 245 men for approximately two years.

Tentative plans provide for the development of the headwaters of Cedar Creek and it is estimated that this supply would be sufficient for a city of 300,000. It is proposed, if there is demand, to provide the village of Stephens City and farmers along the Lee-Jackson highway with water.

Winchester has been handicapped for several summers by a dwindling water supply. It has been necessary to use stringent rules to conserve the supply. It is sought to provide unlimited water for industrial use as well as to obtain a supply for domestic use.

If the application is approved by Col. Anderson it will be forwarded to Washington.

Parks Group Will Convene Annual Rally

Skyland Meeting Today to Reunite Pioneer Workers.

Sen. Byrd to Attend if Affairs of State Permit.

By the Associated Press.

Skyland, Va., June 17.—A reunion of the men who took the leadership in raising the first million dollars for the Shenandoah National Park before the project was turned over to the State conservation and development commission, will be a highlight of the fifteenth national conference on State parks, which opens here tomorrow.

Col. J. H. Benchoff, headmaster of Massanutten Academy at Woodstock, today said approximately 30 of these men who headed the subscription drive in Virginia and neighboring States about ten years ago had notified him they will attend the conference banquet Thursday night.

A special table will be set aside for them at this banquet, at which addresses are to be made by Jay Johns, of Charlottesville, president of the Virginia Chamber of Commerce, and Pat Neff, president of Baylor University in Texas.

Col. Benchoff said Senator Harry Byrd will attend the reunion if congressional business would permit. Others expected to attend are former Gov. Lee Trinkle, of Roanoke; Lee Long, of Dante, and T. L. Farrar, of Charlottesville, members of the first conservation commission; Gen. H. L. Opie, of Staunton; Frank Sublett, of Harrisonburg; Hollis Rinehart, of Charlottesville; D. P. Wine, of Harrisonburg; P. F. Loth, of Staunton; Tom McAdams, of Richmond; H. H. Harris, of Lynchburg, and a number of others.

William E. Carson, of Riverton, first chairman of the State conservation and development commission, and Wilbur Hall, the present chairman, will review the beginnings and the future of Virginia's system of State parks on Wednesday.

The Belasco Theater Closes Season of Foreign Films For Extensive Alterations

Will Reopen in Fall With Same Picture Policy

Has Enjoyed Good Season; Shakespeare and Films; About Showshops.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

The Belasco Theater closed its season last night.

This is not to be construed as conclusive evidence of bad business since the conversion of the famous old Lafayette Square playhouse into an outlet for foreign-made feature pictures a few months ago. On the contrary, the exact opposite is true. Business has been so good that Matty Radin, head of the organization operating the Belasco here and a considerable chain of similar projects in other cities, has determined to devote the summer months to restoring the Belasco to something of its former glory as a theater of beauty, comfort and completeness of modern equipment.

This decision on the part of Mr. Radin was reached suddenly. Word was received by Manager Al Tamarin yesterday that it was the desire of the New York home office to put a crew of architects, decorators, engineers and other artisans at work as early this week as possible. Mr. Tamarin decided that might as well mean today as tomorrow or next day, so the run of "Moscow Laughs" was precipitately shut down following last evening's final projection of this bizarre film.

Contractors in Charge Today.

Today the Belasco is being turned over to the contractors, who will be in charge of the extensive improvements that will be completed during the summer, for their preliminary surveys.

The house, one is led to believe, will be redecorated, inside and out; new floors will be laid, new lighting arrangements perfected and everything done that is necessary to be done to place one of Washington's theatrical landmarks among the most attractive of the Capital's modern amusement places.

Since many weeks will be required for the wholesale rehabilitation of the Belasco as a physical property of the first rank, it is understood that no attempt will be made at this time to install a modern refrigeration and cooling system. This is an item, however, that is promised for next spring, when a policy of year-round operation will be inaugurated.

According to present plans, the Belasco will reopen for its second local season under the foreign-film policy on or about the Friday before Labor Day.

The elaborate production of Dion Boucicault's famous old melodrama of "After Dark," with which the Roadside Theater will inaugurate its second summer season in their new "red barn" playhouse out the Rockville pike, a few miles beyond Bethesda, Md., will be presented with eight different settings. This is a pretentious undertaking for any resident repertoire company and is made possible only by the installation of three revolving stages in the remodeled barn to which theatergoers will be introduced tonight. Among the diverse scenes of the play are those depicting an underground railway, a corner of Victoria Station in London, an underworld cabaret and a section of London Bridge. A company of 20 will be seen in this celebrated vehicle, representative of an older era in the theater. The run of "After Dark" is announced for two weeks.

Booming the Bard.

Battering down the accumulated prejudices of three decades, or more, Shakespearean drama bids fair, during the cinema year of 1935-1936, to make both the motion-picture producer and the motion-picture patron Stratford-upon-Avon conscious.

Max Reinhardt already has completed what is heralded as a prodigious film version of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Rumors that Norma Shearer would be starred in a camera-and-microphone version of "Romeo and Juliet" have been confirmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and next Friday that distinguished artiste and innovator in the theater, Eva Le Gallienne, will headline the stage bill at Loew's Fox Theater in this city in the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet."

One is able to look back over the years, to be sure, and recall that when they were in the heyday of their unexampled popularity, Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne made a silent screen version of "Romeo and Juliet" and that Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks once played around before the lenses in a frankly overacted adaptation of that rip-roaring farce, "The Taming of the Shrew," but never has the Bard been so eagerly embraced by the picture-makers and the picture-gazers until now.

What Will Harvest Be?

Just what the outcome will be of Miss Le Gallienne's adventure on the Fox stage in one of the most liltingly lovely scenes from Shakespeare's immortal tragedy is as problematical in Miss Le Gallienne's own mind as in the minds of those who follow theater trends with some closeness and fidelity.

It is her conviction that the cinema already has gone far in educating the amusement-seeking public to the charm and inspiration of fine acting by providing an abundance of it on the screen. Reading between the lines, it is almost possible to make of Miss Le Gallienne a disciple of Percy Hammond's theory that the motion picture is the contemporary "American theater."

It requires a considerable stretch of the imagination to harmonize amusement tastes that will be attracted to the box-office by a picture dealing with "Charlie Chan in Egypt" and Eva Le Gallienne in one of Shakespeare's most poetically beautiful moments of romance on the stage. These two seem not to go together at all.

I mean to say that those attracted to the theater by Mr. Warner Oland's profound deductions in the solution of crimes of violence would hardly find the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" the sort of thing that would appeal with greatest penetration to their sense of exciting entertainment. And vice versa, of course.

Is a Single Booking.

At least, it will be an interesting experiment in which Miss Le Gallienne must have faith or she never would have consented to make it. Her week in Washington, incidentally, is the only one booked for her in the immediate future. She will return to her farm upon the conclusion of the local engagement and continue to read plays in a despairing hope that she will be able to find one suitable for next season's use.

When Miss Le Gallienne appeared recently as headliner at the Capitol Theater in New York, she did not present Shakespeare, but a short playlet by Alfred Sutro, not ideally gaited to the mental agility of motion picture audiences.

Norma Shearer's selection for the role of Juliet in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's proposed picturization of "Romeo and Juliet" seems an eminently judicious one in view of the surprising facility with which she has assumed the stellar roles in such divergent works as "Smilin' Thru," "Strange Interlude" and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," all played on the living stage by stars popularly supposed to tower over Miss Shearer in dramatic stature.

Miss Shearer may not be another Elisabeth Bergner; she may not even be a great actress, but, in the light of past performances, she will do splendidly until a great one comes along!

Lest some misconception arise in the public mind concerning the actual reopening of the Belasco Theater somewhere in the general vicinity of Labor Day, another feverish bulletin from Lafayette Square brings word that many oustanding pictures already are contracted for next season's early weeks. Among these are mentioned George Arliss' next production for Gaumont British, Clive Brook and Madeline Carroll in "Loves of a Dictator," Evelyn Laye in two wide acclaimed productions, "Princess Charming" and "Evensong;" Ian Kiepura, famous continental tenor, now with Paramount, in "My Song for You" and "My Heart Is Calling" and others of like caliber. Announcement will be made from time to time during the summer of additional bookings and the progress of work on the Belasco through the columns of the daily press.

"Becky" Moves Up.

By special arrangement, consummated with the powers that be assembled in Chicago for RKO-Radio's annual sales convention, "Becky Sharp," the first feature-length picture ever made by the newly perfected three-tone Technicolor process, will be presented for the first time in the National Capital on the screen of RKO-Keith's Theater on Wednesday night of this week at 8 o'clock.

The procedure on this occasion will be slightly at variance with that pursued heretofore in the cases of advanced openings.

On Wednesday, "Hooray for Love," the current screen feature, will be projected for the last time beginning at 6:03 p. m., at which hour the doors of the theater will be closed, but the box office kept open to sell tickets for the later feature. Upon the conclusion of the screening of "Hooray for Love" at 7:15, the house will be emptied and the doors locked. Box office still open.

Reopens at 7:30.

At 7:30 p. m., the doors again will be opened to the public with the first presentation of "Becky Sharp" at 8.

In order to supply contrast and make it possible for the audience to determine for itself how revolutionary the effect of "Becky Sharp" entirely in natural color will be upon the production of motion pictures, Manager Meakin of RKO-Keith's will offer a supplementary program of conventional black-and-white subjects.

It seems worth while to go back and pick up a bit of news omitted from the remarks appearing hereinabove with reference to Norma Shearer and the proposed M.-G.-M. production of "Romeo and Juliet." It would be that John Masefield, dramatist and former poet laureate of Great Britain, has been signed to come to California and lend his distinguished abilities to the fashioning of the screen version of the Shakespeare tragedy. Irving Thalberg, in private life Miss Shearer's husband, will produce the picture. No Romeo has as yet been decided upon, nor has a definite date been set for the shooting to begin.

Washington After Dark!

It never rains but it pours—as might be corroborated by inquiry of any of the Shriners who marched last Wednesday night.

But what I have immediately in mind is that with the Washington Post Club banquet, vaudeville show and dance falling on the same night, it was impossible for your reporter to be present at the simultaneous rout taking place in the spaghetti parlor of our good friend Louis Macina, down E street way toward Tenth, in honor of Henry Armetta, eminent screen comedian, headlining this week's stage bill at Leow's Fox.

However, through no prearrangement or premeditation, we were called to the stage in the National Press Club Auditorium by Master of Ceremonies John Heiney, last Saturday night to interrogate Signor Armetta briefly before a microphone and learned that this is the second week of his tour, which has six weeks still to go before he returns to the Coast to make three pictures for Warner Brothers; that he is no longer under contract to Universal, but is now receiving double his former salary, or approximately the figure for which Universal used to farm him out to other companies; that he played Washington 20 years ago with Lillian Russell and knew Arthur De Titta, Washington manager of Fox Movietone News, when Arthur was just a kid—some 15 years ago—and that he suspects he would discover many changes in Washington if he could only have a few moments to himself in which to hunt them out.

Col. Ratto Tunes Up.

From other reliable sources we learn that Col. Orangelo Ratto, manager of the Palace, spent all Saturday afternoon practicing on his piano-accordion so that he would be in top form for the spaghetti party that night, also that he "imported" a four-piece Italian orchestra, composed of the Bonanno Brothers, for this gala occasion; that when Henry Armetta eats spaghetti, he really takes it seriously, removing his coat for the reeling and unreeling of the long, starchy strands and that all of the other men present did the same thing, thank goodness, on such a night!

Signor Armetta, I am told, made a speech, thanking the local press for having known he was in town. Col. Ratto also made a brief speech, but was unable to read a telegram from Arthur and Helen De Titta, who, like the writer, were unable to be present, written in Italian. It had to be turned over to Lou Macina, who hails from the same city in Sicily as Armetta, Palermo.

At the Post party, Signor Armetta was only one of a long list of representatives of all the night-club floorshows and theatrical stage bills currently playing Washington who graciously appeared to do their bit toward rounding out a very large evening in commemoration of the second anniversary of The New Post under the ownership of Eugene Meyer.

"Moon Maiden," a brief adaptation of Ernest Dowson's idyllic "Pierrot of the Minute," will be offered as the curtain-raiser of the "Three Short Plays," to be presented by the Washington Community Players next Monday night, June 24, in the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds. "Moon Maiden," which replaces Quinteros' "A Sunny Morning," will be directed by Arthur Rhodes, with Yerby Pannill as the Moon Maiden and Howard Whitfield as Pierrot. It plays in ten minutes and will be followed by Lord Dunsany's "Gods of the Mountain" and Philip Moeller's "Helena's Husband."

Apropos-of-Nothing Note.

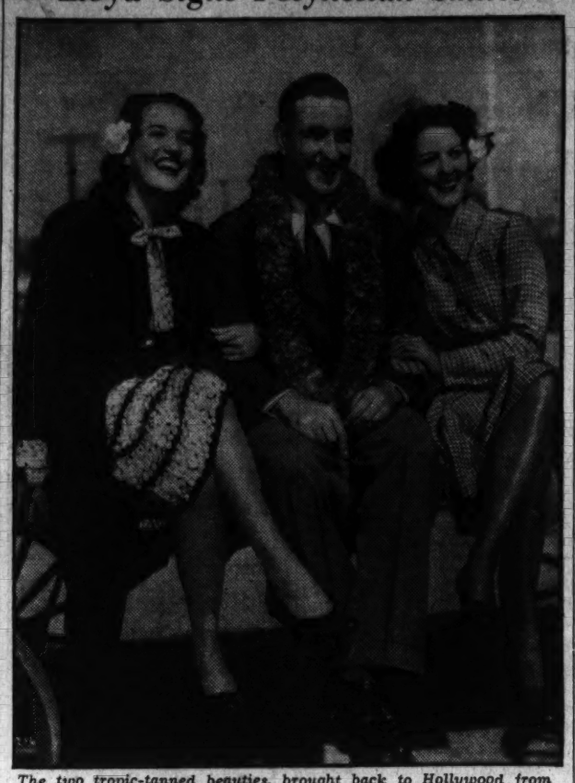
Lloyd Signs Polynesian Smiles



The two tropic-tanned beauties, brought back to Hollywood from the South Seas by Frank Lloyd for important native roles in "Mutiny on the Bounty," express their appreciation in characteristic fashion by presenting him with a lei, that flowery festoon hanging around his neck. They are, presumably reading in the usual direction, Movita Castaneda—whose first name, at least, seems strangely appropriate to the "movies"—and Mamo Clark. "Mutiny on the Bounty" is being made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and should afford Director Lloyd as romantic an outlet for his talents as Sabatini's "The Sea Hawk," a few years back.

Gayety

"DANCE HALL HOSTESS." Mayfair picturization of a story by Tom Gibson, adapted to the screen by Betty Burbridge, featuring Helen Chandler, Jason Robards, and Edward J. Nugent. Directed by Breezy Eason.
"FALSE SHAME" (or "A Doctor's Diary"). A Universum Film Aktiengesellschaft picture from a scenario by Arthur Thomalla, directed by Dr. Rudolph Brebach. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

The summer season at the Gayety was officially inaugurated yesterday with the opening of the traditional series of motion pictures designed to spread the gospel of social hygiene, a double-feature program embellished with a lecture and living models.

The major film attraction is "Dance Hall Hostess," a rather usual yarn about a dime-a-dance girl marrying into the "400," and whose drinking husband commits suicide that she may ultimately wed her former sweetheart. Helen Chandler and Edward J. Nugent play the principal roles, with Jason Robards the final winner.

"False Shame," which actually carried the UFA title of "A Doctor's Diary," presents a cycle of case histories purportedly coming from the private practice of Dr. Rudolph Brebach. Dealing with social diseases—their inception, ravages and cure—the picture offers a sane, if at times, startlingly frank, discourse.

On the stage Dr. L. Barber surveys the social hygiene situation in the United States, offers many a suggestion conducive to increased marital happiness and describes the effects of over and under stimulation of various endocrine glands, the last exemplified by four living models.

Presbyterians Open Meeting At Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 17.—The tenth annual conference of the Baltimore Synod and the Woman's Synod Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church, embracing Maryland, the District of Columbia and a part of Delaware, began at Hood College today and will continue until Friday. About 200 delegates from the Baltimore, Washington and New Castle presbyteries attended the opening meeting of both groups tonight, at which greetings were extended by Dr. Henry I. Stahr, president of the college, followed by an address by the Rev. Dr. John A. Mackey, general secretary of the board of foreign missions, New York City.

The meeting of the officers' council of the Missionary Society was held prior to the evening session.

Beginning tomorrow, the synod and synodical groups will meet together in the morning in the chapel, where Bible exposition will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. John E. Kuizenga, professor of apologetics, Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J. The Rev. Dr. Mackey and Miss Elizabeth Taylor, secretary of promotion, board of national missions, will conduct study groups. Daily conferences will be conducted for laymen, elders and ministers by Dr. Laufer, Dr. Kuizenga and the Rev. Dr. Mackey. Business sessions of the synod will be held Thursday and Friday mornings, and business sessions of the missionary society will be held tomorrow, Wednesday and Friday mornings.

The docket of the synod will be taken up Wednesday afternoon with the enrollment of ministers and elders, election of corresponding members, report of the committee of arrangements by the Rev. Dr. William S. Hess, Hagerstown, former moderator, and the annual sermon by the retiring moderator, the Rev. Dr. Alfred E. Barrows, Washington. The holy communion will complete the service.

Special programs will feature each evening service. Tomorrow Miss Clara Lloyd, Saharanpur, India, and Miss Rachel Denfer, vice president of the board of national missions of the Presbyterian Church, will make addresses. Wednesday evening Mrs. Fred S. Bennett, vice president of the board of national missions, will be the speaker, and Friday evening the Rev. Dr. Mackey will make an address. A banquet will be held Thursday evening, at which former Gov. William Ellery Street of Colorado will speak. He is also former president of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. and a moderator of the Congregational Association.

Other officers of the synod, besides Dr. Barrows, are the Rev. George M. Cummings, stated clerk and treasurer; Woman's Missionary Society, president, Mrs. William L. Darby, Washington; secretary, Mrs. J. Claude Keiper, Washington, and treasurer, Miss Charlotte S. Perkins, Baltimore. Presbyterial presidents are Mrs. M. H. Ellingsworth, Baltimore; Mrs. Joseph S. Hamilton, New Castle, and Mrs. William R. Rhoades, Washington.

The Gossipel Truth.

Hollywood, June 17.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN and Jed Harris are contemplating producing pictures together and are in conference almost nightly. It is Max Reinhardt's intention to make the flicker version of "The Green Pastures" in technicolor. Margaret Sullavan has been escorted places by Preston Sturges, who did the scenario of "The Good Fairy." The Countess de Frasco left her dog, Zara, with Marlene Dietrich and with the promise from Marlene that she would sleep with the dog every night. Dietrich does . . . They are asking $50,000 for the screen rights to Humphrey Cobb's fine novel, "Paths of Glory." The book may not be sold if Sidney Howard's plan to buy the dramatic rights and fashion it into a play goes through . . . Nino Martini is singing his love songs to Astrid Allwyn, a pretty blonde featured player at Fox . . . Shirley Temple is in pictures trying to work her way through kindergarten.

CAROLE LOMBARD.

Eddie Cantor's home in Beverly Hills is something you should see. It is so large that Mrs. Cantor is going to install a public address system so the children can hear her call them . . . The prize is the cocktail room, right off the ballroom. Here, when you press a button a panel slides away and a beautiful oil painting of a beautiful gal in the nude appears for you to stare at . . . Fred Astaire is on his way to New York town . . . Three big name writers are collaborating on a scenario at Paramount and after reading it the producer called it, "Three Men on a Turkey."

CAROL LOMBARD threw a party Sunday night for which she rented the Fun House at Venice—which is the movie colony's Coney Island. The Fun House was closed to the public and open to Lombard's 300 guests for "the little party" . . . The clerks at the marriage license bureau expect to see Tutta Rofa and Jack Donahue . . . The Yacht Club Boys, who made a hit at the Trocadero, have been signed to play in "Sing Governor, Sing" which will be Zanuck's first production at the Fox Westwood studio. With both Zanuck and Sheehan in charge at that studio, the wags call it: "Under Two Flags" . . . Mary Carlisle and James Blakeley are now continuing their romance . . . Mae West's publicity keeps active at stag parties, on gag cards and trick gadgets; and some of them annoy her . . . They were discussing candidates to play Romeo to Norma Shearer's Juliet and someone mentioned Randy Scott, who has just graduated from Westerns. Helen Gwynn said that if he played the role they should call it "Rodeo and Juliet."

Ruth Moody, contract player at Warners, has canceled her engagement to Lester Stoefen, the tennis player . . . Shortly after "Bad Girl" was a big hit, Vina Delmar was hired at $1,500 a week to write another story like "Bad Girl." She worked for several months, turned in her yarn, and nothing was done with it, because it was too much like "Bad Girl." . . . Someone discovered the script at Fox last week and now, because it is very much like "Bad Girl," it is to be rushed into production. It is called "Bad Boy." . . . Anya Tarando, Harold Arlen's girl friend, is playing in "The Girl Friend." . . . Mae West is financing Jim Timony and Boris Petroff in the Hollytown Art Theater, due to open soon. One of the decorations on the wall is to be a drawing of William Shakespeare kissing Mae West's hand.

PEGGY FEARS will have another chance to be a flicker star for she signed a Metro contract at $1,000 a week. Nice reunion scene: Norma Talmadge and her former leading man, Eugene O'Brien, sitting together at the Clover Club, talking and talking . . . A prominent actor, who is getting himself disliked by every one on the set from the stage hand to the director, walked over to the man in charge of the music department and said: "I don't know a thing about music but I can orchestrate a number." . . . Mary Howard, a "Follies" doll, and Yip Harburg, the song writer, are romantic . . . Jerome Kern likes to tell this Wilton Lackaye story. At the time the late Mr. Lackaye was playing in a musical and a chorine who was making only $40 a week drove up to the stage door in an expensive auto. Lackaye pointed to the chorine and said to his companion: "She's only a chorus girl and she comes to the theater in an expensive car and the stars use the subway." The chorine stepped out and said: "I heard you. And tomorrow, just for that, I'll come in a more expensive car." Lackaye answered: "You might drive up in a more expensive car, but not just for that."

Lila Damita and Errol Flynn have made plans to elope to Yuma next week . . . The reason "Awake and Sing" hasn't been sold to the movies is that Clifford Odets insists that it be written in the contract that the propaganda in the play can't be changed or omitted . . . E. Ray Goetz met Ferenc Molnar while abroad and tried to sign him to go to Hollywood. Molnar wasn't interested in Hollywood because of what they did to his plays. He was highly pleased, however, with "No Greater Glory," the movie version of "The Paul Street Boys." Molnar told Goetz that he was deeply moved by this picture and that he wept while seeing it. Goetz became very interested. How much did you get for the story?" he asked. "Now you'll really see me weep," answered Molnar.

Virginia Group Closes Sessions

Church Conference Passes Social Resolution.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 17.—Resolutions sanctioning "every movement encouraging economic and social justice, goodwill among peoples, classes and nations" and opposing war and "the present day armament race" were passed at the closing session of the Virginia Conference, United Brethren Training School at Shenandoah College.

Another resolution stated: "We discourage all immoral tendencies arising from motion pictures, dance, forms of gambling, vicious and suggestive literature and traffic in and use of alcoholic beverages, and pledge ourselves to keep our school and its influence free from the wasteful example of the cigarette and other forms of tobacco discouraged by the church."

Postmaster League Opens Convention

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 17.—The annual convention of the Virginia branch, National League of District Postmasters, got under way today with more than 150 delegates registered, but James A. Farley scheduled to address them, was not present. He sent a message saying it was imperative for him to be in Boston.

Clyde M. Saunders, Richmond postmaster; W. D. Melton and W. A. Hamma, his assistants, were the principal speakers this afternoon, discussing methods used in larger postoffices. The annual banquet tonight, a business session and election tomorrow, and an address by E. A. Meeks, secretary of the national league, will bring the meeting to a close. E. S. Moore, of Staunton, president of the Virginia branch, is in charge of the session.

Funeral services will be held Thursday from his home at 8:30 a. m. Solemn requiem mass will be held at 9 o'clock at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, and burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mr. Quill was a member of the Holy Name Society and the Potomac Council, Knights of Columbus.

J. W. McKinley Postal Leader, Is Dead at 69

Noted Attorney Organized National League of Postmasters.

Dr. J. William McKinley, noted Washington attorney and business man, died at his home, 1945 Calvert street, early yesterday after an illness of six months. Dr. McKinley had lived in Washington since 1888. He was born November 14, 1866, in Russellville, Ohio, son of Amos and Evaline Williamson McKinley.

Dr. McKinley took up the study of law on arriving in Washington and in 1893 was graduated from the National University Law School with the degrees of bachelor of law and master of law.

He received the degree of doctor of civil law from George Washington University in 1900 and in 1903 the degree of master of diplomacy. Dr. McKinley founded the National Correspondence Institute, of which he was president. He likewise headed the National Capital Manufacturing Co. and the National Information Bureau.

He was publisher of the "Postmasters Advocate" and in this capacity organized the National League of Postmasters which helped to place 45,000 postmasters under civil service protection.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Frank Ashbrooke, of Washington, and a son, Capt. Edward B. McKinley, United States Army. Funeral services and burial will be held in Russellville, Ohio.

Mrs. Walper Medalist in D.C. Play

By Dave Herman.

MRS. LEO WALPER, of Kenwood, who smooths out the rough spots in her golf play on her husband's driving range, shot an 85 yesterday at Indian Spring Country Club to win the medal in the District women's championship.

Pacing a strong field of more than 65 golfers, Mrs. Walper went out in 43 and came back in 42 to nose out Helen Dettweiler, of Congressional, and Elizabeth Houghton, of Chevy Chase, by one stroke.

Playing directly in back of Mrs. Walper, Miss Dettweiler needed to finish 4-4, one over par, to tie Mrs. Walper for the honor, but she wound up with a five on the home hole after going one over on the short seventeenth.

The tall Congressional lassie missed a 10-footer on the home green that would have given her a par four.

Miss Houghton, daughter of the former Ambassador to Great Britain and Germany, needed pars on the last two holes to tie. She secured her three on the seventeenth, but her best on the eighteenth was a five. Both Miss Dettweiler and Miss Houghton had 42s on the outgoing side to take a one-stroke lead on Mrs. Walper. A seven on the thirteenth, a 284-yarder, where she ran into considerable trouble, put a crimp into Miss Houghton's chances.

7 Pars for Medalist.

The medalist registered only seven pars. Miss Houghton had eight and Miss Dettweiler five.

Miss Winifred Faunce, of Manor, defending champion, was exempt from the qualifying rounds, but played nevertheless, and shot a 90, with a fine 42 on the outward voyage. A seven on the tenth and an eight on the sixteenth, where she broke her spoon, caused the champion's score to skyrocket.

Eight of the 16 championship flight qualifiers broke 90. Mrs. Betty Meckley, of the host club, Maryland titleholder, reeled off a brace of 44's for an 88, after starting 5-6-6, and tied with Mrs. Jack Scott, of Congressional, who had 42-46—83; 16-year-old Ellen Kincaid, Beaver Dam girl wonder, who scored a grand 43 on the last nine, despite a six on the home hole, and Virginia Pope, young Kenwood star, who finished with a 43.

Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Manor, runner-up last year, had 45-44—89, a safe qualifier. Mrs. Hume Peabody, of Army and Navy, a most improved golfer, took 50 blows on the first nine, but covered the inward nine in 44 for a 94 total—just getting in.

Mrs. Mackenzie In.

Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, made the grade with her 93, and Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, of the same club, shot 91. Mrs. L. T. Powers, of Manor, had 94, and Mrs. Harvey Cooper, of Manor, and Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, of Chevy Chase, winner recently of the Herald Cup, also did 94's.

Match play opens at 9:30 this morning, with the champion, Miss Faunce, facing Mrs. Keefer. A real scrap is expected between Mrs. Pray and Miss Pope and Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Mackenzie, club rivals.

Senators Loaf As Rainfall Bars Game

Pitchers of Both Teams Get Much-Needed Rest in Day.

By a Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 17. — A rainstorm was reported by the Weather Bureau in the vicinity of the Rocky Mountains today, so officials of the St. Louis Ball Club decided to play safe and cancel today's game with the Nationals. The Weather Bureau, not to mention the aforementioned officials, was no little embarrassed when the sun came out about 8:30 a. m. and proceeded to make it one of the hottest days in St. Louis thus far.

For both Manager Bucky Harris, of Washington, and Rogers Hornsby, of St. Louis, the off-day was a welcome respite from the diamond drudgery of the past few days. Both teams are crying for pitchers, and one day's rest for overworked staffs is worth a priceless sum at the moment.

Tomorrow, Harris will send Bump Hadley against his former teammates, while Cain will do the chukking and ducking for St. Louis. If either fails to go the full distance it isn't too far-fetched to believe that a thorough search of the grandstand will be made for a relief worker. Yesterday one leather-lunged individual volunteered his services with a lusty, "lemme pitch, Rajah."

Jeer Well Timed.

The remark was timed appropriately, striking the calloused Hornsby eardrums just as his fourth pitcher was heading for the showers.

Heine Manush, who has been out of the line-up since the fourth game of the Chicago series with an injured toe, will return to left field tomorrow, and Johnny Stone will replace Fred Schulte in right. Otherwise the line-up will be intact.

Harris said tonight that Russell will open the series with Cleveland on Wednesday, and then will be permitted to return to Washington for a brief visit with his wife, who presented him with a son early Monday morning. The acuteness of the pitching situation precluded any possibility of excusing Russell at this time.

Haas, Perry Favored For Dixie Golf Crown

By Dillon Graham.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

RICHMOND, Va., June 17.—Sam Perry, Birmingham veteran, seeking his third crown, and Fred Haas, jr., the young title holder of New Orleans, ranked as co-favorites tonight for the Southern Amateur Golf Championship starting tomorrow over the James River course of the Country Club of Virginia.

Perry, who won the title six years ago at Chattanooga and three years later at Birmingham, was among some 135 contenders who will battle through the first round of the 36-hole qualifying test in quest of the 31 positions available for the match play competition beginning Thursday.

Johnny Morris, youngster, fired a 71 late today for the longest score of the afternoon. This tied the two rounds shot by Haas in the last few days and also the amateur course record.

Haas, as champion, elected to take the number one position without qualification. As champion, he had the option of trying for the qualifying round medal if he chose. However, he barely slipped in last year and smartly decided to take no chances this time.

Wind Raises Scores.

High winds, which frequently sweep across this course, blew some of the last practice round a bit high, and brought a consensus among the players that scores of 158 likely would make the championship flight, and that the medalists' score probably would be some twelve strokes lower. A year ago, 157 squeezed in the title flight, and 144 won the medal.

Ranked along with Perry as dangerous challengers were Edwin McClure, of Shreveport, medalist last year, who was due to arrive tonight; Morton McCarthy, of Norfolk, who Saturday won the Middle Atlantic championship; Allan Smith, of Asheville; Dick Payne, of Norfolk, runner-up in the Middle Atlantic; Earl Stokes, of Louisville, who was a finalist two years ago; Horace Williams, the Florida champion from St. Petersburg, and Billy Howell, of Richmond.

McCarthy Gets Eagle.

Haas gave notice that he was well on his game with a pair of sub-par 71s, and Perry and Smith cracked out par 72s. McCarthy, hitting his tee shots a mile, showed that he would be a real threat by burning up the first nine holes today in 34, two under par, and finishing with an eagle 3 on the difficult 545-yard ninth hole.

Play in the first of the two 18-hole rounds will get under way around 9 o'clock tomorrow on this rolling, 6,708-yard course.

The site of the 1936 tournament, it was rumored today, will be the Colonial Country Club of Memphis, Tenn. However, no vote has been taken as yet by the association directors.

Johnny Morris, Birmingham youngster, fired a 71 late today for the lowest score of the afternoon. This tied the two rounds shot by Haas in the last few days and also the amateur course record.

Perry took things easy for a 75, while McCarthy reported a par 72, slipping to 38 coming in after negotiating the first nine holes in 34. Polly Boyd, a Chattanooga veteran, also turned in a par-equaling round, while Billy Howell needed 78 strokes.

Giants Pound Daffy Dean, Win, 14-3

New York, June 17 (AP).—The Giants pummeled everything their former nemesis, Paul Dean, could toss at them today and treated Rookie Ray Harrell just as badly to trounce the Cardinals for the third straight time, 14 to 3.

In all they piled up 19 assorted hits, 11 of them off the younger Dean in the first four innings. Hal Schumacher was a bit wobbly at the start, allowing three hits for one run in the opening inning and letting another score on a wild pitch in the second, but that didn't matter after the New York sluggers go into action.

Cotton's 65 Is Record Over Muirfield Links

Edinburgh, June 17 (AP).—Henry Cotton shot a practice round in 65 today over the Muirfield course, where he begins defense of the British open golf championship next week. Cotton played the first nine in 32 and came back in 33.

"My golf was too good to tell about it," he said smilingly.

The champion's 65 is the lowest non-competitive score ever made over Muirfield. In the 1929 championship Walter Hagen, of the United States, the winner with a total of 292, shot the second round in 67 for a new competitive record for the course.

Tribe Wins 4th Straight From Boston, 11-2

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 17.—The Indians made it four straight and four out of five today by defeating the Boston Red Sox, 11 to 2.

The victory enabled the Tribe to go into a tie for third place with Detroit because of the latter's idleness.

Pitcher Oral Hildebrand held the Sox to six widely scattered hits. Pitcher Gordon Rhodes, for Boston, was forced to retire in the fourth inning because of an injured finger, sustained when he deflected Knickerbocker's single to Williams earlier in the inning.

Homers by Averill in the third with one man on base and one by Campbell in the sixth with two on, helped the Tribe clinch its victory. The Tribe scored in every inning but the first, second and fifth.

R. Johnson was hit by a pitched ball in the third and as he started toward Hildebrand his teammates prevailed upon him to go to first base instead.

Fight in Fall Slated for Braddock

Johnson Foresees No Trouble in Making Match for Champ.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Evidently convinced the depression is over so far as the boxing industry is concerned, Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, announced tentative plans today for a heavyweight title fight in September between Jimmy Braddock and Max Schmeling.

Despite the fact that Braddock has held the title for only five days and hadn't expected to be asked to defend it before 1936, Johnson said he thought he would have little trouble arranging the match. He plans to confer with Joe Gould, Braddock's peppery pilot, and Joe Jacobs, American manager of Schmeling, tomorrow.

Schmeling Ready.

Johnston plunged into fresh activity after he had been informed that Schmeling was ready to come to this country next month provided he was assured a title match. The Teuton, former world's titleholder, believes he merits a shot at the championship as a result of his technical knockout victories over Walter Neusel and Steve Hamas in Europe.

"I think I'll not have much trouble getting Braddock and Gould to agree to the bout," Johnston said. "They told me the other day they'd be willing to meet any one of three opponents—Schmeling, Max Baer or Art Lasky.

"We didn't plan another heavyweight fight until next summer, but that was because we thought Schmeling wouldn't want to come over this year."

The bout, if it can be arranged, will be held late in September, probably in Madison Square Garden bowl.

German Agrees.

Jacobs said he received assurance from Gould after last Thursday's title fight that Braddock would give the German former champion a crack at the crown in September. He said he sent that information in a cablegram to Schmeling and received the following reply today:

"Okay. Will be ready to sail in August and fight for championship in September. Regards, Max."

Schmeling is scheduled to meet Paolino Uzcudun in Berlin on July 7. Jacobs is sailing for Germany the latter part of this month to be in his fighter's corner.

Phil Furr to Meet Tony Rock Monday

Will Be Given Dublinsky Bout If He Wins.

Phil Furr, District welterweight champion, will meet one Tony Rock, of the Pennsylvania Rocks, in an 8-round bout on the boxing program at Griffith Stadium next Monday night. Philbert has been promised a shot at the high-ranking Harry Dublinsky, if he succeeds in defeating Rock.

Rock recently took an unanimous decision from Jay McCadon, who holds a win over Furr. He also holds decisions over Frankie Petrolle and Pete Suski and has knocked out Pete Gullotta and held Joe Rossi to a draw.

Harridge Names Marberry As American League Umpire

Chicago, June 17 (AP).—Fred Marberry, veteran relief pitcher recently released by the Detroit Tigers, became a member of the American League umpire staff today, President Will Harridge announced.

Marberry will be kept in Chicago for several days of schooling in American League umpiring technique and will be sent out for active duty in a week or so, Harridge said.

Marberry gained his greatest fame as a relief pitcher with the Nats. In 1926, he figured in 64 games to set a new modern record for pitching activity, and fell only two games short of Ed Walsh's all-time record of participating in 66 games in one season.

After ten years as a relief star with Washington, Marberry was traded by Manager Joe Cronin to Detroit during the winter of 1932-33 in an even swap for Earl Whitehill. He played a prominent part in the Tigers' pennant triumph last season, but his fast ball was lacking this year.

'He Won't Be Sorry,' Ex-Convict Promises As Landis Lifts Ban

KENESAW M. LANDIS.

Joy Unbounded as He Hears Decision on Telephone.

Ex-Convict Promises He Will 'Make Good' for Albany Team.

By the United Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 17.—Edwin (Alabama) Pitts, paroled Sing Sing prison inmate, virtually danced with joy tonight after portals of organized baseball were opened to him.

"Don't raise my hopes," Pitts shouted over the telephone when he was informed by the United Press of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis' decision in Chicago permitting him to enter baseball.

"Are you sure?" he cried, his voice trembling.

Assured that Landis had handed down the long-awaited decision in his favor, Pitts said:

"Gosh, I'm happy. What more can I say?"

May Play Thursday.

Pitts, who was denied permission to enter baseball by the league's committee, probably will play his first game Thursday night. He feels certain he will eventually land a berth with a major league club.

"I'm the happiest man in the world right now," he told the United Press. "I'm just raring to go."

The one-time Sing Sing flash, whose athletic prowess surged from behind the great grey walls that shut him off from the outside, promised to "make good."

"Judge Landis' ruling to let me play ball makes me the happiest man in the world," he said. "I won't do anything to make him regret it.

"John Evers (general manager of the Albany Club, of the International League) and Al Mamaux (manager of the club) will decide the first game I am to play in.

"Johnny is going to have a 'Johnny Evers night' Thursday and he wanted me to play then. Maybe that will be my first game.

To Do His Best.

"Whenever I get in there, whether it's tonight or Thursday, or next week I am going to do everything I can to make my baseball career a success.

"I hope that some day I'll be able to play in the major leagues.

"When I was down there I batted .500 and we played against some pretty good teams. I don't know whether I'll be able to hit like that against International League pitching but you can bet I am going to try my hardest."

"I know I did wrong and I am thankful that I was sent to prison for that wrong," Pitts resumed. "It was the turning point in my life just as this decision may be also.

"In this decision I'm being given the opportunity to launch myself into a career in which I know I can make good.

"If the decision had been adverse to me I had contemplated giving strong consideration to an offer which was made me by Hal Roach in Hollywood. That offer seemed to offer a chance for a career. I had definitely made up my mind not to accept any offer that would have enabled me to capitalize on the publicity given my case."

Practiced with Albany.

"Alabama" has been practicing with the Senators since his release from "the big house" and is confident the International League "won't be too fast" for him.

"I know I will make good in class AA baseball," he said.

"There are those among baseball men that think this league would be a little too fast for me, but I welcome this opportunity to show them and everybody else that I can make the grade."

"Lots of men have stepped off college campuses into organized baseball and made good. The average man doesn't realize the type of baseball we play at Sing Sing.

Coast Crews Favored in Regatta

California, Washington Thought Best in Hudson Classic.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 17.—The prospect of a far Western sweep in the battle for eight-oared supremacy down the Hudson River loomed tonight, the eve of the thirty-seventh championship regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association.

California's Golden Bears, victors in the last two regattas, ruled a strong favorite to make it three straight in the classic 4-mile varsity race. Washington's all-sophomore crew, victor in last year's freshman event and conqueror of California in the "big race" on the West Coast this spring, is the choice to take the junior varsity test over a 3-mile course. Freshman eights of the two far Western universities are co-favorites in the 2-mile preliminary for yearling oarsmen.

East Concedes Nothing.

Eastern naval forces, however, are by no means willing to concede their Western rivals the whole show in advance. It has not only been a bad season for favorites, on land as well as at sea, but the "Old Guard" has developed some of the finest crews seen in years on Eastern waters. This is particularly true of the varsity race, in which Columbia, alone of the seven crews entered, is not figured to have a winning chance.

The entire fleet makes up in class what it lacks in numbers. The entry of 16 crews for the three events is the smallest, but also one of the strongest in ten years.

Although the weather prospects are none too good, upwards of 50,000 spectators likely will witness the regatta from shores, bridges, boats, and an observation train. The prediction is for showers tomorrow, with a break in the heat wave. It was steaming hot tonight in the camps along the Hudson. California, as well as Washington's veteran varsity, will be favored in the big race, regardless of racing or weather conditions. In fact, if Old Man River kicks up a fuss late in the afternoon, the Coast crews will gain an advantage. They have the two inshore lanes, which offer more protection on a blustery day.

Bears Have Veterans.

The Golden Bears will go to the marks with four veterans of last year's championship eight handling the sweeps. They have a new sophomore stroke, Gene Berkenkamp, who is so good that California did not even bring along the oarsman who set the pace last year, Dick Burnley. Their shell is named "The Spirit of '28," in memory of the first Olympic championship crew turned out by the Golden Bears.

Navy will carry most of the Eastern backing in the varsity race, although Cornell, Syracuse and Pennsylvania in that order are also rated contenders. They were beaten by Penn in an eyelash finish for the

Sundrops Wins Charles Town Feature in Heavy Rainstorm

Clouds Open After First 2 Races

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 17.—This mountain brand of racing was run before, during and after a cloudburst this afternoon. Those of the fans who had figured their selections for a fast track had to turn to the mud horses during the latter part of the program. Rain fell lightly during the running of the second race but this was only a taste. Before the third race, the skies wept in buckets full, leaving a track that looked like a tributary of the nearby Shenandoah River.

Thus it was over a sticky, treacherous strip that the fifth race, the day's feature, was run. The victory went to L. L. Sietz's Sundrops, which would have been a hunch had she been named raindrops. However, she probably would have run as well by any name for she showed a distinct liking for the track condition and splashed along in front from start to finish.

Canteret did a lot of futile chasing and collected second money for her efforts. Third in the field of six came Red Riot. Sundrops, ridden by Jockey Snyder, supplied a $9.40 mutuel.

The daily double produced a rather mild pay-off of $40 and many "would-have won had it not rained" to let them tell it. The first race, run over a lightning fast track resulted in a nose decision for Peace Treaty, while the third, contested in the mud, went to Captor, a 9-year-old.

On two occasions, the volume of booing almost wrecked the plant. In the first race, Topsie H., tired approaching the finish and Peace Treaty came along with a rush. The finish looked like another dead heat for a moment, but the numbers 1 and 6 were displayed, indicating that Topsie H. had nosed out Peace Treaty.

The crowd of 2,800 let out a howl worthy of a 10,000 crowd, but the howls turned to cheers a moment later when the numbers were reversed. Of course, the handful who had played Topsie H. and were going to get a $90.60 mutuel did not join in the celebration.

The next booing came in the sixth race. Spero, the favorite, ran around the track on the outside of Busy Master. Entering the stretch, Busy Master was in front and Jockey Majestic steered his mount, carrying Spero with him.

This time the bedlam failed to have any effect. Busy Master's victory stood. One fan carried his complaint to the stewards in person and he was ushered out of the enclosure.

APPOMATTOX	111	7	1	10	10	10	10	Pinnerty	18.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEE TUNE, $6.20, $4.30, $3.70; FAST MOVE, $7.70, $6.40; MINNA, $8.60.

WEE TUNE, away in the first flight, was hustled clear in the first furlong, increased her advantage rounding the far turn and, dominating the running all the way, won with speed in reserve. FAST MOVE, unable to keep up early, was in close quarters on the inside leaving the back stretch, came to the outside in the stretch and closed willingly. MINNA, well placed from the start, continued gamely to the end. BIPARTISAN was prominently placed all the way in an even effort. UPPERCUT never could reach the leaders. OUR ROSE displayed good speed for the first five-sixteenths. COUNT DEAN and APPOMATTOX ran away before the start and never figured in the actual running.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:30. Winner, B. N. Kane's ch. g. (5), by Bolgneur—Millie King. Trained by W. A. Crawford. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:06 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MACK SENNETT, $19.40, $7.10, $4.40; PANA FRANKA, $5.90, $3.50; LAN, $3.90.

MACK SENNETT lacked speed to keep up in the first three-sixteenths though not far from the pace, worked his way up steadily thereafter, and came gamely at the end. PANA FRANKA, quickest to begin, opened up a daylight advantage when reaching the stretch and, despite holding on well, was unable to stave off the closing challenge of the winner. LAN, well placed all the way, had no excuse. LORD TOURNAMENT, lacked his usual early speed, moved up fast near the far turn, made an effort to reach the pacemaker and faltered. DOLLAR KNIGHT had brief early speed.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,000. The Bunker Hill Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:59. Off at 4:00. Winner, Mrs. M. J. White's ch. m. (5), by Benfis—Sekind. Trained by C. Mayberry. Value to winner, $1,300; second, $400; third, $200; fourth, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:46 2-5, 1:11 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALL FORLORN, $16.90, $7.70, $5.30; DREEL, $3.90, $3.00; ACCOLADE, $4.30.

ALL FORLORN, away fast, went to the front in the opening sixteenth, increased her advantage after rounding the far turn and, hard ridden, held DREEL safe at the end. DREEL, unable to keep pace early, came to the outside in the stretch and closed going stoutly. ACCOLADE moved up on the outside, made a bold effort to catch the leader, but, despite vigorous urging, was unable to reach the leaders. PURPIBER, outpaced early, moved upsteadily on the inside after straightening out in the stretch. CARISBROOKE faltered in the last three-sixteenths after racing close to the pace early. BACHELOR DINNER, hard hustled in the opening quarter-mile to gain a prominent position, was never a threat thereafter.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. The Lafayette Handicap. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:29. Off at 4:31. Winner, Mrs. W. C. Bradley's b. f. by Sickle—Be Fair. Trained by W. C. Weant. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIRSICKLE, $20.50, $7.70, $4.90; THOMASVILLE, $5.40, $3.80; DON GUZMAN, $3.20.

FAIRSICKLE, worked her way to the leaders gradually while racing on the outside, continued to race wide and, closing gamely through the stretch, was up in the last stride to overtake THOMASVILLE. The latter moved up fast when straightened out on the back stretch, took command after rounding the far turn and, holding on gamely, just missed. DON GUZMAN went into command in the run to the first turn, was rated along under slight restraint, but despite holding on gamely, was unable to withstand the challenges of the first two. COHORT MISS closed some ground. SAND BABY, a trailer for the first five furlongs, moved up stoutly on the inside in the last three-sixteenths.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:06½. Winner, P. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PASS UP, $8.10, $4.60, $3.00; CROWDED HOURS, $4.00, $2.80; PLAYMORE, $3.00.

PASS UP, quickest to begin, drew clear in the run to the first turn, was steadied along under slight restraint, increased her advantage swinging from the back stretch, and was never threatened, winning as if outclassing her opposition. CROWDED HOURS, unable to keep pace early, closed gamely in the last quarter-mile. PLAYMORE was well placed all the way. LOVITO was unable to offer any serious contention. LEANA G. followed the pace closest until nearing the stretch, faltering thereafter.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:36. Off at once. Winner, J. L. Robert's br. g. (6), by Wildair—Mabel McKane. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13, 1:39 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAD WIND, $7.30, $3.50, $2.50; BILLOWY WAVE, $4.30, $2.70; GENERAL A., $2.40.

MAD WIND was not hurried during the opening six furlongs, moved up stoutly on the outside, hard ridden to the end, outlasted BILLOWY WAVE at the end. The latter, under steadying restraint while following the pace, moved up stoutly when called upon and fought it out courageously with the winner. GENERAL A. on the outside when reaching the back stretch, dropped back approaching the stretch. VENOOR had good speed for the first half-mile.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Charles Town. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:06. Off at 6:07. Winner, L. B. Council's b. f. (4), by Sir Galahad III—Fasnet. Trained by P. B. Codd. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GUIDING LIGHT, $7.30, $3.70, $3.10; ST. OMER, $3.70, $3.00; ADVOCATE JUNIOR, $5.20.

GUIDING LIGHT obtained clear sailing on the inside when reaching the back stretch, wore down PASS for the command and, drawing into a good lead, held ST. OMER safe. The latter, outpaced early, moved up threateningly on the inside in the last quarter-mile and closed gamely. ADVOCATE JUNIOR, taken back in first half-mile, closed willingly under punishment. MARS PALATINE closed a good run. HELEN BAB tired. PASS showed good speed, but bore out slightly and faltered. EUCLID was outrun. WEST STAR had early speed.

Charles Town Race Track, June 17.

Dear Al:

It's probably a good thing a storm broke at this track this afternoon and cooled things a bit. The whole place was going screwy. In the first race, the placing judge did something or other and Topsie H.'s No. 1 was put in the win position instead of Peace Treaty's No. 6. The boos that came from the grandstand almost blew the judges' stand across the mountains. Then the numbers were changed. In the second race, the wrong price was displayed but that, too, was corrected. Then came a report that Ethan Allen, which finished third in the eighth last Saturday, was carrying less weight than he was supposed and Tiny Miss was awarded the $20. Of course, this didn't help those who bet Tiny Miss to show. The horse, Apathy, was found with a mouthful of blisters this morning so the veterinarian examined the horse and reported that he had been grazing on poisonous weeds. The calling of the finish of the first race almost had been forgotten when the stewards sent over this message: "The placing judges all agreed the finish of the first race was 6—1—2. The placing judge flashing the number to the results board pulled the wrong one." But the storm came and the weather cooled.

BILL.

First race—Longful has been threatening to win a heat here. Has speed enough to overcome that inside post position and I expect Sammy Palumbo to ride to victory. Lady Nymph and Lady Windsor for the other awards.

Second race—Small Change is another of those fit Bond horses and fits in this field very well. Benefits from the inside position at the five-furlong pole. Light weight makes Conoble Lake a threat. Clifton Agnes for the rest.

Third race—Nora's Grace should bounce out of the No. 1 stall and make every post a winning one. Last was a good effort. Miss Patches runs honest races and appears to be the one to beat. Dunora for the show.

Fourth race—Justa Teacher, on a fast track, should have little trouble in taking care of this sort of company. Gets in light thanks to the apprentice allowance. Big Dipper would take it on an off track. Silver Arch for the minor award.

Fifth race—Busy Ike is a fair sort of sprinter and deserves a chance in a field of this caliber. Employment and Brilliant Girl are fit and will be ready to battle it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Sixth race—Miss Toucan has been carefully groomed for a maiden effort of this sort. Tiny Miss and Plain Ace are the best of the others if assured a chance to run. Porteuse would move up if allowed to get off the "also eligible list."

Billy Dettweiler Retains Maryland Junior Golf Title With 74

Local Player Bests 43 in Tourney

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 17.—Billy Dettweiler, of Congressional, remains Maryland's best junior golfer. The 20-year-old Washington linksman who a month ago won the Maryland Scholastic Association laurels, today retained his State junior title by scoring a 74 in the annual 18-hole title competition at Rolling Road. There were 43 contestants in the test.

Two players were tied for the runner-up laurels, Otto Greiner, Forest Park, and Bobby Brownell, of Manor. Each carded 75s.

Dettweiler played steady golf in both rounds, going out in 38 and playing the inside nine in 36. He had a 6 at the ninth, the result of a three-putt green, and also was two over par at the long par 5 eleventh.

Dettweiler's card:

Out..... 4 5 3 3 3 5 4 5 6—38
In..... 3 6 5 5 4 3 3 3 4—36—74

Brownell Had Chance.

Brownell had an excellent chance to tie Dettweiler. The former was just off the eighteenth green in two and needed only two putts for a 4 and a 74. However, his approach putt went beyond the cup and he also was too strong coming back and wound up with a 5.

Hollis Cornwall, of Forest Park, started off as if he would burn up the Catonsville course. He had a drive of more than 260 yards and then holed out his approach for the only eagle 2 of the tournament, but he took a 6 at the par 4 second and also dropped two strokes to par at the short third and finished in the 80s.

The 18-hole results of other Washingtonians were:

J. Brownell, Manor, 83; De Sales Powell, Columbia, 93; Jack Dettweiler, Congressional, 95; Henry Johnson, Columbia, no card.

Row Over Players Halts County Tilts

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 17.—Owing to a dispute over the eligibility of players, but four games were played at the opening of the County League, composed of Frederick, Middletown, Thurmont, Emmitsburg, Brunswick, New Windsor, Woodsboro and Union Bridge. Thurmont defeated Middletown, 6 to 5, and Brunswick won from New Windsor, 6 to 2. A capacity crowd waited for Taneytown and Union Bridge to settle their differences at the former place over the use of Repp, whose name appears on the list of both teams. Taneytown insisted on the use of Repp and Union Bridge refused to play. The Frederick-Woodsboro game scheduled at Woodsboro was not played, as Frederick dropped out of the league because of the ruling of President M. J. Thompson that the team could not use four players of the Frederick Hustlers, semi-professional club. It is expected that another county town club will take over Frederick's franchise.

Donohue, Star Athlete, To Coach at St. John's

Annapolis, Md., June 17.—John C. Donohue, of Baltimore, one of the most outstanding athletes developed at St. John's College in many years, today was appointed to the athletic department of the college and will be assistant coach in football, basket ball and lacrosse, the three sports in which he starred during his four years. He was an all-Maryland selection in basket ball and football. He also was rated an all-American lacrosse player. Donohue played center on the football team, guard at basket ball, and a midfield position in lacrosse. He holds nine varsity letters.

Under his appointment, Donohue also will be an assistant in the procurement section of the student bureau.

Valley League Arbiter Is Rebuked by Fans.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., June 17.—John Prophet became the third umpire in the Shenandoah County League to tender his resignation to J. Grove Kniesley, president of the loop, here today. The resignation of Umpire Prophet was an outgrowth of yesterday's game, in which he was calling between Edinburg and Strasburg. According to the officials, the players on the Strasburg team and many of the fans that witnessed the tilt disputed various decisions throughout the game and when he walked from the field in the fifth inning he was greeted with a storm of boos and cat-calls.

"I called the game as fair and square as I could," Prophet told reporters. "I believe that the fact that Strasburg was on the small end of the score was the reason for their conduct."

Prophet named Rittenour, member of the Strasburg team, as one of the chief causes for the dispute as he is said to have argued throughout the five innings with the umpire.

Other umpires that have quit the league are Charles Pingley and John Middleton, the latter resigning following a row with Edinburg players in a game between them and Mount Jackson last week.

District Team Splits 2 With Frederick Nine

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 17.—Frederick Hustlers, former Blue Ridge League semiprofessional team, split even with the Majestic Radio nine, Washington, D. C., at McCurdy Field, the Hustlers winning the first game, 8 to 0, and the Washington team taking the nightcap in seven innings, 7 to 3. It was the first game the Hustlers have lost in nine starts.

The Hustlers won the opener in the first inning when three singles, two walks, two errors and a triple accounted for six runs. Two more were added in the second. After this inning McBride settled down and held the home team scoreless the remainder of the game. Fraley held the Washington team to three hits and had but 31 batters to face him.

DeAngelis held Frederick to seven scattered hits in the nightcap and was effective with men on bases. The Majestics scored two runs in the first inning on singles by Webb, Johnson and Campbell and a double steal. Three more were chalked up in the second on singles by McGeever, Wynne, DeAngelis and Certel. The Washington team clinched the game in the fourth by scoring another pair of runs.

HARRISONBURG, Va., June 17. The victory march of the Culpeper Champions and the inauguration of night baseball at Harrisonburg is the talk of fans as the third week of Valley League play gets under way tomorrow.

Culpeper vanquished the Heurich Brewers, of Washington, 6 to 4, yesterday after drubbing Harrisonburg, runners up for the title last year, 9 to 2 Saturday. The champions registered 8 to 0 shutouts over Waynesboro and Orange in their first two games. With Walter Beall, Lefty McIntyre and Herb Hash doing the hurling and a bunch of siege guns supporting them, fans see little hope of stopping Culpeper the first half. Of course, some refer to the meteoric start of the Champions last season, only to lose to Harrisonburg during the regular campaign and then snapping out of it to triumph in the play-off series for the pennant.

Night Play Begins.

Night baseball will be inaugurated at Harrisonburg Tuesday night and several thousand fans are expected to view the innovation. An added attraction is that Staunton and Harrisonburg, the two cellar occupants who have not yet tasted victory, meet in their first league encounter.

The schedule for the remainder of the week follows:

Waynesboro in Tie.

Waynesboro and Front Royal, now tied for second place, each came through with two victories over the week-end, while Charlottesville, previously tied with Culpeper in the undefeated ranks, dropped two encounters. Charlottesville was handicapped by the absence of several star performers who are on the northern tour of the University of Virginia nine.

Heurich broke even and rank with Charlottesville in third place. The Brewers defeated Orange and then lost a close 6-to-4 contest to Culpeper when Walter Beall gained the verdict over Watt. Orange, getting off to a bad start, dropped both contests played. Harrisonburg and Staunton played only one game and thus suffered only one loss.

Harrisonburg suffered a severe blow in the Culpeper contest when Creath, star third baseman, broke his ankle sliding and will be out for the season. Rapp, from the University of Ohio, finished the game.

Notables Plan to Attend Italian-American Outing

An athletic outing and field day will be staged Sunday at the new Marshall Hall Park by the Italian-American A. C., with the Marchese and Marchesa Rossi Longhi, counselor of the Italian Embassy, and his wife as the guests of honor.

A tug-of-war between the local Italian World War veterans and members of the club, for a trophy to be donated by Ambassador Augusto Rosso, will be one of the features. In charge of the sports program will be Commander Alfred A Picchione.

Former D. C. Champion Enters Canadian Amateur

Hamilton, Ontario, June 17 (AP).—Dick Lunn, of Washington, D. C., former District champion, is one of 14 golfers from the United States who will play tomorrow in the qualifying round of the Canadian Amateur Championship, which will go undefended because Albert (Scotty) Campbell, Seattle public links star and twice winner, failed to enter.

Berger's Work Wins 2 Games for Braves

Boston, June 17 (AP).—Wally Berger's terrific slugging today paced the lowly Boston Braves to a Bunker Hill Day twin victory over the Cincinnati Reds by 8-3 and 5-1 margins.

Berger lashed out his tenth homer of the season against Gene Schott with a mate on in the seventh inning to break a 2-2 deadlock and poled out another four-bagger off the relieving Ed Hollingsworth in the next frame with two on base.

In the second game Berger got a triple and a single against Paul Derringer. He got four hits for 12 bases and drove in a total of six runs.

Charlie Rollins Wins 'Bowl' For Good

ALEXANDER, Va., June 17.—Charlie Rollins, former University of Virginia athlete, has gained permanent possession of the "Bowl" at Belle Haven Country Club by defeating Commander Scott McFarlane, 10 and 9.

To get possession of the beautiful trophy permanently, a golfer of the club must win over all competition three times. Rollins won the championship matches in 1932, 1934 and this year. Tommy Ryan, professional at the Belle Haven Club, was given full credit by Rollins for the latter's success.

Bill Langford, coach of the American Legion Juniors, cut his squad to 20 men today. A second cut is necessary within the next week to have the team ready for State competition by June 30. Fifteen players are to be carired.

The St. Mary Celtics have a three-game trip next week-end. Friday night they oppose Harrisonburg there at 8:30 o'clock; Saturday, Richmond at Richmond, and Sunday, the Brewers in Washington.

Another Alexandria nine has an active week ahead. The Alexandria Eagles play Culpeper here Wednesday, Fredericksburg Elks there Friday, and the Chesapeake A. C. at West Point, Va., Saturday and Sunday. Shout Taylor, Hank Gardner, Jack Hudson and Fred Burrell will pitch in these games.

Mt. Briar Team Idles To Lead County Loop

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 17.—The Mount Briar team moved into second place in the Washington County Baseball League when the local Cabbies dropped yesterday's game with the Woodmen, 4 to 2, while Mount Briar was idle. Hancock continues to lead the circuit with seven victories and one defeat.

The Chevvies of this city proved easy for Boonsboro, which won, 11 to 1, while the Antietams rallied in the late innings to defeat Williamsport, 10 to 8. The only other league game resulted in a 14-to 8 victory for Sharpsburg over the Blue Sox.

Klein's Homers Nip Dodgers for Cubs

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, June 17.—Two home runs by Chuck Klein, his eighth and ninth of the season, supplied the margin between victory and defeat for the Cubs today as they defeated the Dodgers for the third time in succession, 5 to 3.

Golfers Arrive For College Tourney

"No Crip," Say First to Play Congressional; Matches Monday.

GOLF stars from colleges throughout the country will begin their invasion of Congressional Country Club's links this week to sharpen their games for the National Intercollegiate championship scheduled to open next Monday morning.

First to arrive yesterday were two entrants from the University of Buffalo, Wellington Shilling and William Shurcet, who played eighteen holes, and admitted after they left the home green that the course "is no crip."

Joe Lynch, president of the Intercollegiate Association and standard bearer from Georgetown, anxious to put his college back in the golfing sun with a victory in the big event next week, went through a workout, and scored a 73.

Expected either today or tomorrow is drawling Charlie Yates, of Georgia Tech, defending champion, who has passed up the Southern Amateur in Richmond in order to be on the scene of the intercollegiate battle early. Yates, who will be followed by the man who was Bobby Jones' Boswell, Oscar B. Keeler, dean of Southern golf writers, is dead serious about winning his second straight title. Also in earnest are two former champions, Johnny Fischer, of Michigan, and Walter Emery, of Oklahoma.

Three Champions Play.

For the first time in the 38 years of the championship three champions will compete. This situation is brought about by the fact that Fischer did not participate in 1933, since he left school to play on the Walker Cup team and was on the sidelines last season because of illness. Also for the first time the Naval Academy will send a complete team.

All three champions will attempt to duplicate the feat of Dexter Cummings, of Yale; Fred Lamprecht, of Tulane, and George Dunlap, of Princeton, each of whom won two titles.

Entries will close today. Already the committee has received more than 100 entries. A banner field of 150 is in prospect.

Utility Stocks Again Register New Year's High

Rails and Industrials Close With Average Unchanged.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—The stock market today jogged along at a leisurely pace headed, apparently for no definite goal. With the exception of modest gains in the utilities and some specialties, most price changes were narrowly irregular.

The power shares were bid up only moderately so far as most individual issues were concerned, but the rise was enough to carry the Associated Press average for 15 utility stocks to new high ground for 1935 at 31.4, up .4 of a point. Small declines in industrials and rails, however, left the Associated Press average of 60 stocks unchanged at 44.2. Turnover in the stock exchange dipped below the million-share mark to 907,910 shares.

Corn Up 2 Cents

Chicago, June 17 (AP).—Big buying of corn late today gave a sudden hoist to values of all grain. The stampede to purchase corn was attributed largely to fright over reports that backwardness of planting was putting the 1935 domestic corn crop into a precarious position. Corn jumped 2 cents a bushel and closed firm, 1⅜-1⅞ up, July 80⅝-¾, wheat ⅞-1⅛ up, July 80¼-¼, oats ⅜ to 1 cent advanced, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to an equal gain.

Charles E. Mitchell Heads Blythe & Co.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—Charles E. Mitchell, former head of National City Bank, has been elected chairman of Blythe & Co., Inc., investment bankers.

He retired from the bank nearly three years ago and came back to Wall Street last fall. Little was heard of him until last week when the Postal Telegraph Corporation engaged him as financial adviser.

$239,000,000 Land Bank 3s Offered Today

Issue to Refund 4½ Per Cent Bonds Is Priced at 98½.

New York, June 17.—The largest refunding bond issue with the lowest coupon in the history of the Federal Land Banks will be offered to the public tomorrow by a nation-wide group of banks and investment houses acting under the direction of Charles R. Dunn, fiscal agent of the Federal Land Banks.

The issue, a refunding operation, comprises $239,000,000 10 to 20-year 3 per cent Consolidated Federal Farm Loan bonds, due July 1, 1935, and not redeemable before July 1, 1945. At the offering price of 98½ and interest, the bonds will yield about 3.10 per cent. The banking and investment houses identified with the offering are Alex. Brown & Sons; the Chase National Bank; Brown Harriman & Co, Inc.; the National City Bank; Guaranty Trust Co.; Edward B. Smith & Co.; the First Boston Corporation and Lee Higginson Corporation.

Proceeds from the sale of the bonds, together with cash on hand, will be used to retire the $269,020,440 of 4½ per cent bonds of the individual banks called for payment July 1. In connection with the call for the 4½ per cent bonds, Mr. Dunn points out that to the extent that holders of these bonds agree, prior to the closing of the books, to surrender their holdings on the payment date at 100 per cent of their face value in part payment for the 3 per cent consolidated bonds, they will receive, so far as practicable, preferential treatment.

Although the bonds being offered are not Government obligations and are not guaranteed by the Government, they are the secured obligations of banks operating under Federal charter with Governmental supervision by the Farm Credit Administration. As of May 31, last, the aggregate amount of outstanding bonds issued individually by the banks was $805,795,680.

Exports to Europe Off; Canada Best Customer

United States exports to Europe, according to Department of Commerce figures, were $63,388,000 in April against $80,060,000 in April last year, while April imports from Europe were $48,249,000, compared with $39,071,000 in the same month last year.

In April the United States sold more to Canada, $28,581,000, and bought more from Canada, $22,923,000, than to or from any other nation.

Bankers Would End Conditional Underwriting and Other Undesirable Recent Changes in Security Distribution Practices.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, June 17.—There has been increasing dissatisfaction among investment houses and corporate issuers of securities with several of the practices that have developed recently in the origination and distribution of new security offerings. While the revival of new financing activity during the last few months has been very gratifying, and the Federal securities act of 1933 as now administered, has been demonstrated to be a workable statute, this law and the investment bankers' code have brought about certain changes which are regarded as far from wholesome.

One example of how investment banking technique has been changed for the worse, the critics point out, is the unwillingness of underwriting houses to make a firm or absolute commitment to buy a new issue when the purchase contract is signed. Formerly, when an issuing corporation sold its securities to a group of bankers, the sale as a rule was a final one, subject only to the findings of lawyers and accountants that the company's representations were as stated.

Underwriting Has Conditions Attached.

Now, on the other hand, a number of conditions are customarily set forth in the purchase agreement, so that the underwriting commitment is no longer a firm one. A perusal of prospectuses of recent issues shows that it has become habitual to place underwriting upon a conditional basis. The Federal securities act is held largely responsible for this change, which is definitely disadvantageous to corporate issuers.

As long as the bond market conditions remain favorable, as at present, the conditional character of the underwriting contract makes only a nominal difference. Should there be any sudden turn for the worse in financial conditions, however, issurers may be seriously embarassed because an issue they thought they had sold is not actually taken up by the underwriting bankers.

One reason for the conditional character of the present-day underwriting contract is the 20-day waiting period provided in the Federal securities act. Bankers hesitate to incur the risk of a decidedly unfavorable turn in the security market during this period, and protect themselves accordingly.

A second reason advanced is that the liability provisions of the act and certain restrictions contained in the investment bankers' code discourage all but a relatively small number of houses from engaging in the actual underwriting of securities. Virtually all corporate security issues now coming on the market are first acquired by a small purchase group, consisting of a few underwriting houses. The purchase group then organizes a selling group, consisting of a large number of dealers who assume no underwriting commitment whatsoever. The members of the selling group merely retail the issue, and are paid a selling commission on each sale. The few members of the original purchase group, who alone assume any underwriting liability, naturally feel they must proceed cautiously, and so condition their responsibility.

Favor Intermediate Banking Group.

This problem has been given special study latterly by a subcommittee of the Investment Bankers Association of America, headed by R. Parker Kuhn, of the First Boston Corporation. The subcommittee suggests as a solution a return to former syndicate practice, wherein a "banking group" was organized immediately to take over the issue from the purchase group when the latter acquired the issue. This intermediate underwriting group consisted of a larger number of strong houses, and so permitted the original purchasers to spread the risk more widely. It also assured the co-operation of all these houses in the organization of the selling group. The subcommittee holds, however, that the organization of such banking groups to permit a return to unconditional underwriting is not feasible unless the Securities and Exchange Commission will change several of its existing regulations, and it may be necessary to effect some modification in the liability provisions of the law as well to encourage addtional houses to reenter the underwriting business.

This is only one of several changes in the law and the code wanted to improve security distribution practice. The three basic objectives of successful syndicate work—expedition, good distribution and low cost—will be more easily attainable, it is contended, if the 20-day waiting period is shortened, if the code restrictions on salesmen are relaxed in some particulars, if the requirement of a 5 per cent down payment on new subscriptions is modified or eliminated, and if the three-day period required in the code before dealers need reply to invitations to join syndicates is shortened.

If the investment bankers' code, which has now lapsed, should be restored under the segis of the Securities and Exchange Commission, as is now being actively considered, such changes are likely to be effected in its provisions first. In the meanwhile, the "Washington committee" of the Investment Bankers Association, headed by John M. Hancock, of Lehman Brothers, plans to present these problems fully to the commission.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

A better tone in the French franc with corresponding decline in the pound sterling featured dealings in world exchange centers yesterday.

In London the dollar gained ground at .9211 to the pound, while later in New York the British unit was 1½ cents lower at $4.92¾.

The dollar was lower in Paris at the equivalent of 6.603 cents to the French franc, while in American dealings later, the franc advanced .00¾ of a cent at 6.60¼ cents.

Jones Demands Lower Capital For Railroads

R. F. C. Head to Seek Reduction of Structure in All Reorganizations.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Drastic reductions in the capital structure of most financially troubled railroads will have to be made before they can expect further aid from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Chairman Jesse Jones asserted yesterday.

His general statement applied specifically to the proposal of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Co. The road is contemplating reorganization and has offered to cut $178,000,000 from its $750,000,000, capital. Jones said he had told officials of the road this was not enough.

He added that in all future reorganizations that will be undertaken with the aid of the RFC, bondholders as well as the stockholders will have to be represented in operation of the road. In many instances, Jones added, equities that were worth next to nothing, were dominant in the management.

Reduction of fixed interest charges was declared by Jones the most important factor. He indicated that the corporation will insist that in changes, instead of issuing bonds in refunding, more stock will be given to bondholders.

A plan for reorganization of the Western Pacific Railroad is expected to be submitted to Jones tomorrow by President Schumacher, of that line. President Baldwin, of the Missouri Pacific, one of the operating committee of the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad, has written Jones that a plan for reorganizing that road also will be submitted soon.

Two plans are expected to be presented shortly for the Missouri Pacific. The Van Sweringen interests who control the road have discussed part of a plan with Jones that would require about $70,000,000 in aid from the RFC. The chairman objected, however, to the liberality with which some junior bondholders would be treated.

These issues selling around $27 on the open market for a $100 bond, Jones said, would be given $25 cash and income bonds for the remainder under the plan. He believes that not over $15 in cash should be given such bondholders. He declared that the Missouri Pacific is in much better shape as to earnings than many other roads in receivership.

France Places Order For 20 Zephyr Trains

New York, June 17.—Work on the engineering plans for 20 streamlined, stainless steel trains to be built in France for Chemin de Fer de l'Etat has been started by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company. The trains will cost about $1,200,000, and are to be constructed by the Carel-Fouche Company. An additional car for the Burlington Railroads's zephyr stainless steel train was completed yesterday by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company.

City Co. Board Is Held Liable For $1,703,703

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—The directors of the National City Co. were held liable to the stockholders for $1,703,703.23 in a decision handed down today by Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Dore confirming the report made by Referee Frank C. Laughlin on May 25.

The report was submitted in connection with a $70,000,000 accounting action brought by a group of minority stockholders who charged the directors with mismanagement.

Referee Laughlin was asked to pass upon the propriety of management funds through which certain officials and key employes were rewarded with bonuses from the company's profits.

The referee ruled the funds were legally created, but held that various computations of profits from 1922 to 1928 were inaccurate as the directors had failed to take into account losses from Cuban sugar loans.

Bond Market Moves Upward In All Groups

Junior Rails, for 13th Session, Enjoy Broad, Active Market.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 17.—Resuming the upward trend after a week-end rest, the corporate bond market displayed steadiness in all divisions today with gains of 1 to 2 points numerous among low-priced rails. United States Governments were a trifle irregular.

For the thirteenth consecutive session, junior railroad obligations enjoyed a broad and active market, reflecting not only improvement in the statistical position of the carriers, but a strong investment demand that had gradually spilled over into secondary obligations.

Another outstanding feature of today's market was renewed strength in bonds of International Telephone, which advanced 1 to more than 2 points before the heavy demand was supplied.

Cotton Declines

New York, June 17 (AP).—Cotton was easier today owing to less rainfall in Texas, but trading was restricted awaiting Washington developments. The market closed at net losses of 8 to 12 points and at the low levels for the day.

By the Associated Press.

London—Trading started quietly on the stock exchange today and improved later in the day on good buying of industrials, especially iron and steel shares. Oils and gilt-edged securities hardened while gold mines and translantic shares were easy. Chinese and Japanese bonds were weak. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Rentes improved on the bourse today on Premier Laval's promise to economize drastically. Industrials, however, were generally lower and international shares developed irregularity. The close was irregular.

The proceeds of this issue of Consolidated Federal Farm Loan Bonds, together with cash on hand, are to be used to retire the $269,020,440 Bonds of the individual Banks which are being called for payment July 1, 1935.

On behalf of the twelve Federal Land Banks and under the direction of

with the assistance of the undersigned,

98½% and interest, to yield about 3.10%

Definitive Bonds will, it is expected, be ready for delivery July 1, 1935. To the extent that holders of 4½% Bonds called for redemption agree, prior to the closing of the books, to surrender them on the payment date at 100% of their face value in part payment for these 3% Consolidated Federal Farm Loan Bonds, they are to receive, so far as practicable, preferential treatment. Appropriate cash adjustment will be made on exchange orders.

Copies of the circular of the Federal Land Banks describing these Bonds may be obtained from any of the undersigned:

Alex. Brown & Sons — The Chase National Bank of the City of New York — Brown Harriman & Co. Incorporated

The First Boston Corporation — Lee Higginson Corporation

Pitts May Play Ball, Landis Decides

'Debt to Society Paid; Give Him a Chance,' Czar Rules.

qualification of persons guilty of crime, criminal conduct before seeking to enter such service or employment is a cause for disqualification in like manner as if committed thereafter. Insofar as concerns a general question of fitness for service as a professional player, practically the same question is presented.

"There can be no changes in the general policy representing character qualifications for such employment."

The judge, commenting on the official court record of Pitts' sentence for robbery, said:

"The record shows that it was Pitts who went into a grocery store in Brooklyn and held up a lone clerk with a gun. His accomplice, who was one year older than Pitts, was unarmed and remained outside the store as lookout.

"His accomplice, the record shows, had no previous criminal record, but Pitts had been in five other similar robberies.

Landis said "many reputable people" had approached him in Pitts' behalf.

Reformation Seen.

"The opinion of many of these people," he said, "is one that there has been a complete reformation in Pitts' character. This fact and the fact that barring him from baseball would perhaps have a destroying effect on his entire career provide the reasons for my action."

Pitts became a martyr in the eyes of America's sports fans when Judge Bramham and the executive committee ruled against him. Sympathizers wrote to him and to Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing. Most communications carried this thought:

"He has paid his debt to society. Give him a chance."

Pitts was left on his own as a boy when both his father and stepfather died while the family lived at Peoria, Ill. At 15 he enlisted in the Navy.

He was honorably discharged after his three-year stretch as a sailor and found himself in New York, alone and without friends except for former shipmates. He tried to find a job but couldn't, he said.

Then a newly found acquaintance suggested a way to make some easy money. Pitts agreed, he said, because he wanted food.

A grocery store holdup followed. It netted only $10. Pitts was captured, convicted and sent to Sing Sing for 8 to 16 years for robbery with a gun.

Sing Sing Athlete.

The next time Pitts' name was heard outside the prison walls was as a member of the Sing Sing football team. He starred in every game and his ball-carrying ability became widely publicized.

Pitts also played on the prison baseball team, but his ability on the diamond was known only to other inmates and Warden Lawes.

Two months ago the warden called on Johnny Evers, manager of the International League's Albany club. Lawes said three years were to be taken from Pitts' minimum sentence and that he was to be released because of his model conduct.

Arrangements were made for Pitts to sign a contract with Albany immediately after his release. The matter was to be kept secret until several days after he was freed, so that his case would not receive undue attention.

But the announcement slipped out prematurely. Judge Bramham read it and charged the club with "exploitation." He ruled that Pitts could not play in organized baseball. On Evers' appeal the executive committee upheld Judge Bramham "for the good of the game."

Evers then directed his appeal to Judge Landis, who studied full records of the case for five days before making known his decision today.

Bramham Is Silent On Landis Action

By the United Press.

Durham, N. C., June 17.—Judge W. G. Bramham, who refused to sanction admittance of Edwin C. Pitts, paroled short-term prisoner, to professional baseball, would not comment late today when informed by the United Press that Commissioner K. M. Landis had overruled his decision.

Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, said he could not make "any statement whatsoever until I see a copy of Commissioner Landis' ruling."

Celanese Spinners Win Tenth Game Straight

Cumberland, Md., June 17.—The Celanese Spinners won their tenth straight Potomac League victory when they defeated Cresaptown, 12 to 3. Rain halted a 2 to 2 battle between the Pompey White Sox and Allegany in the eleventh inning. Mount Savage beat Ridgley, W. Va., 5 to 2, and Paul Edward Club won from Ellerslie, 6 to 4.

16 Crews Battle In Regatta Today

Distance Hurts Penn.

The longer distance, on the other hand, mitigates against the chances of the unbeaten Penn varsity, the best combination turned out by Rusty Callow since he left Washington eight years ago.

Varsity, 4 miles (6 p. m.)—No. 1, California; No. 2, Washington; No. 3, Navy; No. 4, Syracuse; No. 5, Cornell; No. 6, Columbia; No. 7, Pennsylvania.

3 Fanned on 9 Pitches By Brown, of Heurich

"Lefty" Brown, Heurich Brewers' hurler, entered the anteroom of sandlot's hall of fame yesterday afternoon by striking out three men on nine pitched balls. Brown pulled his Vance act in the second inning of the Heurich-Sanitary Grocery game, which the Brewers won, 15-5.

Brown turned back K. Nau, Bradley and Anderson, Nau and Bradley taking six consecutive swishes at the ball, while Anderson took a third strike without lifting his bat. He struck out 10 men and did not give a single base on balls.

Critical Games In City Loop Scheduled

3 Teams Tied in Section A, While Woodmen Top B First Half.

It proved an important victory the Woodmen of the World Elm Camp team gained Sunday in the National City League competition, when it side-tracked the Capital Transit nine, 8 to 3; for with this triumph also came the first-half pennant in Section B.

As Charlie Booker delivered his last pitch to the final batsman the Woodmen were in, although they did not know it at the time. Lewis Ice Cream Co., which would have been Elm Camp's opponent for Sunday, has withdrawn from the league, automatically giving the W. O. W. a win by forfeit.

The situation in Section A is vastly different. Pig 'n' Whistle, Murphy's Five-and-Ten Store, and Blue Flame Valet are deadlocked in a three-way tie for first place. A glance at Sunday's schedule in this division presages real struggles for the Pigs and Murphymen, but not such a difficult task for Blue Flame.

Murphy's encounters the formidable Miller Furniture team and the Pig 'n' Whistle team meets the equally dangerous Cherner Motor Co. Both games will be played on the Ellipse. In the meantime the Army Medicos, who have yet to win a game in the league, oppose Tony Burruto's Blue Flames at Walter Reed.

Although the first-half race is decided, three games are listed for Sunday in Section B. David's Grill engages Warwicks; Stansbury A. C. faces Georgetown A. C., and Capital Transit plays District Grocery Store.

The complete Post Association schedule will be run in tomorrow's Post.

Week-day games are sought by the Rosslyn CCC team. Manager Roy Miles can be phoned at Clarendon 1750.

The Jack Pry Nats want games for Friday and Saturday. Call West 2446 after 5:30 o'clock.

Eddie Marshall yielded only three hits as Bolling Field shut out the St. Elizabeths team, 11 to 0, yesterday. The Aviators seek games for the week. Call Lincoln 5887.

Frankie Pytlak, Ill, Out of Game Few Days

General Manager Billy Evans said Pytlak is suffering from a stomach ailment similar to the one which caused him to leave the team the latter part of last season. Evans expects Pytlak to rejoin the team in a few days.

All-American Signed By Knoxville Team

Knoxville, Tenn., June 17 (AP).—Don Hutson, former all-American football end at Alabama, has been signed to play outfield for Knoxville of the Southern Association in 1936, Edgar Allen, club secretary, announced today.

Hutson is now playing outfield for Troy, Ala., in the Dixie Amateur League. He will report to the Smokies when the season ends there.

Crane Wins Flag Tourney.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 17.—Wellington Crane won the flag tournament at Fountain Head Club over the week-end with a gross score of 79. W. H. Burham had low net with a 65.

Gene Heany, Fountain Head pro, has started a class for youngsters under 16, sons and daughters of club members.

Taft Jr. High Gives Diplomas To Class of 115

Graduates Bestow Gift on Harry Baker, jr., Principal.

Diplomas were awarded to 115 pupils yesterday at Taft Junior High School. Harry Baker, jr., principal, made a brief address.

The ceremony was opened by a series of musical selections by the school's orchestra, followed by the invocation, delivered by the Rev. Walker F. Eagleson, pastor of Sherwood Presbyterian Church.

The address of welcome by William Smith, class president, was followed by an interpretation of the school's life, delivered by Billy Zeller, Pauline Clark, Allene Deitz, Virginia Edelbut, Hubert Augstein, Louise Butts, Harry Gallogly, Yvonne Giles, Charles Parker, Joe America, Cecelia Baardse, Betty Jones, Harry Newby, and James Demas.

Diplomas were presented by Henry I. Quinn, Board of Education member. Mary Frances Flemer read the class poem, while the class president presented the class gift to Mr. Baker. Others who participated in the program were Nathan Giles, William Giles, and Frank Roberts.

Childs' Cafe Cited As Drink Offender

Charged With Serving Man Already Intoxicated.

The liquor license of the Gingham Club, night club operated by Childs Restaurants, Inc., may be revoked by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

The corporation has been cited to appear today before the liquor board to respond to a charge of having sold liquor to an intoxicated person. The night club is in the 1400 block of Pennsylvania avenue.

The accusation was made by Maj. Jerome L. Johnstone, chief investigator for the board, who alleges that the club served liquor on Thursday night to a man who was obviously intoxicated. For violation of this regulation, the board has the power to revoke the license.

The action of the board in revoking the license of the Sun Liquor Co., 900 block of F street northwest, for failure to affix revenue stamps to bottled goods, was upheld yesterday by the Commissioners.

Emanuel Rosenweig, head of the company, had appealed to the Commissioners.

MacDonald May Get Special Mission Here

London, June 17 (AP).—The London Herald's diplomatic correspondent said today that Ramsay MacDonald, former prime minister, may go to the United States as a special representative to discuss the possibility of Anglo-American cooperation in world affairs.

The Herald said that the idea was being "seriously considered" because Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and Captain Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, feel that closer relations between Great Britain and the United States are necessary. The Herald said that MacDonald might be "sort of an ambassador at large."

Brewing Firm Sued As Result of Crash

The National Brewing Co. was named defendant in two suits filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday because of an automobile accident at Suitland, Md., last March.

One suit was filed by Bertha H. Danielson, 405 Seward Square southeast, for injuries she received when one of the company's trucks collided with a car her husband was driving and threw her against the front of the machine. She asked $50,000 damages and her husband asked $5,000 because of expenses and the loss of her services. Attorney John U. Gardiner represented the Danielsons.

Capital Woman Sued For Car Crash Damages

Damages of $52,535 were asked of Helen Luckett Gardiner, 4907 Indian lane northwest, yesterday in the District Supreme Court by Herbert C. Marshall, 5023 Reno road northwest, who brought suit in his own name and as the guardian of his daughter, Eleanor G. Marshall.

Through the law firm of McNeill & McNeill, Mr. Marshall charged his daughter had had her nervous system permanently injured when an auto he was driving was struck by the defendant's car at Thirty-fifth and Macomb streets northwest, June 21, 1932. He asked $50,000 for his daughter's hurts and the rest for medical expenses.

Choral Group Audition Will Be Held Tonight

Auditions for places in the new choral group to be organized as part of the Community Center Civic Symphony Orchestra will be held at 7:30 p. m. today at the Central High School.

Bailey F. Alart, director of the new group, said that vocalists between the ages of 18 and 25 are needed. No dues will be levied. The new unit will probably make its first appearance next Monday at the Sylvan Theater.

$7,000 Awarded Auto Victim.

Rachael Pretzfelder, 2739 Woodley place northwest, was awarded $7,000 damages in the District Supreme Court yesterday because of injuries she sustained March 10, 1934, when she was struck by a truck of the Goodyear Service Co., as she was crossing the street near her home. Attorney A. L. Newmyer, acting for the plaintiff, said she had sustained serious permanent injuries.

Doll House Clears $3,553 for Hospital

Child Institution Thanks Colleen Moore.

A check for $3,553.85, the proceeds of the recent showing of Colleen Moore's doll house at the department store of Lansburgh & Bro., was given to Children's Hospital yesterday.

The check was presented by Ralph Goldsmith, general manager of the store, to O. H. P. Johnson, president of Children's Hospital, and Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, president of the Board of Lady Visitors.

Mr. Goldsmith expressed the hope that the money would help give crippled youngsters at the hospital a new outlook on life. Mrs. Brooke and Mr. Johnson thanked Lansburgh & Bro. and also sent a message of thanks to Miss Moore, who now is in Los Angeles. Among those at yesterday's ceremony were Mark Lansburgh, a member of the board of Children's Hospital, and Adolph Weyl, treasurer of the store, who drew the check.

Filipino Group Plans Program Tomorrow

The Filipino community of Washington will hold a literary-musical program tomorrow evening at 9 o'clock at Visayan Circle Hall, 2117 Pennsylvania avenue, in honor of the birthday anniversary of Dr. Jose Rizal, Filipino hero and martyr.

President Jose Roca will give the welcome address and Osmundo Reynante, Justiniano Fereer and Cayetano Nagac will speak on the life of Dr. Rizal. A Filipino string orchestra will furnish the music. The committee is headed by Dr. Diosdado M. Yap, who will be assisted by Sifio Amate, Miss Mae Pierce and Miss Mary Jane Fouche.

Alleged Forger Is Held For Grand Jury Action

Frank A. McCrobie, alias Frank D. McIntyre, was held for grand jury action under bond of $5,000 yesterday when arraigned in Police Court on charges of forgery.

In addition, he was sentenced to serve 180 days in jail by Judge John P. McMahon on two counts of false pretenses. McCrobie was arrested last week in connection with several worthless check transactions.

LEGAL NOTICES

SIMON, KOENIGSBERGER, YOUNG & COLLINS, Attorneys.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia. Gustav Frederick Rott, et al., plaintiffs, vs. Gustav Emil Rott, et al., defendants. Equity No. 58245. Decree for sale and ratification of sale nisi. This cause coming on to be heard at this time upon the pleadings and testimony, and, having been submitted to and considered by the court, it is, this 17th day of June, 1935, adjudged, ordered and decreed that the following-described real estate mentioned and described in the bill of complaint herein be sold, to wit, lot 56 in square 513, in the District of Columbia, the same being improved by premises known as 431 M street northwest, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale thereof be divided among the parties in interest according to their respective rights; and it further appearing to the court that a contract has heretofore been made by and between the adult parties to this cause and one Margaret L. Potter, for the sale to the said Margaret L. Potter of said real estate at and for the price of six thousand two hundred fifty dollars ($6,250.00), all cash, taxes, interest, rents and insurance to be adjusted by calculation to date of transfer, except as to whether levied or not, for special improvements already made, to be paid by the vendors, subject to a brokerage commission of two hundred and fifty dollars and 50/100 dollars ($287.50), it is further ordered that, unless cause to the contrary be shown on or before the 29TH DAY OF JUNE, 1935, said sale be, and the same is hereby, confirmed as to all of the parties in interest, including the infant defendants hereto, that S. Jay McCathran be, and he is hereby appointed trustee to make a deed of said real estate in accordance with the terms of said sale, on behalf of said infant defendants, and thereby transfer the estate and interest of said infant defendants in said real estate to the purchaser thereof, and that said trustee shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties as trustee, file herein his undertaking under seal, with surety to be approved by the court, in the maximum penalty of one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500.00), conditioned for the faithful performance of the trust in him reposed; and it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in The Washington Post, newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia, at least ten days prior to said 29TH DAY OF JUNE, 1935, and it is further ordered that the provisions of equity rule 68 be complied with in all respects save and except to the extent that the same are inconsistent with the terms of this decree. DANIEL W. O'DONOGHUE, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) FRANK E. CUNNINGHAM, Clerk. By C. E. STEWART, Jr., Asst. Clerk.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

HYMAN A. Pressman, called "the boy orator of Baltimore," started his political career at 14 years and by the time he was old enough to vote he had rounded out a seven-year campaigning career which included two Presidential elections. Along with his political activities, Pressman found time to become a lawyer and pass the State bar examnation when he was 19 years old.

He was born in 1914, and was graduated from Baltimore City College when he was 16 years old. Three years later he was graduated from the University of Baltimore School of Law, and within a month had passed the State bar examination after which there was nothing to do but wait until he became of age. On his twenty-first birthday he was sworn in as an attorney by the clerk of the court of appeals.

Pressman's earliest major political campaign was in 1928 when he took the stump for Al Smith. He is a veteran also of the Broening candidacy for Governor, Jackson for mayor in 1931, Roosevelt's campaign of 1932, Ritchie's gubernatorial campaign of 1935, and Jackson's mayoralty campaign of this year. He founded the Baltimore Young Democrats and was elected their president in 1933.

The wild boar is one of the most fearless and most dangerous of animals when it is enraged. At bay he can stand off a tiger, and there are several cases of record where a boar has actually killed a tiger.

The American Scene.

Sing a song of Huey, talking night and day,
Giving not a clue to what he has to say;
Recipes for highballs, pies and oyster stews
Help a mighty statesman clarify his views.

Needles and pins, needles and pins,
When you're in business your trouble begins.

Roosevelt, Roosevelt, where have you been?
Off to review the collegiate scene,
Telling young grads who'd succeed what to do—
And wishing, oh, ever so hard that I knew!

• • • •

I had a little pony; they called him Dapple Gray;
I lent him to Benito who rode him for a day;
And when I asked him "How come?" he blamed it on the horse.

• • • •

Herbert, Herbert, whither bound?
I just thought I'd look around;
Would you a Grass Rooter be?
Yes, but they'll have none of me.

• • • •

To market to market to see the stocks soar!
Home again, home again, kidded once more.

• • • •

Beneath a sun that melts;
They do not hear the speeches for
Their minds are somewhere else.

• • • •

A man I like is Lester Rhodes
He never talks about the codes;
He never asks, "But is it legal?"
And cracks no jokes about the Eagle.

• • • •

I also like his brother, Lucien,
He won't discuss the Constitution;
But chirps (to me he's often said it)—
"I wouldn't know . . . I've never read it!"

• • • •

There was a young golfer named Parks,
Whose game caused facetious remarks;
But he studied the form
Of the stars who were warm
And in that way he beat all the sharks.

APPLE MARY — By Martha Orr

MARY SAID SHE'D DISMISS ME AS HER BUSINESS MANAGER IF I DIDN'T STOP KNOCKING BILL BIFF. WELL, SHE'D BETTER WATCH HER STEP.
SHE'S FORGETTING SHE'D STILL BE APPLE MARY, WITHOUT A CENT TO HER NAME, IF I HADN'T MADE OLD MAN CRAFTEE TURN OVER HER MONEY AND PROPERTY.
IF SHE THINKS I'M WORRIED SHE'S WRONG. I'LL TELL HER WHERE TO GET OFF AND THAT GOES FOR BILL, TOO.
HELLO, MR. SPROCKETT. TALKING TO YOURSELF? THAT'S A BAD SIGN.
OH, HELLO, MARY.
IT'S A BAD SIGN ALL RIGHT, 'BAD FOR YOU.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Victims — By Harry J. Tuthill

How high-toned Josie looked stamping her feet and waving that hand with the chip diamond ring while raving about the money you got renting the front room.
Money! That, Babe, is all some parties think about.
What an uproar over a few dollars. I was so ashamed of Josie screaming right into my ear, Oh Olivia, you spent the money. Like that.
It did me good while Josie howled we had made a tourist camp of this house, to remind her of the days when she and George were mighty glad to rent out rooms.
And whether we room on Easy Street or over near the railroad tracks, one day we're slamming doors and hollering for service and the next we're just a line or two in a burial notice.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

In ear-phone days, when a radio program was a reward for diligent effort, ether noises pleased or offended only the immediate listener. With the advent of the loudspeaker, conversations gained in volume; a social chat became a battle with the radio.

Whether conversation versus radio is detrimental to radio itself is not important; of more movement is the fact that the noise-battle has developed into a listening psychology that means a bad-mannered audience in the presence of a performer. In any large social gathering, a performer is at a disadvantage, since the radio-minded audience chatters on, as they chatter before their loudspeaker at home.

Worse, listening bad manners has invaded the informal concert field. There was a time when an enterprising hostess could invite an instrumental soloist or singer to entertain her guests; now a soloist, except in a concert hall, is practically ignored, or forced to perform above a conversation as rude as it is disinterested.

If we are rude to radio, the star in the studio neither knows nor cares; if we are rude to "live" performers, they know, care, and are offended.

"Eileen," by Victor Herbert, is on WRC at 9 p. m.

Three young artist winners of the annual Naumberg Foundation music contest give a half-hour recital on WRC, 5 p. m. They are Florence Vickland, Marshall Moss and Harvey Shapiro, soprano, violinist and cellist, respectively.

The Poughkeepsie regatta is described on WRC, 6:30 p. m.

The Dalton Brothers, vaudeville and radio novelty trio, start a series of programs on WJSV, 2 p. m. They will be heard regularly every Tuesday and Thursday at this time and Saturday at 5:15 p. m.

The Children's Community Chorus of Thompson and Gordon Community Centers presents a program of spring music on WMAL, 3:30 p. m. It is under direction of Esther Linkins, past president of the D. C. Federation of Music Clubs, director of the Chaminade Glee Club and specialist in Junior Choir methods and child vocal training
